HUERTA DECLARES ULTIMATUM REPORT IS WITHOUT TRUTH

Charge O'Shaughnessy Wires Mexican President's Denial Through Minister Gamboa to Secretary Bryan

LIND STYLES CONFERENCE WITH HUERTA AS 'CORDIAL'

Official Circles at Washington Deeply Stirred by Report of Demand for Recognition or Severed Relations

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—President Wilson was in his office at an early hour this morning. His first caller was Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, who was chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations when the Republicans controlled the senate. Lodge was accompanied by Senator Stone, of Missouri, who ranks next to the chairman of that committee.

Lodge and Stone had a brief interview with the president and then departed without revealing the object of their visit.

In the meantime the White House, while giving out the denials of the threatening attitude of the Huerta government of Mexico, acknowledged that there was a "situation" pending in Mexico, and intimated that the day might bring on some decisive information.

Representatives of newspapers were informed that the White House would keep in touch with them all day. The president, it was stated, was considering the advisability of making public today the text of instructions to John Lind when he was sent to Mexico. But it was also intimated that active negotiations were proceeding, and the next step by the government might hinge on the result of such negotiations.

The situation in Washington was complicated by the intemperate attitude of the local press. Both Washington morning papers carried strong war dispatches and stronger Washington war articles. One paper printed a heading running across the top of the first page making the flat statement that the United States and Mexico were now on a war footing. The other one was nearly as flagrant. The result naturally was excitement among public men. While Lodge and Stone were with the president, other senate members began to gather in the president's outer office, seeking information as to the situation, and to all of them Secretary Tumulty read the denial of Charge O'Shaughnessy and the dispatch from John Lind, telling of his long and cordial interview with the Mexican president.

Among those who called were Oscar W. Underwood, Democratic floor leader of the house and A. Mitchell Palmer, of Pennsylvania, one of the president's confidential advisers in the house. They were followed in rapid succession by others and each, upon being informed of the situation, hurried to the capitol or to his general terms of the nature of the peat what he had learned to his colleagues.

O'Shaughnessy Wires Report Of President's Denial

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Charge O'Shaughnessy cabled Secretary Bryan from Mexico City today that President Huerta, through Foreign Minister Gamboa, emphatically denied there was any foundation in the press reports that Huerta had issued an ultimatum to the United States demanding recognition.

ARRESTED IN CANADA AFTER SENSATIONAL FLIGHT FROM ASYLUM

Sheriff of New Hampshire Town Trailed Him Across Border and Had Him Held as a Fugitive

AUTHORITIES SAY THEY WILL SEND HIM BACK

Officers Search for Thaw's Confederates, One of Whom Was Ex-Legislator of New York's General Assembly

COATICOOK, Quebec, Aug. 19.—Harry K. Thaw is under arrest here. He will be arraigned at Sherbrooke as a fugitive from justice in the United States and according to Canadian immigration authorities at Ottawa, will be deported from Canada under the immigration regulations.

The rule under which this action will be taken provides that any person who, within five years of his incarceration in a penitentiary or insane asylum, enters Canada, may be sent back as an undesirable.

Thaw was arraigned this afternoon and was remanded to Sherbrooke jail. He will appear before Judge Mulvena, extradition commissioner, probably tomorrow.

The police appeared to have no question as to the identity of their prisoner. He refused to take seriously their action in arresting him, declaring that they had not the shadow of an excuse for depriving him of his liberty, as he had committed no crime.

Thaw was arrested by local officers at the request of Sheriff B. H. Kelsey, of Colebrook, N. H., who saw Thaw on a train last night and later followed him here in an automobile.

Though not knowing what they can do with their prisoner, his captors are interested in the $500 reward which has been offered for his apprehension and they will hold him until his release is ordered or other disposition made of him by the government. Sheriff Kelsey will get this reward.

Thaw freely admitted his identity but would not discuss his movements since Sunday morning, except to say that he took a train "east of Boston." He said taht he was making for the coast and planned to sail for Europe.

He did not appear greatly disturbed by his detention here, declaring that as he had committed no crime he could not be held long.

In company with two men, one heavy built and the other slight and both smooth shaven, Thaw, according to the police, came over the Maine Central from some point south of Colebrook, N. H., last night. This branch of the road extends to Portland, Me.

Thaw is held as a fugitive from justice, while the police hold his two companions on suspicion. All have retained counsel.

The police mad ethis statement:

"Harry K. Thaw was arrested at Hermeneglide-Garford, on charge preferred by the constable with the advice and on information of B. H. Kelsey, deputy sheriff of Colebrook, N. H. Notice has been sent of Thaw's arrest to the Matteawan asylum by Hector Verrett, high constable of Coaticook. Word has been received from the Matteawan authorities to hold the prisoner until further instructions are sent them."

Thaw's two companions refused to disclose their identity. Thaw will be taken to Sherbrooke for arraignment, and thence to Montreal.

A statement given out by the chief of police described the prisoner as thirty-five years of age, of brown complexion and stated that he spoke French with a Parisian accent. The chief said the prisoner at first denied he was Thaw.

Thaw's Guardian Says His Ward Is Not in Canada

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 19.—"I am pretty sure the man they have in Canada is not Harry Thaw," declared Roger O'Mara, Thaw's guardian, as he hung up the receiver after a long distance telephone in his office here this morning. "No, I have not heard from Thaw, but I am sure he is not in Canada."

O'Mara refused to say on what he based his opinion.

How Sheriff Trailed Man Claiming to Be H. K. Thaw

COLEBROOK, N. H., Aug. 19.—Harry Thaw is reported under arrest at Coaticook, province of Quebec.

The man under arrest passed through here on a train last night and later crossed the line into Canada. Deputy Sheriff B. H. Kelsey, of this town, who was on the train, says the man admitted that he was Thaw. Kelsey followed the man to Coaticook, where he was arrested.

According to Kelsey, the man he believes is Thaw was inquiring of others on the train the location of the county seat and some one directed him to the sheriff. Kelsey, saying the latter could tell him.

Kelsey looked at the man rather closely, which caused the other to remark: "You don't know who I am?"

"I could make a pretty good guess. You are Thaw," the sheriff replied.

The stranger thereupon admitted his identity and added: "But you don't

HARDWICK TO ASK FOR PREPARATION OF NEW CURRENCY BILL

Georgia Congressman Receives Support in Effort to Model Banking Bill After Laws of Canada

WOULD PREVENT MONEY-LENDING BY GOVERNMENT

Death of Administration Measure Would Not Mean Failure of Currency Reform This Session

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 19.—The administration currency bill is to be attacked from a new angle in the Democratic caucus of the house, and its opponents feel today that they will succeed in recommitting the entire proposition to the banking and currency committee with instructions to prepare a bill along lines radically different from those on which the present measure is built.

Congressman Harwick, of Georgia, who has been among the leading opponents to the administration bill has prepared the formal motion to recommit that will be made just as soon as the proper parliamentary stage has been reached in th ecaucus. This may arrive the latter part of the week or the first of next week, depending upon the progress that is made in perfecting the administration bill under the five-minute rule.

The Hardwick motion, which was prepared at a number of informal conferences among the bill's opponents, was submitted today to a group of more Democrats, and commanded support from unexpected quarters. The motion, as it will be made by the Georgian follows:

"I move that the bill be re-committed to the committee on banking and currency with the following instructions:

"First. That a substitute for the pending bill shall be prepared by the committee which shall establish a banking and currency system for this country along lines of the banking and currency system of Canada and Scotland.

"Second. That such substitute shall be so framed as to keep the United States government from engaging in either the banking or money lending business.

"Third—That such substitute bill shall be so framed as to render impossible combinations and consolidations between the banks of the United States."

The Canadian banking and currency system which Hardwick motion proposes as a model for currency reform in the United States, provides for the issuance by the banks of legalized cashier's checks or clearing house notes. These are issued under government supervision and regulation, and are redeemable in gold on demand. Mr. Hardwick declared this morning that, in his opinion, the opposition to an asset currency measure and to the general details of the administration bill is strong enough to recommit the measure with instructions, and it is his expectation that his motion will prevail. He believes that all of the Georgia congressmen, with possibly one exception, will support the motion to recommit.

The recommittal of the bill, it is conceded, would mean the death of the administration bill, but would not mean that currency reform is doomed at this session of congress. In the opinion of some, the preparation of a bill modeled after the Canadian system supported by the administration offers the only possible solution of the question.

They predict that unless the so-called "asset currency" bill is abandoned, currency legislation at this session may fail. This view is not shared by President Wilson, however, who feels that the administration bill will be passed, notwithstanding the opposition it is encountering in the house caucus. The president does not share the belief of some that the measure provides for an "asset currency" so repugnant to Democrats.

U. S. Court to Try Woman Slayer of Judge Godbee

Because Divorced Wife of Millen Judge Killed Him and Wounded Wife in Postoffice, Federal Authorities Must Act

MILLEN, Ga., Aug. 19.—A United States district court must pass upon the case of Mrs. Edna Perkins Godbee, who yesterday shot and killed her divorced husband, W. S. Godbee, according to local legal authorities. The killing occurred in the Millen postoffice, which is a federal reservation. This fact, it is held, removes the crime from state jurisdiction.

Mrs. Edna Perkins Godbee will be tried in Savannah before Judge Emory Speer, of the United States court.

Mrs. Godbee, who was wounded, but who is not dead, was removed from Millen to Augusta this morning for treatment. Although pneumonia has developed in her case, it is still hoped to save her.

The funeral of Judge Godbee will take place in Waynesboro, where he formerly resided. Mrs. Godbee, who is in jail, has made no statement of the cause of the killing up to this time. It is anticipated that Judge Speer will order her removed to the jail at Savannah as soon as he or a United States commissioner assumes jurisdiction in the case.

Arrangements Being Made For Judge Godbee's Funeral

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 19.—Plans are being made here for the funeral of Judge W. S. Godbee, the prominent resident of Millen, who was killed yesterday by his divorced wife.

Mrs. Florence Boyer Godbee, the wife of the dead man, who was shot at the same time by Mrs. Edna Perkins Godbee, the divorced wife of the judge, was still alive this morning. Dr. Doughty, of Augusta, has come here to treat her. There are now held out hopes that she will get well.

Mrs. Edna Godbee has given out no public statement, although her sons from Swainsboro and Augusta are here. It is now believed that Mrs. Godbee was more enraged over the alleged statement that her former husband had forced her in the courts to make over some of her property to her daughter and sons while he kept all of his intact had as much to do with the shooting as anything else.

The divorce suit filed by Mrs. Godbee several years ago attracted a good deal of attention at the time it was tried. He did not resist the suit very strongly. She alleged cruel treatment, her grounds being that the judge broke up late at night and that he annoyed her in this way. She and the children all of whom are grown, have always gotten along well together.

Judge Godbee was a county commissioner and a member of the board of education. His funeral will be very largely attended and will be conducted probably from the Methodist church of which he was an officer.

FULTON TAX VALUES GAIN $10,823,080

Tax Digest for 1913 Shows Big Gain in Property Valuations of 1912

The tax digest of Fulton county for 1913 shows a total property valuation of $122,198,115, a gain of $10,823,080 over 1912. This is slightly less than the gain of 1912 over the preceding year, the increase for 1912 being approximately $13,000,000, but the combined gain of 1912 and 1913 shows that within two years property in Fulton has increased in value by nearly $24,000,000.

The total value of property in 1912 was $111,375,035. Of this year's gain $294,705 is in white country property, the remaining sain being largely in city property. Negro property in city and country shows a gain of $221,000.

To the valuation of the property may be added the professional tax, which amounted this year to $5,990, and the poll tax, which was $13,849. The poll tax has decreased a little, the registration for 1912 being $13,867, and in a number of other listings there is a slight decrease. The increase for the year is due mostly to an average gain among the different taxable properties.

The various totals are as follows: County real estate $4,760,460; city real estate, $81,023,490; bank shares, $6,817,075; stocks and bonds, $1,097825; money notes and accounts $1,0358,175; merchandise $8,815,400; automobiles, $52,160; manufactories, $4,262,749; capital in mining, $3,350; furniture, $2,-934525; jewelry, $224,420. live stock $309,830; dogs $1,725; vehicles $77,185; all other property $941,115; total $122,-198,115.

The tax digest also informs the public that there are 250 lawyers in Fulton county; 264 doctors; 48 dentists, 15 architects, 17 mechanical engineers, one lonesome veterinary, an equally solitary corporation president; two corporation superintendents, and 77,644 1-2 acres of land.

T. M. Armistead tax receiver for the county, was radiant at the increase, and because of the completion of the arduous task of making the digest.

"It's just due to general prosperity," said the receiver. "Fulton county knows no hard times, and while the gain this year is a little less than last year, it is sufficiently large to be gratifying."

W. F. Dykes, Zach Castlebury, Ernest Armistead and W. C. Lowe have been the receiver's assistants in making up the tax digest.

WITNESS SWEARS DORSEY REFUSED TO FREE MINOLA FEARING CITY DETECTIVES

Attorney George Gordon, Summoned by the State, Identifies Affilavit as Having Been Assented to by Cook at Frank Home, but Says Solicitor Dorsey Was Informed at the Time That Negress Was Being Illegally Held

BOY SAYS FRANK TALKED TO MARY PHAGAN, BUT COULD NOT DESCRIBE THE LITTLE GIRL

Daisy Hopkins' Character Impeached, but Court Refuses to Hear Indirect Testimony Against Frank's Character—Witnesses Introduced to Bolster Up Dalton's Character, Physicians Will Support Dr. Harris

Attorney George Gordon, who was counsel for Minola McKnight, the negro cook at the Frank-Selig home, when she was taken in custody several weeks ago by city detectives and held until she had given an incriminating affidavit against Leo M. Frank, was one of the state's witnesses in the Frank trial at the Tuesday morning session, and his testimony proved rather embarrassing to Solicitor Dorsey.

Attorney Gordon swore that his client, the negress, had been held at police headquarters for several hours illegally against her will, and that when he protested to the solicitor the latter had declared that he hesitated to order her release for fear he "would get in bad" with the detectives.

The witness declared the detectives would not allow him in the room while they were obtaining the affidavit from his client, and that both the detectives and Chief Beavers had informed him the woman was being held upon orders from the solicitor.

Replying to Solicitor Dorsey's question if the negress had not been released after she had made her affidavit Attorney Gordon said yes, but not until he had appeared with a hapeas corpus proceeding for her to sign.

While cross-examining the witness Attorney Rosser, for the defense, obtained from Solicitor Dorsey an affidavit which the McKnight woman had signed in the solicitor's office before she was taken to police headquarters. The witness declared he had never seen this affidavit before.

Shortly after the negro cook gave her affidavit to the detectives Mrs. Leo. M. Frank, wife of the defendant, gave out a statement to the newspapers in which she attacked Solicitor Dorsey and the city detectives, charging them with having tortured and coerced her cook into giving statements damaging to her husband.

It is understood that at the afternoon session Solicitor Dorsey will put up witnesses in an effort to prove that the McKnight woman gave her affidavit voluntarily and without coercion, and that he will follow them with physicians to sustain the evidence given by Dr. H. F. Harris, secretary of the state board of health, who made a postmortem examination of Mary Phagan's body, and whose testimony has been characterized by physicians put up by the defense as "wild guesses."

MILD SENSATION IS SPRUNG.

Somewhat of a sensation was sprung in the trial just before noon when one of the state's rebuttal witnesses, Willie Turner, sixteen-year-old son of a Sandy Springs farmer, and a former pencil factory employe, swore that in March of the present year, just about a month before the murder of Mary Phagan, he had seen Frank talking to the girl in the metal room, and that the girl was urging Frank to leave her alone so that she could go on with her work.

According to Turner Mary Phagan looked several feet away from Frank, who sought to reassure her by admonishing her that he was the superintendent of the factory.

Attorneys for the defense objected to the Turner boy's testimony, which Attorney Arnold characterized "as eleventh-hour evidence dragged in here for the purpose of prejudicing the minds of the jurors against this defendant."

The jury was sent out while the lawyers argued the point.

Solicitor Dorsey and Attorney Hooper insisted that Frank had sworn that he did not know Mary Phagan and that the testimony of the witness tended to show that he not only knew the girl, but had illicit relations upon her. "The girl was killed on the second floor," said Solicitor Dorsey, "and this witness' testimony hinges upon what may have been the first step which finally culminated in her death."

After considerable argument Judge Roan admitted the testimony and the jury was recalled.

The witness related his story to the jury, and was given a vigorous cross-examination by Attorney Rosser, who caused him to admit that he could not describe Mary Phagan, that he did not know her personally and that he did not know any of the other pencil factory girls.

JUDGE'S RULING DISCOURAGING TO STATE.

When Judge Roan during the morning ruled that for the purpose of laying the foundation for the impeachment of Mrs. Daisy Hopkins, one of the witnesses for the defense, the state could show by Mrs. Hopkins that she visited the pencil factory on a certain occasion, but could not develop from the witness her object in going there, Solicitor Dorsey intimated that the case of the state against Leo M. Frank had been vitally affected by this ruling.

This was taken to mean that the solicitor was apprehensive concerning his ability to get before the jury the testimony of many of his rebuttal witnesses.

When she was on the stand for the defense Mrs. Hopkins swore she had never been guilty of any improper conduct in the factory, that she barely knew Frank and that she had no knowledge of anything derogatory to his character. Mrs. Hopkins also branded as false the statement of C. B. Dalton that she had been with him to the factory basement for improper purposes.

Upon her re-examination by the solicitor Tuesday morning Mrs. Hopkins admitted that she was acquainted with Walter P. Merck, of Atlanta, and that she had met him at the corner of Alabama and Whitehall streets one Saturday afternoon, but she denied an alleged conversation with Merck in which she is said to have related details of a disgusting incident which occurred at the pencil factory.

While Mrs. Hopkins was on the stand the defense announced that it "rested its case." Immediately after the witness was excused the state called a number of DeKalb county citizens who have known her for long terms of years, and each of these swore that her reputation for truth and veracity was bad.

The state produced other witnesses who declared that they would believe Dalton on oath.

Just before Solicitor Dorsey began his interrogation of Mrs. Hopkins he announced that much of the evidence which was to follow would be embarrassing for ladies to listen to and suggested that the defendant's wife and mother leave the court room. After some hesitation they adopted the suggestion.

The state's attorneys make known their intention to call a number of prominent physicians to sustain the testimony of Dr. H. F. Harris, secretary of the state board of health, and to rebut the testimony of a number of well-known physicians put up by the defense to attack the evidence given by Dr. Harris.

Physicians whom the state will call are said to be Dr. George C. Mizell, Dr. J. D. Cromer, Dr. Frank S. Eskridge, Dr. John Funke, Dr. Clarence Johnson, a stomach specialist; and Dr. Samuel E. Benedict, of Athens, president of the state board of health.

When court convened Tuesday morning Attorney Arnold tendered in evidence the time slips taken from the clock at the pencil factory and cited the testimony of Darley wherein Darley had identified the slips. Solicitor Dorsey did not press his objection, and the time slips were admitted.

Mrs. Emil Selig then was put on the stand for about five minutes to identify the brown suit of clothes worn by Frank on Memorial day.

Willie Roberts was the next witness.

While waiting for Roberts to take the stand Solicitor Dorsey made this statement to the court.

"When the time slips came to me my information was that the detectives had written 8:26 on one of the slips as a matter of identification. When I was asked for these slips by the attorneys for the defense, not desiring that they know anything about

HERE IS FRANK'S STORY WORD FOR WORD AS TOLD TO A JURY OF HIS PEERS

When the Accused Factory Official Stepped From the Witness Stand Monday Afternoon at the Conclusion of His Story, Which Had Required Four Hours to Relate, His Wife and Mother Were in Tears and Spectators and Jury Sat Spellbound

"A TISSUE OF LIES, MONSTROUS, BASE AND VILE," SAYS FRANK OF JIM CONLEY'S STORY

"I Have Kept My Words for the Proper Time and the Proper Place — This, Gentlemen, Is the Place and This the Hour. I Have Told You All of the Truth, the Whole Truth," Said Frank as He Finished His Statement

Leo M. Frank, with his life at stake, made the most remarkable statement Monday afternoon that has ever been uttered in a court room in the south.

"Frank acquitted himself," said a man at the conclusion of the wonderful four-hour recital. "No man could talk like he did and lie." He expressed the sentiment of many who had heard his story.

For Frank's statement was such as sway the minds. It was simple, and in its very simplicity reached the apex of eloquence. Had it been the duty of the jury to return a verdict at the conclusion of the statement, many who heard it believe that Frank would have been acquitted without the twelve good men and true leaving their seats.

On sober second thought, when the hearers digest the purport of the message, it may lose its potency. But there was not a man in the court room Monday night who, if he did not believe in the innocence of the prisoner at the bar, at least felt pity enough for him to approve his liberation.

Frank's statement was that of an innocent man. If he is not innocent, many of those who heard him believe he could not have spoken as he did. But if Frank be guilty or innocent, if the jury commits him to the gallows or liberates him to the streets, his statement will stand as a piece of literature.

"He has more sense than both of us," was the tribute paid him by Luther Z. Rosser, his attorney. The remark was addressed to his brother lawyer, Reuben Arnold.

Frank began his statement at five minutes after 2 o'clock; he finished four hours later at five minutes after 6. He talked with three brief intermissions. Twice he was interrupted by Solicitor Dorsey, who objected to the exhibition to the jury of articles not entered in evidence and once he stopped for a drink of water. When he finished his voice was clear as at the commeeacement of the ordeal. With his last sentences he held his auditors breathless:

"A newspaper man," he said, "called me the 'silent man in the Tower.' I was silent because my counsel advised me to be. They told me to wait until the proper time to tell my story.

"This is the place. The hour is here. And gentlemen, I have told you the truth and the whole truth."

At any other time, in any other place, the conclusion would have been melodramatic. Here it was simply the final appeal of a man pleading for his life—an eloquent appeal.

There was absolute silence in the court room for perhaps ten seconds when Frank finished. Then the stillness was broken almost simultaneous by the sobbing of Mrs. Leo Frank and the laconic command of Attorney Arnold:

"Come down."

The accused man stepped from the stand with just as much self-possession and just as sprightly a step as he had walked upon it four hours before. Whatever may have been the strain on his mentality, there was no physical sign to reflect it. He resumed his seat between his wife and mother.

HIS WIFE BREAKS DOWN.

The younger woman threw her arms around him and sobbed on his shoulder. He tried to comfort her with tender affection. The mother took her son's head in her hands and kissed him passionately again and again. She, too, cried, but did not break down as did the wife, who was still convulsed when Frank was led away by the sheriff to his quarters in the Tower.

Where some men with their life in the balance would be nervous, Leo Frank was cool and in complete control of all his faculties; where some men would have been overcome, he talked with the simplicity he would have employed in a commonplace conversation; where some men's minds would have been chaotic, he performed complex mathematical problems in his brain.

During the noon recess Monday Frank's throat and nostrils were sprayed by a physician. Pacing the floor of an ante room under the watchful eye of a deputy sheriff he reviewed documents in the case and refreshed his memory. He took the witness stand less than ten minutes after court reconvened. He was a trifle pale. That was the only mental sign that he displayed. His face soon resumed its natural color.

Beginning with his birth in Paris, Tex., he reviewed his life briefly. He told of attending school in Brooklyn, of going through college. He told of the organization of the National Pencil company and of a trip to Europe to study the manufacture of pencils. He told of his life in Atlanta.

"The days since I married have been the happiest of my life," he said.

Without a trace of hesitancy he told of his actions on the day he is alleged to have murdered Mary Phagan. Calmly he flatly contradicted the statements of Jim Conley, the negro, whose sworn statement has placed him so close to the gallows.

"The statement of Conley is a tissue of lies. I know nothing about the death of the little girl, and the accusation that I called him to help dispose of the body is a monstrous lie. The statement that he saw me with women in an unnatural position is a lie so vile that I have no words to denounce it. I have no wealthy relatives in Brooklyn. My father is an invalid, and he and my mother have only enough to live moderately on. There is no fund for my defense. My attorneys will be paid by the disposal of a portion of the estate of my parents."

Just as coolly he contradicted the sworn evidence of C. B. Dalton. "The statement that two women came into my office for immoral purposes is a base lie."

During the recounting of his story Frank stepped from the stand to explain the work of preparing the weekly financial sheet of the factory, a part of his "circumstantial alibi." Laying his papers on the rail which fronts the jury box he addressed the twelve men who can send him to death if they so will with just the same earnestness one can imagine him addressing a buyer over his desk in the factory of the National Pencil company. He discussed the figures and went through the computations as intelligently as if he did not have the weight of his life upon his shoulders.

The following is a verbatim shorthand report of Frank's statement taken down by the court reporters, from whom The Journal by a special arrangement obtained a copy of their transcript as rapidly

SULZER WANTS TO TEST IMPEACHMENT IN COURT

General Belief in Albany Official Circles Is That Governor Will Not Leave

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 19.—That Governor William Sulzer would decline to abide by the declaration of Attorney General Carmody declaring Lieutenant Governor Martin H. Some of the state departments which have been wavering as to whether they should continue to recognize Mr. Sulzer as chief executive are expected to follow the advice of the attorney general.

Recalled Pre-Raphaelite Wit

London—The late John Richard Clayton of the firm of Clayton & Bell, glass painters, had some good stories of his experiences with the Pre-Raphaelite brethren.

He was once sought out by the painters. He called on Rossetti in his studio and listened to the brilliant flatribes of the young men against what they called the sloshiness of modern painting. Slosh was the term they applied to all the art of that day, and they did not spare sir "Sloshua" Reynolds himself. Clayton was fond of telling how he noticed that the studio was hung all round with photographs of the works of the great masters; but he was astonished to see that they were all either on their sides or upside down. After a pleasant talk he ventured to inquire the reason of the strange hanging. Rossetti affected to be puzzled at Clayton's discovery.

"Why," he added, "aren't they right?" Then Rossetti shouted: "Here, Hunt, Millais, here's a fellow who knows the way these sloshy things should be hung."

The mottfs occasionally demanded of him which he could not refuse made him wince, and he smiled grimly once when a member of the Arts club, of which he was one of the oldest and most esteemed members, declared that 'if you accept that kind of order the firm of Clayton & Bell will be known as Satan and Hell!"

Titles, Not Names, For the Officials in P. O. Department

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Individual identity of the many officials of the postoffice department was wiped out today and henceforth official titles alone will indentify the heads of divisions.

Postmaster General Burleson has prohibited the addressing of his subordinates as Mr. Brown or Mr. Jones. If Mr. Brown happens to be the first assistant postmaster general Mr. Burleson wants him addressed as the "First Assistant." If Mr. Jones is the fourth assistant he wants Mr. Jones so addressed. The rule applies even to routine members.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—"Mrs. Wilson" is the name of a new type of chrysanthemum developed by experts of the department of agriculture for the department's annual autumn flower show.

Named in honor of the wife of the president, the new bloom is said to be a magnificent specimen. Other striking blooms have been christened "Margaret," "Jessie" and "Eleanor," after the three daughters of President and Mrs. Wilson.

To Get Rid of Canada Thistle

The Canada or Canadian thistle is really not a native of Canada. It is a native of the old world, being very abundant in many places in Europe, where it is commonly known as the "creeping thistle."

The entire plant is very prickly. It grows to be from one to three feet high. Its leaves are medium sized, but they are extremely prickly and the prickles stand out in every direction. The leaf margins are irregular, jagged and lobed irregularly from the base to the apex.

The flower heads are small. This thistle has the smallest heads of any of the common thistles of the country. The flowers are very small, as they are in all thistles, and they are normally purplish or pinkish.

How are we to get rid of the Canada thistle? I have known of success following the covering of the patch of thistles with several layers of tarred paper, staking the paper down so as to keep it from being blown away. Instead of staking down the paper, wet manure might be thrown on it. Care must be taken to extend the tarred paper many feet beyond the edge of the patch.

If the patch is small it might be dug out, care being taken to rake out every particle of the underground portions, so that there will be no opportunity for them to spring up. The one important thing in killing out the Canada thistle is to prevent the underground portions from coming to the surface so as to form green leaves. The green leaves of a thistle are somewhat analogous to the lungs and stomach of the higher animals, and if these are killed promptly the plants will finally be starved to death.

FATE OF DIGGS IN JURY'S HANDS SOON

Defense Blackens Character in Attempt to Prove Innocence of Slavery Charge

(By Associated Press.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—When the trial of Maury I. Diggs, charged with violation of the Mann white slave act, was resumed today it was believed the case probably would go to the jury tomorrow.

L. P. Diggs, father of the defendant resumed the stand. His testimony began last Friday, when the defense opened its case, was intended to show that he had threatened his son with arrest because of misconduct with Marsha Warrington and other women.

A paradox in the defense of the case is that, in the attempt being made to save young Diggs, his reputation deliberately is being assailed. The defense is attempting to prove that he and F. Drew Caminetti, with the Warrington girl and Lola Norris, went from Sacramento to Reno, not for an immoral purpose, but simply to escape the consequences of a public scandal they believed was about to break over them in Sacramento.

Mrs. Diggs and Mrs. Caminetti, who have joined their husbands in court, are expecting to testify they had been aware of the men's derelictions and had taken steps to stop them, thus adding to their fears and contributing further cause for their flight.

Other witnesses were introduced to testify that Diggs got into trouble because of women and an overdrawn bank account, and that he feared arrest and a crushing expose if he remained in his home city.

As for Diggs' having taken Marsha Warrington with him, the defense sought to show that he took her because he could not get away from her; that the party would not have journeyed beyond California's limits if it had not been for the Warrington girl's objections to a proposed trip to Los Angeles, and therefore that it was not for an immoral purpose that Diggs went with the girl to another state.

Diggs himself is expected to close for the defense.

The first case against Caminetti, similar to the one against Diggs now being tried, was called in another department of the federal court today, but was passed pending the outcome of the Diggs trial.

DESERTED BARK IS REPORTED BY CREW

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Deserted by her crew as unseaworthy, the bark St. Catherine lies at anchor in an isolated harbor on the Atlantic coast. The revenue cutter service has been apprised of this by radiogram from Captain W. E. Reynolds, commander of the Bering sea fleet.

The fact that high wages could be obtained in the salmon fisheries at Ugashig, Alaska, is believed to have lured away the crew of the bark. Her owner, unable to sign another crew, appealed to the revenue cutter service for aid. A cutter with a commander and United States marshal has been ordered to investigate.

SHERIFF'S GUN HOLDS LYNCHERS IN CHECK

To Get Negro Prisoner, Gate Is Blown With Dynamite, but Sheriff Saves Him

(By Associated Press.)

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Aug. 19.—A telephone message from Spartanburg, S. C., this morning states that all is quiet after an exciting night in the attempt to lynch a negro, Will Fair, who attempted to assault a white woman near there yesterday. Several charges of dynamite were used by the crowd to storm the jail. The gate was battered down but an entrance to the jail was not affected. The sheriff with his deputies kept the crowd at bay until daylight and caused it to disperse.

J. C. Owensby and Frank Epply are in a local hospital, both sustaining fresh wounds from pistol shots fired during the excitement. It is reported here that the negro was spirited out of the jail by deputies about 2 o'clock this morning and taken to Columbia. No more trouble is expected.

Negro Prisoner Spirited To Columbia for Safety

COLUMBIA, S. C., Aug. 19.—William Fair, the negro who was saved from Lynching at the Spartanburg jail last night by the firm stand taken by Sheriff William J. White, of that county and a single deputy, was brought to Columbia this morning by the chief of police of Spartanburg and is lodged safely in the state penitentiary here, temporarily at least.

The negro was spirited out of a rear door of the jail about 3 o'clock this morning while Sheriff White held back the crowd at the front of the institution and hurried by train to this city.

Prison officials here expect to receive immediate instructions to keep the negro in the state prison until the date of his trial.

CONTRACTORS MUST LOOK AFTER SUB'S FINANCES

Treasury Department Rules That Builiders of Pubic Structures Must Report

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The treasury department today announced that it would insist that contractors on public buildings hereafter must look after the financial wants of their subcontractors as work on the structures progresses.

In the past the department has experienced trouble in pushing work on new buildings, because contractors in their monthly requisitions for funds failed to make proportional payments to subcontractors.

This practice the department proposes to end and it will try out its new policy in the erection of the new $500,000 federal building at New Haven, Conn.

BAILIFF GADDY SHOT WHILE MAKING ARREST

Struck by Four Bullets When He Attempted to Serve Warrant

When attempting to serve a warrant Monday afternoon, Bailiff J. P. Gaddy, of East Point, was shot four times and seriously wounded by J. J. Willis, a merchant. The first bullet struck Bailiff Gaddy in the right breast and glanced off a rib, the second shattered the bones in the right elbow, and the other two entered the right shoulder from the back.

The physician in charge stated on Tuesday that his condition was not serious unless complications set in. Willis immediately after the shooting tried to make his escape, according to East Point officers, but was arrested by Officer Creel, of College Park.

The shooting occured in Willis' store, which is directly across from the Gate City Cotton company, in East Point. Bailiff Gaddy bore a warrant charging Willis with contempt of court for opening his store after it had been ordered closed because Willis refused to settle a judgment of $1,000.

When the bailiff arrived at the store accompanied by John Wynn, Willis was sitting on the porch, but immediately ran to the back of the store. The officer followed and, it is said, was fronted by Willis with a revolver, and advanced toward him but Willis commenced shooting. Bailiff Gaddy says he attempted to get out his revolver after the first shot and return the fire, but Willis' second shot caught him in the right elbow, disabling his shooting arm before he unlimbered his gun. The officer declares he attempted to get away and was shot twice back of the shoulder.

The case will be tried at the February term of the Turner county superior court before Judge Parks.

as they could write it. This report of Frank's statement is the official report, exactly the same, word for word and line for line, that will go into the court record of the trial.

Frank's Complete Statement

Leo M. Frank, the defendant, made the following statement:

Gentlemen of the Jury: In the year 1884, on the 17th day of April, I was born in Paris, Tex. At the age of three months my parents took me to Brooklyn, N. Y., and I remained in my home until I came south, to Atlanta, to make my home here. I attended the public schools of Brooklyn, and prepared for college, in Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, N. Y. In the fall of 1902 I entered Cornell university, where I took the course in mechanical engineering, and graduated after four years, in June, 1906.

I then accepted a position as draftsman with the B. F. Sturtevant company, of High Peak, Mass. After remaining with this firm for about six months, I returned once more to my home in Brooklyn, where I accepted a position as testing engineer and draftsman with the National Meter company, of Brooklyn, N. Y. I remained in this position until about the middle of January, 1907, when, at the invitation of some citizens of Atlanta, I came south to confer with them in reference to the starting and operation of a pencil factory, to be located in Atlanta.

After remaining here for about two months, I returned once more to New York, where I engaged passage and went to Europe. I remained in Europe nine months. During my sojourn abroad I studied the pencil business, and looked after the erection and testing of the machinery, which had been previously ordered, by me. The first part of August, 1908, I returned once more to America, and immediately came south to Atlanta, which has remained my home ever since.

Frank Was Married Here.

I married in Atlanta, in Atlanta, girl, Miss Lucile Selig. The major portion of my married life has been spent at the home of my parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. E. Selig, at 68 East Georgia avenue. My married life has been exceptionally happy—indeed, it has been the happiest days of my life. My duties as superintendent of the National Pencil company were, in a general way, as follows: I had charge of the mechanical and electrical end of the factory, looking after the operations and seeing that the product was turned out satisfactorily and to the standard which is set by our competitors. I looked after the installation of new machinery and the purchase of new machinery. In addition to that I had charge of the office work at the Forsyth street plant and general supervision of the lead plant, which is situated on Bell street.

I looked after the purchase of the raw materials which are used in the manufacture of pencils, kept up with the market of those materials where the prices fluctuated so that the purchases could be made to the best possible advantage.

His Arrival On Friday.

On Friday, April 25, I arrived at the pencil factory on Forsyth street at about 7 o'clock, my usual time, and immediately started in on my regular routine work looking over papers that I had laid out the evening before and attending to any other work that needed my special attention that morning. At about 9:30 I went over to the office of the general manager and treasurer, Mr. Sigmond Montag, whose office is at Montag Bros., on Nelson street.

I stayed over there a short time, got what papers and mail had arrived over there—all that the pencil company comes over there to their office—I got that mail and brought it back to Forsyth street. I then separated the mail and continued going on my usual routine duties in the office on Forsyth street. At about 11 o'clock, Mr. Schiff brought over the pay roll books covering the plants at Forsyth street and at Bell street, me to check over to see that the amounts and the extensions were correct. Of course, this work has to be very carefully done, so that the proper amount for each one will be in the bank. This checking took me until about 12:30 p. m., when I made out the amount on a slip of paper that I wished to have drawn from the bank, went over to Montag Brothers, had the checks drawn and signed by Mr. Sigmond Montag, after which I returned to Forsyth street and got the leather bag in which I usually carry the money and the coin from the bank, and got the slip on which I had written various denominations in which I desired to have the pay roll made out. Accompanied by Mr. Herbert Schiff, my assistant, I went to the Atlanta National bank, where I had the checks cashed. Returning to the factory in company with Mr. Schiff, I placed this bag containing the money for the pay roll in the safe and locked it. At this time, my wife called for me and in her company and that of Mr. Schiff, I went over to the car and took my wife home to lunch.

Returns to Factory.

After lunch, I returned to the factory and took a few minutes' rest and an hour through the factory, after which I then assisted Mr. Schiff in checking over the amounts in the pay envelopes, checking the money against the duplicate slips that we had gotten from the bank, to see that the correct amount had been drawn in, and I helped Mr. Schiff check over the money and fill the envelopes.

This took us approximately until a quarter to 6, to fill the envelopes, seal them and place them in the box that we have over there with 200 pigeon holes, and which we call our pay-off box. While I was so occupied with Mr. Schiff in filling these envelopes a young man by the name of Wright, who had helped us out as a clerk in the office during the past week, came in and I paid him in cash, as Mr. Schiff, I found, neglected to put his name on the payroll. I just made out a ticket for the amount of money he drew and put it in the cash box and charged it to the cash box and not to the payroll.

At a quarter to 6 payment of the help took place. Mr. Schiff taking all the envelopes that were due the help who had worked from 7 to 12 a. m. inclusive, out to the payroll window, which is entirely outside of either my inner office or the outer office and out in the hall beyond—a little window that we have built. I sat in my office checking over the amount of money which had been left over.

This amount was equal—or should have been equal—to the amount that had been loaned out in advance to help and had been deducted when we were filling the envelopes. In checking this amount over, as near as I can recollect it, there was about $1.20—I intend the shortage of about $1.20—something over a dollar, at any rate, and I kept checking to see if I couldn't find the shortage going over the various deductions that had been made, but I couldn't locate it that evening.

After the help had been paid off, during which time as I sat in my office no one came into my office who asked me for change or for the pay envelope of another.

After the paying off of the help had taken place, Mr. Schiff returned to the factory for the envelopes which were left over, bound with an elastic band, and I put them in the cash compartment, which is different from the cash box, a certain cash compartment in the safe, the key to which I retained in my cash box. I placed them in the safe, and Mr. Schiff busied himself clearing up the books and the files and placing them in the safe. While he was doing that I placed in the time clocks the slips to be used next day.

I took out the time slips which were dated April 25, which had been used by the help on Friday, April 25, 6:30, and placed the slips out to the clock, the ends of which I ceased down so that they would fit into the cylinder inside of the clocks, and I noticed that I had neglected to stamp the date on them, so I just wrote on them "April 26, 1913." I then put the slips in the date of the day following, which is the way we usually do with the time clock, after placing these slips in the clock and bringing those back in the office, Mr. Schiff and myself left for home, it being about 6:30. I neglected to state that while I was sitting in the office, Mr. Schiff was paying off Newt Lee—these are the two time slips I took out.

Dorsey Offers His Objections to Court.

Mr. Dorsey: We object to that, if your honor please; they have to be offered in the regular way.

Mr. Arnold: Well, we'll put them in right now. I thought they had been introduced. We want them to go in right now.

Mr. Dorsey: We object on two grounds; the first is, that's improper while he's on the stand, and second, a man can't put things in evidence by means of his statement—that's the law.

Mr. Arnold: Here are the time slips that were identified by Darley and I think by Holloway and by Schiff—I remember distinctly that they were identified by Mr. Darley.

If I'm going to offer them in evidence, why can't I offer them now? I can offer them at any time I wish, and I ask you to receive slips now, Mr. Dorsey. We make no claim that the statement alone can identify the documents; if there is any question on that point, we can put the evidence up—we'll just call him off and put up forty if it's necessary to identify them.

Mr. Rosser: Can't he take them and explain them as much as he pleases whether they are in evidence or not?

Can't Go Before Jury.

The Court: He can talk about them as much as he pleases, but they can't go before the jury as evidence right now.

Mr. Arnold: Then we'll withdraw him and put them in. I offer these time slips now, Mr. Dorsey.

Mr. Dorsey: We object to this time slip of Saturday, April 19, as wholly immaterial and irrelevant—

Mr. Arnold: I offer them all, your honor.

Mr. Dorsey: The point on all of them is that these are wholly immaterial and irrelevant, absolutely illustrate no issue in the case, and on down till you get to April 19, they have never been proven when they were ever put in, nor when they were taken out—and not a single thing has been shown with reference to them. Now I know that, because I kept a copy of them right here, and I have checked off on it from time to time, and I have been anticipating all the time to see what was going to be done about them, and I am here to state that they have never been proven, and whenever they do go to prove it we want to see it, and then we expect to say something about it ourselves. All of these up to Saturday, the 26th, are immaterial and absolutely irrelevant, and nothing has been proven about them. Those are the facts, and they are very important to the state's case that I ask to let them produce the record and show that they are, or certain of it, they can put their fingers on it—exactly when and by whom they were identified.

Rosser Appeals to Court.

Mr. Rosser: Mr. Darley was on the stand, and he called attention to the slips in it. Your honor remembers that that was the slip taken out Sunday morning, he identified it, and they asked about what was put in, and he identified the ones put in that morning, and in addition to that, they served us with subpoena duces tecum to produce them and we brought those papers here and submitted them to them and they don't have to be identified any further than that.

Mr. Arnold: I want to tender the three slips that Darley identified.

Mr. Dorsey: Now, I call for Darley's evidence identifying them.

Mr. Arnold: The two slips dated April 26, and the slip of the 28, these are really the only ones that I really care about, and just to simplify it, these are the ones I will tender.

Mr. Dorsey: We submit, we want to hear Darley's evidence about the identification. They are in addition to that, they served us with subpoena duces tecum to produce them and we brought those papers here and submitted them to them and they don't have to be identified any further than that.

Mr. Arnold: I want to tender the three slips that Darley identified.

Mr. Dorsey: Now, I call for Darley's evidence identifying them.

Mr. Arnold: The two slips dated April 26, and the slip of the 28, these are really the only ones that I really care about, and just to simplify it, these are the ones I will tender.

FOR FOUR HOURS DEFENDANT HELD STAND AS HE TOLD HIS STORY

when she evidently stopped and asked me if the metal had arrived, and I told her, no. She continued on her way out and I heard the sound of her footsteps as she went away.

It was a few moments after she asked me this question that I had an impression of a female voice saying something; I don't know which way it came from; just passed away and I had that impression. This little girl had evidently worked in the metal department by her question and had been laid off owing to the fact that some metal had been ordered that had not arrived at the factory; hence, her question. I only recognized this little girl from having seen her around the plant and did not know her name, simply identifying her envelope from her having called her number to me.

She had left the plant hardly five minutes when Lemmie Quinn, the foreman of the plant, came in and told me that I could not have him away from the factory, even though it was a holiday; at which I smiled and kept on working. He first asked me if Mr. Schiff had come down and I told him he had not and he turned around and left. I continued work until I finished this work and these requisitions and I looked at my watch and noticed that it was a quarter to one. I called my home up on the telephone, for the reason that my wife and my mother-in-law were going to the matinee and I wanted to know when they would have lunch. I got my wife and Minola answered the phone and she answered me back that they would have lunch immediately and for me to come right on home.

I then gathered my papers together and went up stairs to see the boys on the top floor. This room, when I arrived, I had just looked at my watch, ten minutes to one. I noticed in the evidence of one of the witnesses, Mr. Arthur White, she states it was 12:35 that she passed by and saw me. That is possibly true; I have no recollection about it; perhaps the recollection is better than mine; I have no remembrance of it; however, I expect that is so.

When I arrived upstairs I saw Arthur White and Harry Denham who had been working there with me and Mr. White's wife. I asked them if they were ready to go and they said they had enough work to keep them several hours. I noticed that they had laid out some work and I had to see what work they had on hand and were going to do. I asked Mr. White's wife if she was going or would stay there as I would be obliged to lock up the factory, and Mrs. White said no, she would go then. I went down and gathered up my papers and locked my desk and went around and washed my hands and put on my hat and coat and locked the inner door to my office and locked the doors to the street and started to go home.

Impossible to See Him or Out

Now, gentleman, to the best of my recollection from the time the whistle blew for 12 o'clock until after a quarter to one when I went upstairs and spoke to Arthur White and Harry Denham, to the best of my recollection, I did not stir out of the inner office; but it is possible that in order to answer a call of nature I may have gone to the toilet. Those are things that a man does unconsciously and cannot tell how many times per day when he does it. Now, sitting in my office at my desk, it is impossible for me to see into the outer hall when the safe door is open, as it was that morning, and not only is it impossible for me to see out, but it is impossible for people to see in and see me there.

His Arrival At His Home

I continued on up Forsyth to Alabama, and down Alabama to Whitehall, where I waited a few minutes for a car, and after a few minutes a Georgia avenue car came along and I took it and arrived home at about 1:20. When I arrived at home, I found that my wife and my mother-in-law were eating their dinner, and my father-in-law had just sat down and started his dinner.

I sat down to dinner and before I had taken anything, I turned in my chair to the telephone, which is right behind me and called up my brother-in-law to tell him that on account of some work I had to do at the factory, I would not be able to go with him, he having invited me to go with him out to the ball game. I succeeded in getting the residence and his cook answered the phone and told me that Mr. Ursenbach had not come back home, but told her to give him a message for me, that I would be unable to go with him. I turned around and continued eating my lunch and after a few minutes my wife and mother-in-law finished their dinner and left me the good by-e.

My father-in-law and myself continued eating our dinner. Minola walked around serving us. After finishing dinner, my father-in-law said he would go out in the back yard to look after his chickens and I lighted a cigarette and laid down. After a few minutes I got up and walked up Georgia avenue to get a car. I noticed the time was minutes to 2 car and I looked up and saw in front of Mr. Wolfsheimer's residence, Mrs. Michael, mother of my wife who lives in Athens, and there were several ladies there and I went over there to see them and after a few minutes Mrs. Wolfshimer came out of the house and I walked down to meet her. A car, the Washington street car coming and I ran up and saw that I could catch the car. I got on the car and talked to Mr. Loeb on the way to town. The car got to a point about the intersection of Washington street and Hunter street and there was an engine standing and there was a couple of cars stalled up ahead of us, the cars were waiting for us to see the memorial parade; they were all banked up.

Watched the Parade Go By

After it stood there a few minutes, as I did not want to wait, I told Mr. Loeb that I was going to get out and go on, as I had work to do. So I went down Hunter street, going in the direction of Whitehall, and when I got down to the corner of Whitehall and Hunter, the parade had started to come around and I could not get around at all, and I had to stay there 15 or 20 minutes and see the parade. Then I walked on down Whitehall on the side of Mr. M. Rich & Bros.' store toward Brown & Allen's; when I got in front of M. Rich & Bros.' store, I stood there between half past 2 and a few minutes to 3 o'clock, until the parade passed entirely; then I crossed the street and went on down to Jacobs' and went in and purchased 25 cents' worth of cigars. I then left the store and went on down Alabama street to Forsyth street and down Forsyth street to the factory.

I unlocked the street door and then unlocked the inner door and left it open and went on upstairs to tell the boys that I had returned back and wanted to know if they were ready to go, and at that time they were preparing to leave. I went immediately down to my office and opened the safe and put my desk and hung up my coat and hat and started to work on the financial report, which I will explain.

Mr. Schiff had not come down and there was additional work for me to do.

Tells Newt Lee He Can Get Off.

In a few minutes after I started to work on the financial sheet, which I am going to take up in a few minutes, I heard the bell ring on the time clock outside and Arthur White and Harry Denham came into the office and Arthur White borrowed $2 from me in advance on his wages. I had gotten to work on the financial sheet, figuring it out, and I was interrupted to go out to the lavatory, and on returning to the office, the door pointed out directly in front, I noticed Newt Lee, the watchman, coming from toward the head of the stairs, coming toward me.

I looked at the clock and told him the night before to come back at 4 o'clock, for I expected to go to the baseball game.

At that time Newt Lee came along and greeted me and offered me a banana out of a yellow bag which he carried, which I presume contained bananas. I told him I had no banana and told him that I had no way of letting him know sooner that I was to be there, and told him that I had changed my mind about going to the ball game. I told him that he could go if he saw fit for an hour and a half, but I would be back at 4 o'clock. He went off down the staircase leading out and I returned to my office and took my seat. Since Newt Lee, the watchman, the first night he came there to watch I personally took him around the plant, first, second and third floors and into the basement, and told him that he would be required, that it was his duty, to go over the entire building every half hour; not only to completely tour the upper four floors but to go down to the basement, and I specially stressed the point that that dust bin along here was one of the most dangerous places for a fire and I would like to see him go back and back there every half hour and to be careful how he held his lantern. I told him it was a part of his duty to look after and lock that back door and he fully understood it, and I showed him the cut-off for the electric current and told him in case of fire that ought to be pulled so no fireman coming in would be electrocuted. I explained everything to him in detail and told him he was to make that tour every half hour and stamp it on the time card and that that included the basement of the building.

Dorsey Objects To Evidence.

Now this sheet here is the factory record containing the lists of pencils in color, the prices opposite each and every number; the amount of each and every one of our pencils which is manufactured during the end of any given week. There are no names there. We make the entries on this sheet by numbers. Here is a sample case containing the pencils which are manufactured at the Forsyth street plant. That is just as an explanation of what these figures are.

Mr. Dorsey: Now, there is no evidence up to this time about that your honor. They didn't show them to the jury, and I object to them being shown to the jury now.

The Court: Well, if that is true, it comes under the same ruling.

Mr. Arnold: I'll show just state about them, Mr. Frank.

Well, I expect you have gotten enough out of the glass of them for you to know that there are a great many pencils and a great many colors, and a great many styles; all sorts of tips, all sorts of rubbers, all sorts of stamps—I expect there are 10 pencils in that roll. That shows the variety of pencils we manufacture. We not only have certain set numbers that we manufacture, but we have the facilities any pencil to order for any customer who desires a sufficient number of a special pencil, into a grade similar to our own pencil. Now, this pencil sheet when I looked at it at quarter to 1 on Tuesday, I thereabouts on Saturday morning, was incomplete. It had the entry for Thursday, April 24, omitted.

Errors in the Production Sheet.

Mr. Schiff had entered the production for April 18, 19, 22 and 23, but he had omitted the entry for the 24, and the 25 was Friday, and of course it was not totaled or headed, so it became necessary to look in the books of daily reports which was handed in every day by the packing foreladý, sort out the various pencils noted on there, and place them on their proper places. Before proceeding further on that, I want to call your attention to the fact that we use this sheet for two weeks.

Explains Brands Of Pencils

You notice two weeks ending down there, April 27, April 17, and one ending on April 26, April 19. Mr. Schiff, I notice, put April 17 at the top and the date corresponds to the entries on the left hand side; these are, the dates alongside of each entry. Now, where we have any special pencil, as a general rule, for instance, take two 0-x special up there; we manufacture two 10-x special for the Cadillac Motor Car company now, there is a 660-x pencil; that 660-x pencil we call Panama, but in this entry it is called Cruz Panama. Now there is another 660-x special, ours being Panama and this the Universal 660-x special. Now, gentlemen, gentlemen, we put the name of the customer, if he wants business in a sufficient quantity. Well, I had to go through this report for Thursday, handed in by Miss Flowers, the forelady of the packing department, as she said, on Friday. I had to go through it and make the entries. Now, after I made the entries, I had to total each number for itself; that is, the number of 10-x, 20-x, 30-x, etc.

The Errors Were Not His

Now, I notice that both of the expert accountants who got on the stand, pointed out two errors. While those errors are trivial, there is enough of human pride in me to explain that those errors were not mine. Those errors, one of one and a half gross and one of one gross, in totaling up, these totals here on the 18th and 19th—those entries were made by Mr. Schiff. I don't expect he meant to make an error, but they happen to be in his handwriting. Those totals were already down there for the various days when I got there and I always take them as correct without any checking of his figures. The only figures I put down are my own figures. I add my correct figures to his figures and of course, not having checked the figures, I had and started to work on the financial report, which I will explain.

Mr. Schiff had not come down and there was additional work for me to do.

Shows How Errors Were Made

He didn't know my method of doing that, and therefore he could not know the error. When I explain to you the method in which I arrived at these figures you also will see they are not in error.

Now, among the packing reports that are handed into the office, just like Miss Eula May handed this in from the packing room proper, there is another one where pencils are packed, viz.: the department under the foreladyship of Miss Fannie Atherton, known as the job department. The jobs are our seconds or throw-outs, for which we get less money, of course, than for the first. You see Miss Eula May handed this in and told him that I had no way of letting him know sooner that I was to be there, and that I had changed my mind about going to the ball game. I told him that he could go if he saw fit for an hour and a half, but I would be back at 4 o'clock. He went off down the staircase leading out and I returned to my office and took my seat. I told him that he could go if he saw fit for an hour and a half, but I would be back at 4 o'clock. He went off down the staircase leading out and I returned to my office and took my seat. Since Newt Lee, the watchman, the first night he came there to watch I personally took him around the plant, first, second and third floors and into the basement, and told him that he would be required, that it was his duty, to go over the entire building every half hour; not only to completely tour the upper four floors but to go down to the basement, and I specially stressed the point that that dust bin along here was one of the most dangerous places for a fire and I would like to see him go back and back there every half hour and to be careful how he held his lantern. I told him it was a part of his duty to look after and lock that back door and he fully understood it, and I showed him the cut-off for the electric current and told him in case of fire that ought to be pulled so no fireman coming in would be electrocuted. I explained everything to him in detail and told him he was to make that tour every half hour and stamp it on the time card and that that included the basement of the building.

Dorsey Objects To Evidence.

Now this sheet here is the factory record containing the lists of pencils in color, the prices opposite each and every number; the amount of each and every one of our pencils which is manufactured during the end of any given week. There are no names there. We make the entries on this sheet by numbers. Here is a sample case containing the pencils which are manufactured at the Forsyth street plant. That is just as an explanation of what these figures are.

Mr. Dorsey: Now, there is no evidence up to this time about that your honor. They didn't show them to the jury, and I object to them being shown to the jury now.

The Court: Well, if that is true, it comes under the same ruling.

Mr. Arnold: I'll show just state about them, Mr. Frank.

Well, I expect you have gotten enough out of the glass of them for you to know that there are a great many pencils and a great many colors, and a great many styles; all sorts of tips, all sorts of rubbers, all sorts of stamps—I expect there are 10 pencils in that roll. That shows the variety of pencils we manufacture. We not only have certain set numbers that we manufacture, but we have the facilities any pencil to order for any customer who desires a sufficient number of a special pencil, into a grade similar to our own pencil. Now, this pencil sheet when I looked at it at quarter to 1 on Tuesday, I thereabouts on Saturday morning, was incomplete. It had the entry for Thursday, April 24, omitted.

Errors in the Production Sheet.

Mr. Schiff had entered the production for April 18, 19, 22 and 23, but he had omitted the entry for the 24, and the 25 was Friday, and of course it was not totaled or headed, so it became necessary to look in the books of daily reports which was handed in every day by the packing foreladý, sort out the various pencils noted on there, and place them on their proper places. Before proceeding further on that, I want to call your attention to the fact that we use this sheet for two weeks.

Explains Brands Of Pencils

You notice two weeks ending down there, April 27, April 17, and one ending on April 26, April 19. Mr. Schiff, I notice, put April 17 at the top and the date corresponds to the entries on the left hand side; these are, the dates alongside of each entry. Now, where we have any special pencil, as a general rule, for instance, take two 0-x special up there; we manufacture two 10-x special for the Cadillac Motor Car company now, there is a 660-x pencil; that 660-x pencil we call Panama, but in this entry it is called Cruz Panama. Now there is another 660-x special, ours being Panama and this the Universal 660-x special. Now, gentlemen, gentlemen, we put the name of the customer, if he wants business in a sufficient quantity. Well, I had to go through this report for Thursday, handed in by Miss Flowers, the forelady of the packing department, as she said, on Friday. I had to go through it and make the entries. Now, after I made the entries, I had to total each number for itself; that is, the number of 10-x, 20-x, 30-x, etc.

The Errors Were Not His

Now, I notice that both of the expert accountants who got on the stand, pointed out two errors. While those errors are trivial, there is enough of human pride in me to explain that those errors were not mine. Those errors, one of one and a half gross and one of one gross, in totaling up, these totals here on the 18th and 19th—those entries were made by Mr. Schiff. I don't expect he meant to make an error, but they happen to be in his handwriting. Those totals were already down there for the various days when I got there and I always take them as correct without any checking of his figures. The only figures I put down are my own figures. I add my correct figures to his figures and of course, not having checked the figures, I had and started to work on the financial report, which I will explain.

Mr. Schiff had not come down and there was additional work for me to do.

Shows How Errors Were Made

He didn't know my method of doing that, and therefore he could not know the error. When I explain to you the method in which I arrived at these figures you also will see they are not in error.

Now, among the packing reports that are handed into the office, just like Miss Eula May handed this in from the packing room proper, there is another one where pencils are packed, viz.: the department under the foreladyship of Miss Fannie Atherton, known as the job department. The jobs are our seconds or throw-outs, for which we get less money, of course, than for the first. You see Miss Fannie Atherton is the job department. Now, I took each of those jobs above and separated them from the rest of those sheets, finding out how many jobs of the various kinds were packed that week. Now, this week, I found that there were twelve different kinds of jobs packed that day. Each of them, you will notice, has a different price.

The Intricacies Of the Task

That is the number of jobs, 0-95, or the number of job 114; that is the number of the job; not the amount. That is done by what price it is sold. Out here you see the amount of that job which was packed, 180 gross, ten gross, one gross, twenty-four gross, etc. Then you will find the actual price we received for that job. Now, take the extensions and find the number of gross of pencils, 180 gross at 40 cents, of course, is $72.

In other words, there is the actual number of jobs passed that day, the price we actually got for them, and the extensions are accurate and the totals are correct; the total of gross is totaled correctly, the gross number of the total amount of the value of those gross are the two figures that are put on that financial report, 791 gross jobs, $2367.75, which I found correct, but in getting the average price, you notice 50.1 cents down below here, I tried to get it approximately, because nobody cares if it cost so small a fraction—the average price of those jobs, 50.1 cents and,6-100ths —that 6-100ths is so small I couldn't handle it, so I stopped at the decimal. Now, in arriving at the total number of pencils and the total value of pencils, which are the two figures really important, I, divided one by the other.

Data for Financial Sheet

I also used, In getting up the data for the financial sheet, by the way, one of the most important sheets is this every little sheet here. It looks very small, but the work connected with it is very large. Now, some of the time that I spent on the work are gotten from the reports which are handed in by the various forewomen. Now, you saw on the stand this morning Mr. Irby Wheeler, the superintendent of the lead plant; there is the report of the amount of lead cut and packed, two gross of it; the different kinds of lead, No. 10 lead, No. 940, No. 2 and No. 320, and a lot of sort.

No, here is a pencil with a little rubber stuck on the end; we only put six inches of lead in that, and stick rubber in the end. Now, here is the report of L. A. Quinn, foreman of the tipping plant. He reports the total amount of work of the various machines; that is, the large eyelet machine, the small eyelet machine and the other machines.

Then he notates the amounts of the various tips used that he had made during the week. Now, I expect twenty-two, different kinds of tips, and one of them is a re-tip, and we never count a re-tip as a production. Now, this was out for the week ending April 24, by Mr. Irby, the shipping clerk; that is the amount of gross pencils that he ships day by day. There were shipped 266 gross the first day, which was Friday; in this case, Friday, the 18th of April; 562 gross the second day, which was Saturday, a half day, the 19th day of April; 784 gross on Monday, which was April 21; 1,232 gross (that was an exceptional day over shipped on Tuesday, April 22; 572 gross shipped on Wednesday, April 23, and 957 gross, also a very large day, shipped on April 24, a product. Now, this was, there is another little slip of paper here that requires one of the most complicated operations of this entire financial, and I will explain it.

The Repack Calculation.

It shows the repack, and I notice at the bottom of this it says here 4-17, when it ought to be 4-18; in other words, it goes from 4-17 through 4-18, and should be spotten up by Miss Eula May; you will notice it is O. K'd by her. Miss Eula May handed in the forelady, packed that; that is the amount of pencils used in our assortment boxes, or display boxes. That is one of the tricks of the trade, when we have some slow mover, some pencil that doesn't move very fast, we take something that is fancy and put some new, bright looking pencils with them, with these slow movers. That is a trick that all manufacturers use, and in packing these assortment boxes, which are packed under the direction of Miss Flowers, we send into the shipping room and get some pencils which have already been packed, pencils that have been on the shelf a year for all we know, and bring them in and unpack them and repack them in the display box. Therefore, it is very necessary in figuring out the financial sheet to get in detail the amount of goods packed and just how many of those pencils had already been figured in some past financial report. We don't want to record it twice, or else our totals will be incorrect. Therefore, this little slip showing the amount of goods which were repacked is very necessary. That was figured by me, and was figured by me on that Saturday afternoon, April 22. There were eighteen gross of 35-x pencils selling for $1.25; eighteen gross for $22.50. It shows right here, I figured that out. That is my writing right down there. Eighteen gross 35-x, $1.25, $22.50; ten gross of 330-x figuring at $25; that added up as you will see, to $70.

Transfer of Figures

In other words, there were 40 gross of pencils, 36 gross of which sell in our medium price goods; 86 gross 35-x; 10 gross 930-x, $2.50, that is a high price goods. Therefore, the repack for that week was 36 gross medium priced goods and 10 gross of high price goods. I will show you how where the $70.00 is and where the 36 gross is, and where the 10 gross figured in the financial sheet.

There is a little sheet stuck up here in the corner attached to the record of the factory record of pencils manufactured during that week. That shows the production, divided into the following classes: Cheap goods—that is, pencils that sell outside of Jobs—those we figure at 60 cents a gross. Then there is the rubber insert, which we figure 85 cents a gross; and then the job and then the medium; the medium being all goods up to a certain grade that contains the cheap lead and the good being all those that contain a better class of lead. Now, Mr. Schiff had entered it up to and through Wednesday, and had failed to enter Thursday, and to figure it. This sheet shows the total of the three classes of goods packed from day to day.

Few Clerks Understood Sheet

Now, I have had very few clerks at Forsyth street, or anywhere else for that matter, that could figure out this sheet successfully and accurately. It involves a great deal of work and one has to have exceptional care and accuracy in making it out. You notice that the gross production here is 2765 1-2. That gives the net production. The gross production is nothing more than the total of the total added to the proven addition of these sheets containing the pencils packed.

This one little sheet right here represents the pencils packed the week of April 17—that week's production. Now, this little sheet I had to work on, showing the pencils that were repacked, going into the display boxes, and the numbers, and subtracted from each the total amount, 46 from, 2,765 1-2, which leaves 2,719 1-2; in other words, I just deducted the amount that had been repacked, that is the stock room and repacked from the total amount that was stated to be packed, showing the amount of repacked goods. Now, all I had to do was to copy that off; it had been figured once. The value of the repack was $787.50; that was good from the cash box, and it would have gone under the item of extra payroll.

I don't know whether that occurred this week or not. However, I added up the total cash I actually had on hand then—$1,554—and that is what I loaned to Mr. White brought it up to $30.54, the actual amount, which the cash book showed. Now on the left hand side of this book, the debits for the week between April 21 which was Monday, previous to April 26, it being a record simply of the petty cash used by us, showed that we had a balance on hand the Monday morning June of $30.54 cents.

On April 22 we drew a check for $25, and on April 24 we drew another check for $15. It was agreed that we would draw a check for $15 and over to Mr. Sig Montag to sign it; so that week all we got from the treasury was $30, and $29.85 already on hand, made $59.85, which was the total amount we had to account for.

When we spend, of course, we credit it. There once was a time when as we paid out money, we would write it down on this book. But now it was much easier, however, to keep a little voucher book, and let each and every person sign for money they got, and we have not only this record, but this record on the receipt book.

The first entry on this is 15 cents there—on the 19th of April, the National Pencil company gave 15 cents to Newt Lee for kerosene.

Wrote Newt Lee's Name

Newt Lee's name is there, but he didn't write it. I wrote it; my initials are on it. I was there when he got the money, but I thought he couldn't write, and I signed his name. Whenever I sign anybody's name, my initials are under it. The next item is 75 cents for typewriter rent, next item $2 (paragraph 4th of April).

That is Truman McCrary's receipt—he has a very legible handwriting—he is one of the little stamps stamped on there. The next item is for cases; some negro signed his voucher down there. So on there—out the book, cases, express, drayage, postage, parcel post, etc.

Now, after counting the money, finding how much or how little there was in the cash box, the next thing I do is to take this little vouch book, and go over the different items that were all alike together.

This sheet has been identified and you notice that there are four items of drayage grouped together, the total being $6.70. I just counted that out of the cash right there, $6.70. Then I don't have to put drayage down in this book from the journal; just make one entry of drayage for the four times we paid drayage together, which gives the same total and makes the book look a great deal neater.

So on throughout, five items of cases, two items of postage, two items of parcels post, one item, two weeks' rent on an extra typewriter, 45 cents for supplies for Mr. Schwenas' department, foreman on the third floor, 25 cents for the payment of a very small bill to King Hardware company. $11.50 is a standing item for a small job he had done, 5 cents for thread and 10 cents for car fare, one item.

Then this young man, Harold Wright, of whom I spoke, omitted from the payroll, I added this up, and that was $39.75, and transferred it from here to there, then made the balance in the usual way, checking it against the money on hand, that I had in the cash box that night, and after checking and reckoning it, and finding no money missing, from any source that we could trace, found that it was $4.84 short in the cash box, which was due to shortages in payroll in the past three months.

Heard Newt Lee Come In and Ring Clock.

I finished this work that I have just outlined at about five minutes to 6, and I proceeded to take out the clock entries from the clock, which were used that day and replace them. I won't show you these slips, but the slips that I put in that night were stamped each day in ink, with a rubber dating stamp, "April 28," at the bottom, opposite the word "date."

Now, in reference to these time slips and the reason that the date April 28 was put on these slips, which was put into the clocks that night—Saturday night—no one was coming down to the factory on Sunday, as far as I knew, or as far as custom went, to put the slips in the clocks and, therefore, we had to put the slips into the clock dated with the date on which the help were coming into the factory to go about their regular duties and register on the Monday following, which, in this case, was April 28. So that each one of these slips Newt Lee would register his punches Saturday night, and on Sunday night he would register his punches on Monday night would be registered on two new slips that would be put into the clock on Monday night. As I was putting these time slips into the clock, as mentioned, I saw Newt Lee coming up the alley, and looking at the clocks, it was as near as may be 6 o'clock—looking straight at the clock— I finished putting the slip in and went back to wash up, and as I was washing, I heard Newt Lee ring the bell on the clock when he registered the first punch, I suppose, and he went down stairs to the front door to wait my departure. After washing, I went down stairs—I put on my hat and cashcoat—got my hat and top coat and went down stairs to the front door.

Came Home For His Shoes

As I opened the front door I saw outside on the street, on the street side of the door, Newt Lee in conversation with Mr. J. M. Gantt, a man that I had let go from the office two weeks previous. They seemed to be in discussion, and Newt Lee told me that Mr. Gantt wanted to go back up into the factory and he had refused him admission, because his instructions were for no one to go back into the factory after he went out, unless he got contrary instructions from Mr. Darley or myself. I spoke to Mr. Gantt, and asked him what he wanted. He said he had a couple pairs of shoes, a black pair and a tan pair in the shipping room. I told Newt Lee it would be all right to pass Gantt in, and Gantt went in, Newt Lee closing the door and locking it after him—I heard the bolt turn in the door. I then walked up to Forsyth street to Alabama, down Alabama to Broad street, where I posted two letters, one to my uncle, Mr. M. Frank, and one to Mr. Pappenheimer, a few minutes after 6, and continued on my way down to Jacobs' Whitehall and Alabama street store, where I went in and got a drink at the soda fount and bought my wife a box of candy. I then caught the Georgia avenue car and arrived home about 6:25. I sat looking at the paper until about 6:30, when I called up at the factory to find out if Mr. Gantt had left.

Called up Lee On the Phone

"I called up at 6:30 because I expected Newt Lee would be punching the clock on the half hour and would be just enough time for the telephone to hear it and answer it at that time. I couldn't get Newt Lee then, so I sat in the hall reading until 7 o'clock, when I again called the factory; this time I was successful in getting Newt Lee and asked him if Mr. Gantt had come again; he said "Yes." I asked if everything else was alright at the factory; I was told that all was hunky up. I sat down and had supper, and after supper, I phoned over to my brother-in-law, Mr. Hugh Dobbs comes along with a water sprinkler and sprinkles it to sweep it up, and they go over the top of that, it don't sink into the floor, and the result is there is cast after coat of grease and dirt on that floor.

Stains May Have Been Blood, But—

Now, with reference to those spots that are claimed to be blood that Mr. Barrett found, I don't claim they are not blood, they may have been, they are right close to the ladies' dressing room, and we have had accidents there, and by the way, in reference to those accidents, the accidents of which we have had records, are not the only accidents that have happened there. For instance, a person cuts a finger; that is an accident. We give first aid to the injured in the office, and we call a hack and they go home. The only reports we have are of those accidents that incapacitate the girls, where they demand the money for the time that they have lost due to the accident, and we will have our employers' Liability Insurance company to pay the employee. But where people just cut their finger and they come back to work we don't make any record of that, and we have people cut their fingers there very often, and when they cut their fingers, the line of travel is right by that place where Mr. Barrett found those spots, right to the office.

"Now, we use paint and varnish around there, a great deal of it, and while I don't say that those are not blood, it may be, but it could also have been paint. I have seen the girls drop bottles of ink, paint or varnish and have them break there on the floor. I have seen that happen right close to that spot.

But the main point about it is this, gentlemen: when I got down and looked at it, you could have scratched away from the top of those dark stains an accumulation of dirt that was not the accumulation of a day or two days or three days, or three weeks, but it was at least three months, from off the top of those spots, without touching the spot itself.

Moreover, that white stuff was unquestionably, in my opinion, hasoline compound, and it was dry and it had to be put on, because it showed all evidences of having been swept, so it had to be put on the wood in a liquid state.

If that had been fresh red paint, or if that had been fresh red blood, and that hasoline compound, that soap in it, which is a great solvent, should have been put on there in a liquid state. It would not have showed up white, as it showed up then, but it would have showed up either pink or red, and where the spot of blood was, or whatever it was, that stuff was white, and not pink or red.

Saw Where Chips Had Been Cut Out

I returned after making this examination from which I noticed two or three or four chips had been knocked up, the boys told me, by the police that morning. I returned to my office and gathered up what papers I had to take over to the Montag Brothers, and I took over the financial report which I had made out on Saturday afternoon previous, and talked it over with Mr. Sig Montag.

I had a good long conversation with Mr. Montag with reference to the occurrences that morning, and we decided that since the papers had stated that I was being detained at headquarters, it would be best to let my uncle, who was ill, and who is an elderly man, being over seventy years of age, and who was on the point of taking a trip to Europe, and I didn't want him to be unnecessarily alarmed by seeing in the papers that I was detained, and I wrote a telegram to Mr. Adolph Montag informing him that I was no longer in custody, that I was all right, and that he could communicate that to my uncle.

That was so that my uncle should not get hold of an Atlanta paper and see that I was in custody and be unnecessarily alarmed.

I returned from Montag Brothers to the pencil factory, being accompanied by one of the traveling men, Mr. Hines, Mr. Sol Hines, and on my arrival at the factory I went up into the office and distributed the various papers all over the factory to be acted on the next day.

In a few minutes Mr. Harry Scott, of the Pinkerton detectives, came in and I took him aside into my office, my private office, and spoke to him in the presence of Mr. M. V. Darley and Mr. Herbert Schiff. I told him that I expected that he had been what had happened at the pencil factory by reading the newspapers, and knew all the details.

Gave Details to Harry Scott

He said he didn't read the newspapers and didn't know the details, so I sat down and gave him all the details that I could, and in addition I told him something which Mr. Darley had that afternoon communicated to me, viz.: that Mrs. White had told him that on going into the factory at about 12 o'clock noon on Saturday, April 26, she had seen some negros down by the elevator shaft. Mr. Darley had told me this and I just told this to Mr. Scott.

After I told Mr. Scott all that I could, I took him around the building. Took him first back to the metal room and showed him the place where he had been found, and looked at the machinery and at the lathe, looked at the table on which the lathe stands, and looked at the bed and the floor underneath the lathe, and there wasn't a spot, much less a blood spot underneath.

I showed him the other spot in front of the dressing room, and I took him to the fourth floor and showed him where I had seen White and Denham a little before the first time and about 3 the second time.

Saw Detective Pick Up Cord

Then I took him down into the basement and made a thorough search of the basement, and that included an examination of the elevator well which was at the bottom of the elevator shaft, and I noticed Mr. Scott was foraging around down there and he picked up two or three or maybe four articles and put them in his pocket, and one of them I specially noticed was a piece of cord exactly like that which had been found around the little girl's neck. We then went back and I showed him where the officer said the slipper had been found, the hat had been found and the little girl's body was located. I showed him, in fact, everything that the officers had showed us. Then I opened the back door and we made a thorough search of the alleyway and went up and down the alleyway and then went down that alleyway to Hunter street and down Hunter to Forsyth and up Forsyth in front of the pencil factory. In front of the pencil factory I had quite a little talk with Mr. Scott as to the rate of the Pinkerton detective agency. He told me what they were and I had Mr. Schiff to telephone to Mr. Montag to find out if those rates were satisfactory.

Pinkertons Are Engaged

He phoned back the answer that he would engage them for a few days at any rate. Mr. Scott then said: "Well, I don't need anything more," and he said, "The Pinkertons in this case, according to their usual custom in ferreting out the perpetrator of this crime, will work hand in hand with the city officers." I said: "All right, that suits me." And he went on his way. About that time my brother-in-law joined the group over in front of the factory and after talking for some time my father-in-law and I left and arrived home about 6:30, I should judge, and found there my mother-in-law and my wife and Minola McKnight, and we had supper.

After supper my two brothers-in-law and their wives came over to visit with us and they stayed until about 10 o'clock, after which my wife and I retired.

On Tuesday morning I arose some time between 7 and 7:30, leisurely dressed and took my breakfast and caught the 8:10 car coming towards town, the Georgia avenue car, and when I went to get on the car I met a young man by the name of Dickler and I remember paying the fare for both of us. When I arrived at the pencil factory about 8:30, I immediately entered upon my routine work sending the various orders to the various places in the factory where they were due to go, and about 9:30 I went on my usual trip over to Montag Brothers to see the general manager.

Scott and Black Come for Him

After staying over there a short while I returned in company with another one of their traveling men, Mr. Jordan. At the corner of Forsyth and Hunter streets I met up with a cousin of my wife's, a Mr. Selig, and we had a drink at Cruickshank's soda fount at the corner of Hunter and Forsyth. Then I went up into the factory and separated the papers I had brought back with me from Montag Brothers, putting them in the proper places, and sending the proper papers to the different places.

I was working along in the regular routine of my work, in the factory and about the office, and a little later Detectives Scott and Black came up to the factory and said: "Mr. Frank, we want you to go down to headquarters with us," and I went with them.

We went down to headquarters in an automobile and they took me up to Chief Lanford's office.

I sat up there and answered any questions that he desired, and I had been sitting there some time when Detective Scott and Detective Black came back with a bundle under their arm. They showed me a little piece of material of some shirt, and asked me if I had a shirt of that material.

I looked at it and told them I didn't think I ever had a shirt of that description. In the meantime they brought in Newt Lee, the night watchman, brought him up from a cell and showed him the same sample. He looked at it and immediately recognized it: he said he had a shirt like that, but he didn't remember having worn it for two years. If I remember correctly, that is what he said.

Detectives Show Him Bloody Shirt

Detectives Scott and Black then opened the package they had and disclosed the full shirt of that material that had all the appearance of being freshly stained with blood, and had a very distinct odor. Newt Lee was taken back to the cell.

After a time Chief Lanford came over to me and began an examination of my face and of my head and my hands and my arms. I suppose he was trying to hunt to see if he could find any scratches. He stayed in there until about 12 o'clock, when Mr. Rosser came in and spoke to the detectives, or to Chief Beavers.

After talking with Chief Beavers he came over to me and said to me that Chief Beavers thought it better that I should stay down there. He says: "He thinks it better that you be detained at headquarters, but if you desire, you don't need to be locked up in a cell, you can engage a supernumerary policeman who will guard you and give you the freedom of the building."

I immediately acquiesced, supposing that I couldn't do anything else and Mr. Rosser left. Now, after this time, it was about this time they took me from upstairs to the district sergeant's desk and Detective Starnes—John M. Starnes, I think his name is—came in and dictated from the original notes that were found near the body, dictated to me to get a sample of my handwriting. Have you got those photographs there? (Photographs handed to the defendant.)

Wrote Notes For Officers

I wrote this note at the dictation of Mr. Starnes, which was given to me word by word, and, of course, I wrote it myself. When a word was spelled differently usually stopped—take this word "boy," for instance, the detective told me how that was spelled so they could see my exact letters, and compare with the original notes.

Now, I had no hesitation in giving him a specimen of my handwriting. Now, this photograph is a reproduction of the note. You see, J. N. Starnes in the corner here, that is Detective Starnes, and then is dated right here, and that there myself so I would be able to recognize it again, in case they tried any evasion or anything like that. It is a photographic reproduction of something that was written in pencil, as near as one can judge, a photographic reproduction of the note that I wrote. Detective Starnes then took me down to the desk sergeant where they searched me and entered my name on the book under a charge of suspicion. Then they took me back into a small room and I sat there for awhile while my father-in-law was arranging for a supernumerary police to guard me for the night.

Midnight Interview

They took me then to a room on the top of the building and I sat in the room there and either read magazines or newspapers and talked to my friends who came to see me until—I was about about to retire at midnight. I had the cover of my cot turned back and I was going to bed when Detective Scott and Detective Black, at midnight, Tuesday, April 29, came in and said:

"Mr. Frank, we would like to talk to you a little bit. Come in and talk to us."

I says: "Sure, I will be only too glad to." I went with them to a little room on the top floor of the headquarters. In that room was Detective Scott and Detective Black and myself. They stressed the possibility of couples having been let into the factory at night by the night watchman, Newt Lee.

I told them that I didn't know anything about it, that if I had, I certainly would have put a stop to it long ago. They said: "Mr. Frank, you have never talked along with Newt Lee. You are his boss and he respects you. See what you can do with him. We can't get anything more out of him, see if you can." I says: "All right, I understand what you mean; I will do my best," because I was only too willing to help.

Suggestions by Detectives

Black says: "Now put it strong to him, put it up strong to him and tell him to cough up and tell all he knows. Tell him that you are here and that he is here and that he better open up and tell all he knows about happenings at the pencil factory that Saturday night, or you will both go to hell." Those were the detectives' exact words.

I told Mr. Black I caught his meaning, and in a few minutes afterwards Detective Starnes brought up Newt Lee from the cell room. They put Newt Lee into a room and handcuffed him to a chair. I spoke to him at some length in there, but I couldn't get anything additional out of him.

He said he knew nothing about couples coming in there at night, and remembering the instructions Mr. Black had given me I said: "Now, Newt, you are here and I am here, and you had better open up and tell all you know, and tell the truth and tell the full truth, because you will get in both into lots of trouble if you don't tell all you know," and he answered me like an old negro, "Before God, Mr. Frank, I am telling you the truth and I have told you all I know."

His Third Degree Initiation

And the conversation ended right there. Within a minute or two afterwards the detectives came back into the room, that is, Detective Scott and Detective Black, and then began questioning Newt Lee, and then it was that I had my first initiation into the third degree of the Atlanta police department. The way that fellow Black cursed at that poor old negro, Newt Lee, was something awful. He shrieked at him; he hallowed at him; he cursed and did everything but beat him. Then they took Newt Lee down to a cell and I went to my cot in the outer room.

Insinuations and Accusations

Now before closing my statement I wish to touch upon a couple of insinuations and accusations other than the one on the bill of indictment, that have been leveled against me so far during the trial. The first is this, the fact that I would not talk to the detectives; that I would not see Jim Conley. Well, let's look into the facts a few minutes and see whether there was any reason for that, or if there be any truth in that statement.

On Sunday morning I was taken down to the undertaker's establishment, to the factory, and I went to headquarters. I went to headquarters the second time, going there willingly without anybody coming for me. On each occasion I answered them frankly and unreservedly, giving them the benefit of the best of my knowledge, answering all and any of their questions, and discussing the matter generally with them.

On Monday they came for me again. I went down and answered any and all of their questions and gave them a statement which they took down in writing, because thought it was right and I was only too glad to do it. I answered them and told them all that I knew, answering all questions.

Tuesday I was down at police station again, and answered every question and discussed the matter freely and openly with them, not only with the police, but with the reporters who were around there; talked to Pinkertons, came to see me and entered my name on the book under a charge of suspicion. Then they took me back into a small room and I sat there for awhile while my father-in-law was arranging for a supernumerary police to guard me for the night.

They took me then to a room on the top of the building and I sat in the room there and either read magazines or newspapers and talked to my friends who came to see me until—I was about about to retire at midnight. Day on Which Conley Was Arrested

Let's look into that. On May 1 I was taken to the Tower. On the same date, as I understand it, the negro Conley was arrested. I didn't know anybody had any suspicions about him. His name was not in the papers. He was an unknown quantity.

The police were not looking out for him; they were looking out for me. They didn't want him, and I had no inkling that he ever said he couldn't write.

I was sitting in that cell in the Fulton county jail—it was along about April 12, April 13 or 14th—that Mr. Leo Gottheimer, a salesman for the National Pencil company, came running over, and says: "Leo, the Pinkerton detectives have suspicions of Conley.

"He keeps saying he cant write; can't write; these fellows over at the factory know well enough that he can write, can't he?"

I said: "Sure he can write." "We can't prove it. The nigger says he can't write and we feel that he can write." I said: "I know he can write. I have received many notes from him asking me to loan him money. I have received too many notes from him not to know that he can not write. In other words, I have received notes signed with his name purporting to have been written by him, though I have never seen him to this date use a pencil."

I thought awhile and then I said: "Now, I tell you; if you will look into a drawer in the safe you will find the card of a jeweler from whom Conley bought a watch on the installment. Now, perhaps if you go to that jeweler you may find some sort of a receipt that Conley had to give and be able to prove that Conley can write". Well, Gottheimer took that information back to the Pinkertons; they did just as I said; they got the contract with Conley's name on it, got back evidently to Scott and then he told the negro to write. Gentlemen, the man who found out or paved the way to find out that Jim Conley could write is sitting right here in this chair. That is the truth about it.

Had Never Seen Dalton to Know Him

The statement of the witness Dalton is utterly false as far as coming to my office and being introduced to me by the woman Daisy Hopkins is concerned. If Dalton was ever in the factory building with any woman, I didn't know it. I never saw Dalton in my life to know him until this crime.

In reply to the statement of Miss Irene Jackson, she is wholly mistaken in supposing that I ever went to a lady's dressing room for the purpose of making improper glances into the girls' room. I have no recollection of occasions of which she speaks, but I do know that the ladies' dressing room on the fourth floor is a mere room in which the girls change their outer clothing.

There was no bath or toilet in that room, and it had windows opening onto the street. There was no lock on the door, and I know I never went into that room at any hour when the girls were dressing. These girls were supposed to be at their work at 7 o'clock.

Occassionally I have had reports that these girls were flirting from this dressing room through the windows with men. It is also true that sometimes the girls would loiter in this room when they ought to have been doing their work. It is possible that on some occasions I looked into this room to see if the girls were doing their duty and were not using this room as a place for loitering and for flirting.

These girls were not supposed to be dressing in that room after 7 o'clock, and I know that I never looked into that room at any hour when I had any reason to suppose in.

Wife Was At Station to See Him

Then that other insinuation, an insinuation that is dastardly, that is beyond the appreciation of a human being, that is, that my wife didn't visit me in the room of the matter is this: That on April 29, the date I was taken in custody at police headquarters, my wife was there to see me, she was downstairs on the first floor; I was up on the top floor.

She was there almost in hysterics, having been brought there by her two brothers-in-law and her father. Rabbi Marx was with me at the time. I consulted with him as to the advisability of allowing my dear wife to come up to the top floor to see me in those surroundings with *city detectives, reporters and snap*shoters. I thought I would save her that humiliation, and I did from my sight, because I expected any day to be turned loose and be returned once more to her side at home.

Gentlemen, we did all we could do to restrain her in the first days when I was down at the jail from coming on down down to the jail, but she was perfectly willing to even be locked up with me and share my incarceration.

Gentlemen, I know nothing whatever of the death of little Mary Phagan, and Mrs. Phagan, and Conley's statement as to his coming up and helping me dispose of the body, and that I had anything to do with her or to do with him that day, is a monstrous lie.

The story as to women coming into the factory with me for immoral purposes is a base lie, and the few occasions that he claims to have come in indecent positions with women is a lie so vile that I have no language with which to fitly denounce it.

I have no rich relatives in Brooklyn, N. Y. My father is an invalid. My father and mother together are people of very limited means, who have barely enough upon which to live.

My father is not able to work. I have no relative who has any means at all, except Mr. M. Frank, who lives in Atlanta, Ga. Nobody has raised a fund to pay the fees of my attorneys. These fees have been paid by the sacrifice in part of the small property which my parents possess.

Gentlemen, some newspaper men have called me "the silent man in the Tower," and I kept my silence and my counsel advisedly, until the proper time and place. The time is now; the place is here, and I have told you the truth, the whole truth.

Give Your Wife A Suit Case

Don't let her go away this summer with that same old battered case she has used for years. Think how much pleasure a brand-new case would add to her trip.

And we've a suit case to delight her. A beautiful long-grain black leather case lined with rich moire. Brass clasps and hinges and sturdy brass lock. It would be an unusual value at $7. Our price is the identification. I myself erased the words 'taken out' at 8:26."

ATTORNEY SWEARS WITNESS WAS HELD ILLEGALLY BY POLICE

Roberts was announced as the last witness for the defense. He was expected to testify regarding Mrs. Lucile Frank calling at the pail to see her husband. It was thought that the defense would close with his testimony, and that the state would begin then the introduction of its rebuttal evidence.

CONLEY'S CUSTODIAN CALLED.

Roberts testified that he is the inner jailer of the Fulton county tower.

"Have you had the custody of Jim Conley for the last three weeks," asked Mr. Arnold. "Since he has been on the stand here?"

"Yes."

"State whether or not he has asked you for any newspapers or magazines."

Solicitor Dorsey objected. "I think Conley should be present to deny this," said he. "If there is anything to this charge, they've got to lay a proper foundation."

Judge Roan asked Attorney Arnold the purpose of the question.

"The witness said, your honor, that he could read but very little. We want to show that he has been asking for newspapers and magazines. I don't care to point out to the court much in this way. Perhaps I may have to coll Conley back and ask him the questions later on." Turning to the witness, Mr. Arnold said, "That is all for the present, Mr. Roberts." The jailer stepped from the stand.

ROSSER GOES OUT FOR MEDICINE.

Previous to the time when Roberts took the stand, Attorney Rosser had taken his hat and coat and left the court. After waiting a few minutes, Judge Roan asked Attorney Arnold what the defense intended to do. "Just wait until Mr. Rosser comes back," replied Mr. Arnold. "He has stepped across the street to get some medicine, and I had rather he would be here when the defense announces closed."

Judge Roan waited a few moments more, then told the state to proceed.

STATE TO CALL DOCTORS.

It has been learned that four of the following list of physicians will take the stand for the state to uphold Dr. H. F. Harris, whose testimony has been attacked by the defense: Dr. George F. Mitsell, Dr. Frank S. Eskridge, Dr. John Funke, Dr. Samuel Inman, Dr. W. C. Athens, president of state board of health; Dr. Howard, Williams, of Macon, vice president of the state board of health; Dr. Charles Johnson, stomach specialist, and Dr. J. D. Cromer, of Atlanta.

Immediately after Judge Roan instructed the state to proceed, Mrs. Daisy Hopkins was called as the state's first witness.

DAISY HOPKINS RECALLED.

Solicitor Dorsey said that he would not proceed just at that time with the state's case but would recall Mrs. Daisy Hopkins, one of the witnesses for the defense to the stand, to occupy the interval.

Mrs. Hopkins was questioned by Solicitor Dorsey.

"You know nothing about the cot in the pencil factory basement?"

"No. I don't know anything about it."

Solicitor Dorsey directed her attention to the diagram of the pencil factory and pointed out the exact location where the cot was found. He asked her if she had never been down the step ladder into the basement. She denied any knowledge of the cot, the basement and the step-ladder, saying that all she knew was of the stairway leading to the second floor.

Solicitor Dorsey asked the witness if she was acquainted with J. R. Floyd, of Redan, Ga. After some hesitation she replied that she knew him. The solicitor asked her if she had ever had a conversation with him since the murder occurred, and she declared that she had not.

"Didn't you go to his house and get milk and talk to him after this murder was committed?"

"I did get some milk from him, but I am pretty sure it was before the murder."

Solicitor Dorsey asked the witness if she was acquainted with Bob Goddard, Dr. R. S. Pound, Mr. Smith, of the Nunnally-McCrea company; Mr. Dillard, Walter P. Merck. The witness admitted knowing all of these except Merck, and finally admitted that by the solicitor admitted that she knows him.

CONVERSATION WITH MERCK.

"Do you remember meeting Merck at the corner of Alabama and Whitehall streets one Sunday afternoon?"

"I remember meeting him one Saturday evening up there on Peachtree street."

"Did asked you where you were going, didn't he?"

"He asked me where I was staying, and I told him I was staying at Redan."

"Didn't you tell him that you then were going to the pencil factory?"

"No, I told him I was staying at Redan."

"Didn't he try to make an engagement to go with you to the pencil factory?"

To this question Attorney Rosser, who had returned, objected.

Mr. Rosser argued that the state might show a female witness' general reputation for virtue or immorality, but that he could not single out a particular alleged act and put it in evidence.

Solicitor Dorsey declared that he expected to show by Merck that he met Daisy one Saturday afternoon; that she told him she was on the way to the pencil factory to meet her foreman; that she met him, but that she had made an engagement to meet Merck that night at her home on Walker street, and that she did meet Merck.

"I imagine that this will bring up things which should not be discussed in the presence of the jury," said Mr. Rosser.

Judge Roan ordered the jury to leave.

LADIES LEAVE COUT ROOM.

Solicitor Dorsey: "On account of the nature of this discussion I suggest that the ladies (referring to Frank's wife and mother) leave the room." They hesitated, and the solicitor continued: "I merely think they should be given that privilege before we go into this."

They left.

Solicitor Dorsey: "I want to show that this witness (Daisy) has not only met Daisy Hopkins that night, but that she told him where she had been and what she had done; and that she showed him the prints on her body and told him of an experience, and explained that she could not meet him that night.

"This woman has denied that she ever went to the factory for any improper purpose, and I should be given the privilege of impeaching her."

Attorney Arnold: "I know when your honor refused to rule out certain parts of Conley's testimony and Dalton's testimony, it would so involve the case that we would lose track of the murder charge on trial. We have been so obscured now that it is hard to tell who is on trial and what for. We have confined ourselves strictly to combatting the direct charges made by Conley and by Dalton. We were compelled to put this witness up for that reason. Frank is not responsible for all the misconduct that has been going on in Atlanta for the last ten years, and we do not think the issue should be clouded with it."

Judge Roan: "It has come down to this: An effort to prove a crime that is irrelevant to the issue. I hold that you can show that this woman did go to the factory, in an effort to impeach her."

Solicitor Dorsey: "Can't we show why she went there?"

Mr. Arnold: "We have never tried to show that there was no improper conduct in the factory. We have asked all our witnesses specifically if they went there to meet Frank."

JUDGE LIMITS TESTIMONY.

Judge Roan: "The state can show the witness did go to the factory, but it cannot show for what purpose. Call in the jury."

Solicitor Dorsey (as the jury was coming in): "Your honor, I intend to ask these questions and let your honor rule them out before the jury."

Mr. Rosser: "That is manifestly unfair."

Judge Roan: "Yes, Mr. Dorsey, you cannot ask the questions."

Solicitor Dorsey intimated by his manner of receiving the judge's ruling that he believed the state's case was affected vitally by it.

"Did you meet this man Merck on Saturday afternoon after the National Pencil factory had closed?" asked the solicitor.

"I did not," answered Mrs. Hopkins.

"And after that didn't he go to see you at the junction of Walker and Peters streets, where you lived?"

"No."

"Didn't you tell him that afternoon you had been to the pencil factory?"

"I did not."

"Come down," said the solicitor.

DEFENSE RESTS CASE.

Solicitor Dorsey asked the court: "I suppose the defense has finished?" Mr. Arnold answered: "Yes, we rest."

The solicitor then called a number of witnesses to impeach Mrs. Daisy Hopkins.

FIRST REBUTTAL WITNESS.

J. R. Floyd, a farmer of Redan, was the first witness in rebuttal for the state. After he had testified that he knew Daisy, Solicitor Dorsey asked, "Do you know how many husbands she has?"

Attorney Rosser objected: "I don't care if she has 300."

Judge Roan added the solicitor the purpose of his question. "She said she had one. I want to prove she had more," said the solicitor.

Judge Roan said: "Well, did anybody ever have more than one husband?" A ripple of laughter went through court.

"I think they have, in a certain sense," said the solicitor.

Judge Roan ruled the question out, sustaining Mr. Rosser.

The witness testified that he knew Mrs. Hopkins' character for truth and veracity, and that it is bad. He testified also that in conversation at his home in Redan when Mrs. Hopkins called to get some milk one day, Mrs. Hopkins had exhibited knowledge of the cot in the basement of the pencil factory; this, after the murder and after the existence of the cot had been brought to light.

ATTACKS MRS. HOPKINS' VERACITY.

The following other witnesses, one at a time, testified that Daisy Hopkins' character is bad and that they would not believe her on oath: R. M. Goddard, a DeKalb county farmer who lives near Redan, who said he had known her twenty years; A. L. Goddard, of Stone Mountain, who had known her ten or twelve years; Henry Carr, of Stone Mountain, who also had known her for fifteen years.

During the questioning of these witnesses, Solicitor Dorsey asked them all if they knew the general character and reputation of Mrs. Hopkins. When the last witness was on the stand Attorney Rosser objected to the question in that form. Mr. Rosser said that the only way her character could be attacked was by truth and veracity, and he demanded that these words be employed by the solicitor in asking the character question. Although Judge Roan ruled with Solicitor Dorsey, that it was not necessary, the prosecutor finally consented to avoid his question as desired by the defense.

N. J. Dollard, who lives in Alabama, a second cousin of Daisy Hopkins, said that he would not believe her on oath.

Attorney Rosser, cross-examining him briefly, shouting at him because the witness was hard of hearing, demanded, "What kin are you?"

"Second cousin, I think," said the witness.

"Did you come all the way from Alabama to testify that your second cousin is not of good character?"

"No. I've been here some time."

A forfeiture of a bond assessed against Daisy Hopkins in an Atlanta court was tendered by the solicitor, but was ruled out by Judge Roan on objection by the defense.

Len Smith was called. He is superintendent of the Nunnally-McCrea company. He impeached Daisy Hopkins.

DALTON IS UPHELD.

J. T. Hearn, of Walton county, testified that from his knowledge of the character of C. B. Dalton he would believe Dalton on oath.

R. V. Johnson, of Walton county, testified that he would believe C. B. Dalton on oath.

Attorney Rosser asked Johnson if he had not told Harry Gottheimer that he would not believe Dalton on oath. This the witness denied, stating that Dalton worked for him five years and that he knew Dalton.

W. M. Cook, a dairyman and farmer of Social Circle, Ga., testified that he would believe Dalton on oath.

The following other witnesses testified that they would believe C. B. Dalton on oath: W. J. Elder, of Decatur; A. B. Houston, of Decatur; J. T. Born, of DeKalb county; W. M. Wright, 67 English avenue, Atlanta, general manager of the Independent Transfer company; C. B. Hollinsworth, architect and builder of DeKalb county; F. B. Heflin, of 121 Gordon street, a contractor W. C. Hille, of 158 Kirkwood avenue, City Councilman; J. Boyce.

While these character witnesses were testifying, the attorneys wrangled continuously over forms and technicalities.

Several of the foregoing character witnesses, after testifying to Dalton's character was bad, but that more recently it has changed for the better, and that they would believe him on oath.

The following other character witnesses testified for Dalton: M. G. Caldwell, business manager of Atlanta, who had known Dalton eighteen or nineteen years; J. W. Hunt, of 18 Trinity avenue, who was raised with Dalton in Walton county; Policeman W. T. Patrick, who has known Dalton in Atlanta for the past six years.

HURT HAND IN METAL ROOM.

Jesse E. Duffy, formerly employed by the National Pencil company in the metal room, was called as the next witness, and testified that he worked at the factory during a few months of 1912. He did not know whether the period of his employment there included last October.

"Do you know Charley Lee?" asked the solicitor.

"Yes. He's a machinist at the pencil factory."

"Were you ever hurt there?"

"Yes."

In answer to other questions, the witness said he did not remember the date he was injured, and that he had not worked there since. He was hurt in the metal room on the office floor, he said. The forefinger of his left hand was caught in a machine that he was running. The accident happened, he said, just after Lee put a roll of brass on his machine. The witness exhibited his injured finger to the jury. He testified that after he was hurt, he bundled his finger up in a piece of cotton waste which he held in his right hand, and walked to the office. He dropped no blood on the floor on the way, he said, although a few drops fell near his machine.

DIDN'T BLEED BY DRESSING ROOM.

"Did you stand near the ladies' dressing room?" asked the solicitor.

"No, sir."

"How much blood, if any, dropped within a radius of fifteen feet of the dressing room or the water cooler?"

"Not a drop."

That concluded the direct examination. Attorney Rosser cross-examined the witness.

"You were pretty badly hurt, weren't you?"

Solicitor Dorsey objected, and was sustained.

"The accident was painful, wasn't it?"

"Not very."

"As you walked along toward the office, you didn't look on the floor to see if you had dropped any blood, did you?"

"No, sir, but I kept my finger bundled in the waste."

"How long was it before your hand got well?"

"I don't remember."

"And you don't remember the month nor the week nor the day of the accident?"

"No, sir."

The witness was excused.

Willie Turenr, sixteen-year-old son of C. M. Turner, a farmer living at Sandy Springs, in the Oak Grove district of Fulton county, was the next witness. He testified that during the month of March, 1913, he was at work at the National Pencil factory, and that he knew Frank and knew Mary Phagan.

SAW FRANK TALK TO MARY PHAGAN.

He testified that he saw Frank and Mary Phagan talking on the second floor in the metal room, about the middle of March.

On the diagram to which his attention was directed he indicated about where he said the conversation took place, and it was near the rear of the building.

He said it was just before dinner and that he saw no one there when he entered except Frank and the little girl.

"Now," said the solicitor, "tell just what you saw take place."

"She tried to get him to stop talking to her, and said she had to go to work."

"What did he say?"

"He said that he was the superintendent of the pencil factory—"

MARY BACKED AWAY FROM FRANK.

Attorney Rosser objected on the ground that the boy's testimony was immaterial, and asked that the jury be sent out, which was done. Then for several minutes the attorneys engaged in a heated argument. When the jury had left the room, Judge Roan instructed the boy to go ahead and tell what he saw. His testimony was in substance as follows: That he walked into the metal room just before dinner, and that in the rear of the room he saw Mary Phagan backing away from Frank and telling him that she had to go to work; that Frank was advancing on her, telling her that he was the superintendent of the pencil factory and that he wanted to talk to her. About how far the girl backed away, the boy said it must have been three and a half or four feet.

Attorney Hooper argued that the boy's testimony was admissible because it showed that Frank was approaching Mary Phagan and that the girl was backing off to get away from him, and that he was pursuing his advances. He said the boy's testimony tended to show Frank's knowledge of the girl and tended to show an intimacy which Frank might have been trying to establish with the girl. Mr. Hooper stressed the point that according to the boy's testimony, the incident occurred about the noon hour of the March the murder.

Attorney Rosser contended that the boy's evidence did not go to show that Frank knew the girl as Mary Phagan by name.

Solicitor Dorsey said: "We contend, your honor, that this girl was killed on the floor where this boy claims he saw this man talking to her. Frank says that he did not know the girl. Doesn't this boy's testimony go to show that he did know her, and that some preliminary steps may have been taken which culminated finally in the girl's death?"

Attorney Arnold said: "Your honor, this is a fragmentary, weasly piece of evidence, dragged in here at the eleventh hour to prejudice the jury against this man, and we object to it on several grounds. In the first place, it does not show that Frank knew the girl. He was the superintendent of the factory and he had a right to talk to anybody in the factory. This boy, when he was put on the stand, didn't say a word about Frank talking off and only mentioned that part of the story when he was led by the solicitor. You can see for yourself the unfairness of the illegal purpose in introducing this boy's testimony. It looks like all through this case we haven't been able to try the man, and we object to it on several grounds. In the first place, it does not show that Frank knew the girl. He was the superintendent of the factory and he had a right to talk to anybody in the factory. This boy, when he was put on the stand, didn't say a word about Frank talking off and only mentioned that part of the story when he was led by the solicitor. You can see for yourself the unfairness and

MYSTERY IN THEFT OF LIBRARY'S PAINTING

No One Knows Where Quaint Portrait Came From Nor Where It Has Gone

A quaint old portrait of Patrick Henry, which was passed on to the Carnegie library by the Young Men's Library, was stolen two weeks ago from where it hung on the second floor of the library building.

Some one seems to have lifted the portrait down from the wall and to have left the building with the picture hidden under his coat.

The portrait is interesting because it is quaint and because no one knows just how it came into the possession of the Young Men's Library. It was there when the Carnegie library replaced the old library, and it was changed from the old to the new building.

There it hung in a little oval frame upon the second floor, and no one ever feared for a moment that it would be stolen. Probably it has a very small value in money, and its theft is hard to explain, unless the one who stole the curious old painting had a passion for quaint portraits.

Maybe the picture of Patrick Henry has a mystery. Maybe there was something in its past that caused the theft.

HUERTA DECLARES ULTIMATUM REPORT IS WITHOUT TRUTH

ing recognition with the alternative of handing Mr. O'Shaughnessy his passports.

A dispatch from John Lind informed President Wilson and Secretary Bryan that he had been in conference with Provisional President Huerta at an early hour today. He characterized his reception and conference with Huerta as cordial."

Last night's dispatches attributing the announcement of an ultimatum by Huerta to Minister Urritia, of the department of the interior, stirred official circles here deeply.

Secretary Bryan, an early riser, read the morning newspapers and hurried down to his office, where he found the reassuring cable from Charge O'Shaughnessy, then went over to the White House to confer with President Wilson. While there the message came from Mr. Lind telling of the conference with Huerta.

Members of the senate foreign relations committee, alarmed by the apparent gravity of the situation, hurried down to the White House to ask for a conference with President Wilson. There seemed to be a division of opinion among them as to whether Minister Urritia's announcement was unauthorized. Some were strongly inclined to accept the explanation as given by Foreign Minister Gombia.

Charge O'Shaughnessy's dispatch, backed up by Mr. Lind's, served to dispel the impression the first news dispatches had created and to offset official views switched around to agoneal belief that while the situation was a delicate one, there was hope of some satisfactory conclusion so long as conferences were continuing between Huerta and Lind.

It was generally understood that while the negotiations still were in progress the Mexican government's request that publication of President Wilson's views as presented by Mr. Lind be withheld from publication would be respected and that they might not be given out today.

TELEGRAM FROM CHARGE.

Senators Lodge and Stone were shown the following cablegram to Secretary Bryan from Charge O'Shaughnessy, dated last night and received at 4 a. m. today:

"The correspondents have cabled that the Mexican government has stated that its note to Lind demands that the United States recognized the Huerta government before 12 o'clock midnight today or a statement practically to that effect.

"I brought the matter to the urgent attention of the minister of foreign affairs at 10 p. m. He immediately saw the president and Minister Gomenacio, Senor Urrutia, who is supposed to have given out the statement and he authorized me to deny this statement to my government as having no foundation in fact."

LIND'S MESSAGE.

The senators also were shown a dispatch from John Lind, in which he said:

"Spent two hours with Huerta at his suggestion. Very cordial."

The message was received at 2:10 a. m. today.

The senators conferred briefly with President Wilson and as they left the White House, said they were satisfied that alarming reports were not justified. They still were hopeful that Mr. Lind's efforts to bring about an amicable understanding would be successful.

Both senators were acquainted with the contents of Huerta's note to the American government, cabled by Charge O'Shaughnessy to the state department. Although the tone of the note is scornful in its rejection of the American suggestions, nothing in it related to an ultimatum or a demand for recognition.

The United States government was given until midnight last night by President Huerta to recognize Mexico, it is officially stated.

The government is not specific in the public announcement as to what course then will be pursued but it is understood that it means the severing of all relations between the two countries.

Senor Urritia, minister of the interior, who on previous occasions has been spokesman for the administration, was the person chosen to make the announcement.

Senor Urritia refused to give out the text of the correspondence between Mr. Lind and the Mexican government, but confirmed the fact that an exchange of notes had taken place. Two notes from Mexico have been sent to Washington. The first was a reply to that delivered by Mr. Lind. This note included the demand for recognition of Mexico.

The second note was sent direct to Washington and demanded that a reply to the previous note be made before midnight. This is regarded here as an ultimatum.

One official in discussing this latter note said that Mexico had reached the point where she either must bow her head in humiliation before the United States or adopt an attitude of defiance. The first contingency, he added, was regarded as impossible.

The official said that Mexico fully realized the gravity of her action and the possibilities that might ensue in case the United States refused to recognize the republic.

Conservative Mexicans, however are unwilling to believe that even the severance of diplomatic relations and Mexico's defiant attitude will provoke the United States beyond forbearance.

Some of these people doubted that the government would give Nelson O'Shaughnessy the American charge d'affaires his passports in the event of the United States not complying with President Huerta's demand. They pointed out that such action did not follow when Huerta refused to confer officially with Lind prior to Ambassador Wilson several months ago.

Explosion at Powder Factory Shakes Mexico

Americans Reported in Mexico Found in U. S.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—One of the annoying features of the state department's task of ascertaining the safety of Americans in Mexico is reflected in the case of the Misses Whiteside, whose welfare was made a matter of inquiry by their friends. After much correspondence, Consul Latcher, at Chihuahua, discovered and reported that they had long ago left that locality for the United States and actually had arrived at El Paso, August 3. They had failed, like others, to announce their safe return to United States soil. From Satillo it is reported that a Mr. Marchain, also a subject of inquiry, had arrived there last Friday.

A general disposition in the senate to demand some definite statement from the administration was headed off by Senators Lodge, Bacon and Stone, who had direct information from the White House.

Senator Penrose had prepared to speak again on his resolutions asking for reports on Mexican conditions and the official status of William Bayard Hale, but Senator Lodge requested him to delay his talk and, after a conference between the two on the floor, Senator Penrose took his seat without raising the Mexican question.

Later he asked that his resolutions be allowed to go over for two or three days without action.

The Poindexter resolution, asking what measures had been taken to protect Americans in Mexico, also went over without debate. Conferences took place on the senate floor throughout the session and a disposition on the Republican side not to force a discussion of the situation, but to await developments grew stronger.

Chairman Bacon, of the foreign relations committee, reiterated today that the United States would stand unassailable in the eyes of the world whatever the outcome of the negotiations, because of its consistent effort to bring about peace in Mexico.

CARNLEY ANNOUNCES HIS CANDIDACY TO CONGRESS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

DOTHAN, Ala., Aug. 19.—J. A. Carnley, of Elba, a prominent attorney of Coffee county and editor of the Elba Clipper, today mailed letters to all newspapers in this district announcing his candidacy for congress from the Third district, in the event of a vacancy caused by Mr. Clayton being seated as senator from Alabama.

The race for congress to succeed Mr. Clayton now promises to be extremely lively, as Mr. Carnley is the third candidate to announce for the office. The other two candidates are Byrd G. Brewer, of Dothan, and Henry B. Steagall, of Ozark. There may be other announcements in a few days.

JUDGE SOLLIE WITHDRAWS HIS NAME FROM RACE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 19.—Judge Mike Sollie, of Ozark, has quit the race for congress from the Third district, and J. A. Carnley, a lawyer, of Elba, has entered the contest, provided, of course, Henry D. Clayton, the present representative, is seated in the senate. Judge Sollie states that the constitutional inhibition as to the office cannot be effective in law, but it carries a moral suasion."

SLATON WILL APPROVE HOME FOR GIRLS BILL

Announces Intention in Answer to Hundreds of Telegrams From Over State

Positive announcement was made by Governor Slaton Tuesday afternoon of his intention to sign the bill appropriating $20,000 with which to establish a wayward girls' home in Georgia. This bill will reach the governor's desk during the afternoon from the engrossing clerks and will be immediately approved by him.

Considerable apprehension for the fate of this bill has been felt by its friends, due to the fact that a number of the house and senate leaders have stated that the governor promised to veto the bill if it carried an appropriation greater than $10,000. However, Governor Slaton has himself alayed this apprehension by announcing that he would sign the bill as soon as it reaches him.

The Prison Reform association of Georgia and the Men and Religion Forward Movement, worked hard for the passage of the bill.

Following the exclusive publication in The Journal of Monday to the effect that the governor would veto the bill the chief executive has been literally flooded with telegrams and letters urging him to approve the measure. His announcement Tuesday afternoon was in answer to these telegrams and letters.

FORSYTH—Vaudeville.

There was plenty of applause for the Hawaiian musical quintet as well as Grace DeMar in their bright acts at the Forsyth on Monday evening. You will find those who give the Hawaiian outfit first place and then again there are others who believe pretty Miss DeMar got away with the laurels. Both got plenty of deserved applause.

Willie Weston got away with a bunch of good songs. In his work he was assisted by Howard Winburn owing to the illness of Mike Bernard, his partner. Weston sang a number of new and original songs.

The bill for this week is well made up, there being good singing, music, dancing and a few statues in bronze that are fine. One of the most foolish acts yet staged here was introduced by Lovette and Foster. For a bunch of nothing it is great. And the way the man plays that piano and cuts a few foolish dancing steps! Clayton Kennedy and Mattie Rooney give a singing and dancing act while the Nikko trio put on some fancy balancing work.

W. & A. PROBERS REPORT TO COMMITTEE

No Member of House or Senate Committees on Ad Interim Committee

In the ad interim legislative appointments made by Randolph Anderson, president of the senate, and William H. Burwell, speaker of the house, no member of the house or senate committees on the Western and Atlantic railroad was placed on that committee chosen to make certain investigations and recommend the terms of a release of the state's property.

And there is a reason for this. It will be the duty of this ad interim committee to report its findings directly to the W. & A. committees of the general assembly which shall in turn make such report directly to the house and senate, provided, of course, the recommendations are acceptable.

The chairmen of the two W. & A. committees will attend the deliberations of the ad interim committee and advise with its members upon the point at issue. Therefore it will be seen that in effect, Senator Brown, chairman of the senate committee, and Representative Cheney, of Cobb, chairman of the house committee, will be ex-officio members of the body appointed by the speaker of the house and the president of the senate.

The Public Approves This Bill.

Few if any bills passed at the recent session of the Legislature have evoked wider approval than that providing for the establishment of a State reformatory for wayward girls; and naturally so, for the vital human interest it involves appeals directly to the public's conscience and heart.

Economic measures like that for tax equalization, despite their inherent value and their far-reaching importance, engage the interest of comparatively few people. Only those who study fiscal problems are more than casually impressed with the significance of such legislation; but almost every man and woman in Georgia will understand and earnestly praise a bill that is designed to shelter unfortunate girls from ruin and guide them upward to happy and useful lives.

Nor is this respone a mere outburst of sentiment or passing pity. Whoever observes the thought and temper of the people of this State today cannot fail to perceive an alert and growing consciousness of social needs and social duties. This is reflected in those carefully organized and well-financed movements for social betterment that have developed in all our cities and are now extending to rural districts. The same workmanly ideals that aroused Georgians to demand State support for anti-tuberculosis work, that led to the abolishment of the convict lease system and that are now astir in divers other activities for human welfare—these same ideals, whose followers come from the ranks of our soundest and most thoughtful citizenship, were the power behind the enactment of the Girls' Reformatory bill.

It is interesting to note, as evidence of the popular support this measure was accorded, that at no moment, from its introduction in the earliest days of the session up to the night of its passage just before the Legislature adjourned, was there any appreciable opposition to its inherent principle. Its merit was freely recognized by nine-tenths of the members of both the House and the Senate. The sole quetion it provoked was whether the condition of the State's treasury would warrant the appropriation it carried; and two timely circumstances served to remove every doubt in this connection. For one thing, the tax reform bill finally passed, so that the fear of a grave shortage between the State's income and expenditures was dispelled; and besides this the original amount asked for the establishment of the reformatory was reduced to the exceedingly modest sum of twenty thousand dollars. Thereupon, the Legislature, without hesitancy and almost as a unit, voted in favor of the bill.

Indeed, there were but ten votes against it in the Senate, and in the House only two. So soon as the members were assured that the sole objection ever offered against this measure—that of inadequate funds—had ceased to exist, they supported it with unreserved enthusiasm; and even had it been necessary to sacrifice some other appropriation in order that this might be granted, they would have earned the public's approval by doing so.

Certain it is that the great majority of thinking people are keenly gratified over the Legislature's well-considered action in this regard, and are looking hopefully forward to the consummation of the important cause which the bill embodies.

The Unterrified Turk.

Though ordered out of Adrianople weeks ago, Turkey continues to loll serenely over its reconquered battlements. Concerted Europe has issued its fiat, threatening force if its command is not heeded; but the "Sick Man," acting on the theory that, come what may, he can scarcely be worse off than now, decides to let Europe make the first move.

France has suggested that the Sultan be whipped into acquiescence by the Powers withholding all financial aid from his government until he falls in line with their Balkan policy. But this threat, as one observer remarks, Turkey can face "with the equanimity of the hopelessly insolvent." Its credit is already so impaired that, regardless of whatever it might do, it could scarcely better the case in the eyes of foreign bankers; and the latter may conclude that in order to make any assurance of the loans they have already granted, it will be necessary to extend a few additional favors.

It would thus seem that if Turkey is to be ousted from Adrianople, some one must proceed to the task with drastic measures. But who is that to be? It was first planned that Bulgaria should undertake this mission. That nation, however, is manifestly unprepared for further work of this character. She has emerged from the recent war with her neighbors drained of blood and material resources; every fibre of her energy is needed in the repair of her domestic losses. The other Balkan States are obviously unfitted for such an undertaking.

As for the larger Powers, they are so jealous and suspicious of one another that they will hardly consent to any of their number entering the peninsula with a large army, unless, perhaps, it should be Russia, acting under their joint direction.

Turkey's position is thus a singularly strong one from the strategic and diplomatic point of view, yet it is inconceivable that the Powers will permit Turkey to retain Adrianople and thereby undo the plans they have so painstakingly formulated for the division of territory among the Balkan States. The results of the situation will be watched with keen expectancy.

Clinch the Manufacturers' Exhibit.

For several years past there has been much talk of a permanent exhibit of Atlanta-made goods. The time has now come when words must give way to definite action, if this interesting and fertile enterprise is to become a fact. A number of manufacturers have already agreed to take space for such an exhibition in the new Chamber of Commerce building, in which the four upper floors have been tentatively set aside for the purpose. All the support required for the complete success of the project, however, has not yet been pledged. There will be a final meeting of the manufacturers today to determine whether the exhibit shall be carried forward or abandoned.

It is much to be hoped that the former course will be taken, for, it is the only one in keeping with the Atlanta spirit and with the best interests of the manufacturers themselves. The farreaching value of such an exhibition is so obvious that it calls for no particular comment. It will mean increased publicity, increased business and growth for the industrial life of this community. Let every manufacturer join heartily in the great enterprise.

Huerta at least hasn't found it necessary to send for Castro.

Castro's Last Game With Fate.

Cipriano Castro's return from Elba has not aroused that Napoleonic enthusiasm with which he counted upon overthrowing the Venezuelan government between sunrises and making himself dictator within a fortnight. Though he has gathered to his standard numerous bands of outlaws and adventurers, there has been no sign of spontaneous popular uprising. In Venezuela, as in most of the smaller Latin republics, there is a faction of political malcontents who are ready at all times to follow an attack on any established government. But it seems, happily enough, that this element now lacks both numbers and organization. President Gomez has the loyal support of the governors in all the States, and, apparently, that of the people as a whole. Business interests are naturally standing by him, for they still remember with shrugs and shivers the days when Castro held the whip and confiscated property for his personal fortune. The moral support of all foreign governments is also with President Gomez. The larger Powers, like the United States, Germany and England, exerted themselves to prevent Castro's return. Indeed, it was under their concerted agreement that he was exiled and was held abroad. His reign was one of terror and robbery for all foreign residents; and he was particularly offensive to Americans and to the United States.

Of especial significance is the attitude the Colombian government maintains toward the Venezuelan situation. It has appointed as minister at Caracas Emeanulo Lizza, whose good will to President Gomez is said to be pronounced, and has also expressed confidence and friendship for the existing government. This should counteract the aid which certain individual Colombians have given the Castro cause, and preserve peace between these neighboring countries.

Dispatches indicate that the national forces, under the command of President Gomez himself, are crushing the rebellion wherever it shows its head. The town of Coro, where the Castro followers won their first victory, has been recaptured in a fight in which several revolutionary leaders were slain. It is doubtful, however, that the trouble will cease until Castro himself is taken or is driven back to Europe. This is probably his last game with fate; the sooner it is played out the better.

OUR DAILY BREAD

VII.—VARIETIES OF RAISED BREADS.

By Frederic J. Haskin

The loaf of white, raised wheat bread is the kind best known throughout the world, and the one of which the greatest quantities are consumed. It has a number of rivals, however, and despite the opinion of expert dietitians that the ordinary white bread is the most nutritious and most digestible, many people give preference to other varieties of the staff of life. The average baker handles whole wheat bread, graham bread, two kinds of rye bread and a liberal assortment of shapes in the rolls and loaves into which the white bread is molded. In some parts of the country a raised corn bread is also added to the baker's assortment. In addition to these are salt rising bread, gluten bread, and numberless varieties of so-called "health breads." Sometimes these health breads seem to possess exceptional qualities, and it is said that all the bread eaten by Jon D. Rockefeller is shipped to him daily by a Philadelphia woman who claims that she has invented a formula of whole wheat bread which possesses the maximum amount of nutrition and digestibility. For persons troubled with certain ailments special kinds of bread are supposed to be beneficial. For example, gluten bread is prescribed by many physicians for diabetes patients as it is claimed that the starch of ordinary bread aggravates the disease.

The original graham bread as invented by Dr. Graham was not a raised bread at all. It was made simply by kneading graham flour and water thoroughly to form a stiff dough. The modern graham bread, as known both to the housewife and baker, is made just as ordinary white bread excepting that graham flour, containing a large percentage of bran, is used instead of white flour. There is a close connection between graham and whole wheat flour, the difference being that in most of the whole wheat flour the outer portion of the wheat kernel, known as the bran, is removed. Whole wheat and graham bread are made exactly alike in most bakeries.

To make gluten bread strong flour and water are made into a dough which is pressed and strained under a stream of running water until nearly all the starch has been washed out. It is then well kneaded and baked, forming a light, elastic loaf.

Aerated bread is another bread intended chiefly for invalids. It was invented by Dr. Dauglish, an English physician, about half a century ago, and while hailed with enthusiasm for a while is now baked in but few establishments. Dr. Dauglish's theory was that carbonated gas does not need to be produced in the dough by slow fermentation, but may be added with the water used to mix it. For this purpose he charged the water used with carbon dioxide, making it about the same as the aerated water used at soda fountains.

Salt rising bread is known in most parts of the country, and is especially popular in the south. Until recently it has been almost entirely a bread of home manufacture, but now bakeries, particularly in the south and west, are turning their attention to this bread, the peculiarity of which is that it does not require yeast. The ferments in it originally are acquired from the air. In making this kind of bread milk and corn meal are mixed into a stiff batter. This is left to stand at blood heat until it has fermented. A thick sponge is made of white flour, hot water and a little salt. The sponge and the sour batter are kneaded together until thoroughly mixed when the mass is set to rise in a warm place. The leavening process started in the batter spreads through the dough which, when baked, produces a light porous loaf which many persons prefer to other bread. The salt prevents undesirable fermentation, and makes it tasty.

An international exposition of bread products was recently held in Germany at which specimens of the breads of many nations were upon exhibition. The French bread included a number of varieties from Alsace-Loraine which, instead of being glossy as is most other European bread, were sprinkled on top with flour. Some of the loaves were in peculiar form, especially the wreaths known as "pain perce." The Rheinisch rye bread of both coarse and fine rye differed little fraom Pumpernickel, which is made of coarse rye flour and is formed into loaves weighing at least ten pounds.

The bread of the soldiers of the different countries attracted attention. In north Germany the soldiers receive rations of rye bread only, while in Bavaria they have mixed rye and white bread. The Spanish army have regularly a loaves of gray bread weighing about a pound each, which are served shredded. The Russian army bread is vinegar-like in its acidity and it is said, could be digested only by persons of the most robust constitution.

One of the peculiarities of the countries in which the greater part of the bread baking is done in a primitive fashion by small bakeries is the variety of fancy shapes into which the dough is molded. One of the Italian exhibits was the Pannettone, a loaf made up in the form of a bee hive. It was decorated with sugar ornaments and almonds and is especially in demand about Christmas time. Some of the countries or towns have peculiarly shaped bread and rolls in commemoration of some historic events. The crescent rolls of Vienna are said to have originated with a baker who had a shop at the time the city was besieged by the Moslems in the sixteenth century.

The Haaraffen of Crailsheimer dates to a legend of the fourteenth century which states that the town was besieged by the combined forces of several towns which surrounded the city with the intention of starving its inhabitants into surrender. After several months a clever old woman conceived the idea of having a strange masqueraded figure appear upon the city walls. The figure was so fanstastic in appearance that the timid enemies fled in affright. They called it a vision of the haaraffen, or hair monkey. In commemoration of this bread is baked in a shape somewhat resembling a fantastic letter "M," and on a certain day each year a quantity of these bread forms are distributed among the poor.

English bread resembles the wheat bread of both Germany and the United States. Comparatively little but the raised white wheat bread is made in English bakeries, although an unusual number of peculiar health breads are in circulation in the larger cities. The Englishman seems forced to consider his digestion and each year brings out some modern hygienic compound which is extensively advertised for a period and then forgotten. The favorite English bread is the round cottage loaf of staple white dough, although oblong loaves baked in tin pans are also much used. A small quantity of raised oaten bread is still eaten in Scotland and also in Ireland, although the historical oaten cake was an unleavened product consisting chiefly of oatmeal, water and salt mixed into a soft dough and baked upon the hearth. The French bread most in demand is baked in slender loaves about three feet in length.

THE WELCOME RAIN.

How welcome is the summer rain!
How gladsome is the sound
That comes from orchard and meadow
When raindrops touch the ground.

The prolonged drought rules field and tree,
Flowers fail as in death,
Their patience wearied by the heat
That snatches away breath.

The clouds no longer can look on
And not bestow the wealth
Of saving grace they have in store
To renew nature's health.

They send refreshing rain broadcast,
Flower and fruit once more
Find love and pleasure in living
They never found before.

How welcome is the summer rain!
It drives away despair;
Sweet joy comes from beyond the clouds
And makes the world more fair.

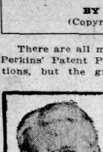
THE MIRTH CURE

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)



There are all manner of cures, from mud baths and Perkins' Patent Porous Plaster up to Thought Vibrations, but the grandest of all is the Mirth Cure.

It keeps well in any climate, is guaranteed under the pure food and drug law, don't cost a cent, and has helped others. Why not you?

The formula is found in the writings of the wisest man, who was a Jewish king and philosopher. He said:

"A merry heart doeth good like a medicine."

Note—he did not say a merry wife, though she certainly does good. (Perhaps he had too many wives and was afraid he would be asked which one.).

He did not say a merry husband, nor a merry house, nor a merry occupation, nor any such thing.

For his wise old eyes saw too deeply into life to make the mistake of supposing that circumstances are the root of joy. He knew that the real fountain of mirth is the heart.

If you have a merry heart it makes no difference what may be your position, whether you be a tramp on the road, a scrub woman in an office building, a brakeman, a street car conductor, a merchant man, or even a college president. You are an electric light in the fog of human despondency; sunshine breaking through earth-sorrow clouds, water or parched souls.

Did you ever hear the story of "The Happy Man's Shirt?" It is an old one, but one of those that ought constantly be retold.

There was once a king who was smitten with sadness and disgust of life. He had gorged at all human pleasures, could no more be amused, and now was like to die.

They called in the soothsayers and medicine men, but none could suggest a remedy. At last they sent to an old hermit who lived in the wood, who said: "The case is simple. Let the king sleep all night in a happy's man shirt, and he will be healed."

Whereupon the king ordered that the palace be searched, a happy man be found and his shirt brought. But no happy man could be discovered in the palace.

Then they sought through the city and then throughout the length and breadth of the kingdom, but no man could they lay hands upon who would declare, without reservation or secret evasion of mind whatever, that he was entirely happy.

A little group of the king's courtiers were returning home disconsolate, and as they rode along the highway they espied a beggar sitting under a tree, playing with the autumn leaves and smiling to himself.

"Hola!" they shouted. "Are you happy?"

"Surely!" replied the beggarman.

"Why, you're nothing but a beggar! You don't know where you are going to get your dinner, do you?"

"Oh, no. But it isn't dinner time yet. I had a good breakfast."

Then they told him of the king's plight and besought him to give them his shirt forthwith, adding that it should be returned to him filled with gold pieces.

At that the ragged man lay back on the grass and laughed as if he would expire.

"Come," said the royal attendants, "we have no time for trifling. Off with your shirt, or we will jerk it off."

"Hold hard, gentleman," said the beggar striving to control his mirth. "That is just what I am laughing at. I AIN'T GOT NO SHIRT."

So they went and told the king that but one happy man could be unearthed in all his realm, and that one was shirtless.

And the king had sense enough to perceive that happiness does not depend on the shirt you sleep in, nor the bed on which you lie, nor the house that covers you—no, nor any external thing, but comes from the heart within you.

Thus was he cured, and arose and went about his business; and thus also may you be cured, if so be that there is still left unparalyzed in you the power to THINK.

The Home of Horace

(Chicago Tribune.)

The home of Horace, the poet, has been dug up in Italy. For centuries this habitation has been a mystery that many archaeologists have sought in vain to solve. The great discovery was made by a party under the direction of Prof. Angioli Pasqui.

The villa which for thirty years housed the great lyric poet was brought to light in the midst of the wild and rugged scenery of the Sabine hills. It is located at Licenza, near Mandela. When the excavations which resulted in the finding of the villa were begun two years ago the ground plot was nothing more than a plateau covered with walnut and olive trees and vines.

Although the district has long been associated with the name of Horace, the exact location of the villa could never be determined until Prof. Pasqui hit upon it. The search for the place has been diligent since the latter part of the sixteenth century. Now there is no longer room for doubt that the discovery is that of the home of the poet.

According to the best historical data, Horace was indebted to Maecenas, a minister of Emperor Augustus, for the gift of the farm in the Sabine hills on which the villa has just been found. Maecenas, who was a great patron of art and letters, through his liberality made it possible for Horace to give up business and devote his time exclusively to literature.

The villa is divided into two portions—a garden surrounded by a cryptoporticus and the villa itself, in which there is some magnificent mosaic work in a state of wonderful preservation.

When Horace died in 8 B. C. the villa was taken by Vespasian, the Roman emperor, who, it is said, added to one side of it several grand public baths. Much later, along about the sixteenth or the seventeenth century, a church is said to have been built to it and a crypt erected. A number of skeletons were found therein.

The excavations are being continued, and it is believed that further remarkable discoveries will be added to those made by Prof. Pasqui. Until the latter was rewarded recently for his explorations underground only a few mosaic pavements had been found in the vicinity of Horace's villa.

And a woman is something or other Called "a militant suffragette."

"So I'm only a woman!" says Milly,
As torches she scaters afar.
"There's castles a-burning, you silly!
Come, light up your good cigar!

"Consider, O male of the species!
The 'rags and the bones and the hanks,'
The sisters and daughters and nieces,
Who rise up to tender you thanks!

"Consider 'the widder o' Windsor,'
Boadicea, mighty Queen Bess,
And then think over your sins, sir,
Which same you would better confess.

"Our sex you should study anew, man,
And grant us this tar to your joke;
A woman is truly a woman,
And just keep your eye on her smoke!"

STATE CHEMIST BATTLES FOR PURE MILK SUPPLY

Dr. R. E. Stallings Begins Statewide Investigation of Dairies

A state-wide investigation of milk in order to secure a pure supply has been instituted by Dr. R. E. Stallings, the state chemist. He has taken up first the dairies of Atlanta and the neighboring small towns that supply milk to the city, and is making rigid tests to find out whether or not the milk complies with the requirements of the pure food laws of the state.

When the survey of Atlanta and the neighboring towns is completed, an investigation will be started in each of the smaller towns and cities, and every dairy which does not comply with the rules of sanitation and the milk standards will be ordered to clean up and supply better milk. If the order is not obeyed the owners will be prosecuted.

That the improvement may be permanent, a periodic inspection will be made, and samples will be regularly tested from all the dairies.

This is the first work that has been done in the new bacteriological laboratory which has been recently added to the chemist's facilities. The investigation of the milk is under the immediate direction of K. W. Atkins, a new member of the chemist's staff. He has many samples which would be of interest to the housewives and mothers of the city, and on request the samples and results of the investigations will be shown.

That there was need for this comprehensive test of the milk supply has been proved by the findings even in the beginning. The experiments showing dirt in milk, watered milk, and a high bacterial count.

Ordinarily the bacterial count in milk should not run higher than 100,000 to a third of a teaspoon, says the milk specialist, and some of the samples have shown a bacterial count as high as 12,000,000.

The new laboratory is splendidly equipped, and is one of the best in existence.

T. J. Bryan, who was state chemist of Illinois until his resignation at the first of this month, was in the city Tuesday. He went over the new laboratory, and praised the equipment highly.

Mr. Bryan is making a tour of the southern states.

SOUTH CAROLINA HAS NO MONEY IN TREASURE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

COLUMBIA, S. C., Aug. 19.—For the first time in many years the state of South Carolina has no money in the treasury to pay the running expenses of the government and thousands of dollars in claims have been held up. Unless arrangements are made for borrowing money no state officials will draw any salaries and the state cannot pay out a dollar until taxes come in.

The state has each year borrowed money to meet running expenses and the legislature put this in the hands of a board composed of the governor, comptroller general and state treasurer. The state treasurer asked for a loan of $300,000 and the governor made arrangements with a local bank for this amount until January 1 at 5 per cent. Six notes of $50,000 each were signed by the governor and turned over to the treasurer who, with the comptroller general, signed one this morning and presented it at the bank. Because these officials would not borrow the full $300,000 and wanted it in installments of $50,000 as needed by the state, the bank declined to float the loan and called off its offer.

State Treasurer Carter called the governor's attention to the refusal of the bank to loan the money in installments of $50,000 each and said the bank denied that they had made any such agreement with the governor and asked for documentary proof. The governor replied to the treasurer that he had placed in his hands along with the notes the copy of the bank cashier's letter containing the statement that the notes would be floated as the state needed the money. "On account of your glaring misstatement I will have nothing further to do with the matter," said the governor to the treasurer.

The state treasurer claims he was not consulted by the governor before the contract for the loan was made. The governor says he has done his duty and signed the notes and that it is up to the comptroller general and state treasurer. Meanwhile the treasury is without funds and with the prospects of getting no money tieher in salaries or expenses for three months state officials and those dependent on money from the treasury are in consternation.

Forty Perish When Ship Smashes on Alaska Rock

Passengers Bound for Juneau and Skagway Lose Lives When Steamer Sinks

(By Associated Press.)

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug 19.—Fifty-four passengers who sailed from Seattle on the steamer State of California last Wednesday night were booked for Juneau and Skagway, and presumably were on the ship when it struck a rock and sank in Gambier bay, Alaska, Sunday morning. Twenty-two passengers were taken on board at Prince Rupert, Ketchikan, Petersburg, Wrangele and other points, and these also were on the boat at the time of the disaster, making a total of seventy-six passengers. Forty-three passengers were rescued and taken to Juneau by the steamer Jefferson, leaving thirty-three, who probably have perished. Seven of the crew are dead, making the total dead forty.

These figures were given by the Pacific Steamship company. They cannot be verified by the purser, who lost all his records. It is possible that some of the fifty-four passengers booked to sail from Seattle changed their minds at the last moment.

D. C. Perkins, the first wireless operator, who is among the lost, was the son of a wealthy San Francisco family. He took up the study of wireless because of the opportunities it afforded for adventure and a chance to see the world.

Those who survived escaped with only the clothes they had on when the steamer struck. Many were in their night robes.

The loss of life was caused more by wreckage than by drowning, according to Captain Thomas H. Cann, Jr., the master, who said the upper works of the ship broke up and caught many people.

It was in this way that Miss Lillian Ward, daughter of Edward C. Ward, of Seattle, assistant manager of the Pacific Coast Steamship company, lost her life. A mast falling as the upper works were carried away struck her as she stood on the deck. She was taken off in a small boat and later put aboard the Alaska Steamship company's steamer Jefferson, but died before that vessel arrived here Sunday night.

So quickly did the ship sink after she struck the rock that Captain Cann barely had time to run her toward the rock beach at Bambier bay before she hit the bottom. The wireless operators did not have a chance to summon aid, but boats from a cannery put out from shore and assisted the crew of the wrecked steamer in picking up the people floating among the wreckage.

Two gas boats were obtained from the cannery and were sent to Petersburg for aid, while the other headed toward Juneau, meeting the Jefferson, which proceeded to the scene of the wreck and picked up the survivors.

Peril in Patent Medicines

(Philadelphia North American.)

By giving patent medicines to their babies when they are ill instead of consulting a physician, mothers endanger the lives of their little ones, declared Mrs. Margaret B. Simon of the Child Welfare Association at the mothers' clinic held at the Cohocksink Neighborhood House.

Mrs. Simon told the mothers that the great proportion of alcohol and narcotic drugs in many patents and the small medical properties they contain render them not merely valueless, but an actual menace to the lives of the babies. Many drug fiends, Mrs. Simon said, could trace their downfall directly to the patent medicines which were administered to them in childhood. She declared that parents who pride themselves on being staunch temperance advocates, but persist in giving their children patent medicines, are laying the foundation of intemperance for them in after life.

C. H. KELLY SUCCEEDS JOHN E. M'CLELLAND

City Council Amends Vaudeville Costumes Ordinances, Vinson on Grady Board

Water Commissioner C. H. Kelly was elected by council Monday afternoon to fill the aldermanic vacancy of the Second ward caused by the resignation of John E. McClelland. Mr. Kelly's election was unanimous.

Alderman Kelly was a member of the aldermanic board prior to Alderman McClelland's term. He was elected the water board when Commissioner George Walker moved out of the Second ward and created the vacancy.

The vacancy on the water board caused by the resignation of Commissioner Kelly will be filled at the next meeting of council.

Councilman Ashley's resolution providing for an appropriation of $600 with which to employ an engineering expert to represent the city when the evaporation test is made at the new crematory, was adopted.

Dr. W. D. Vinson, of the Second ward, was elected to the Grady hospital board of trustees to succeed Dr. R. N. Weaver.

A proposed ordinance regulating the costume worn by girls in vaudeville was amended by the ordinance committee, but was brought up too late to be considered at Monday's meeting. The original ordinance, provided that neither skirts nor tights be permitted, but the amendment provides that no costumes be allowed that are "immoodest or indecent."

Council adopted the street committees adverse report to the petition to change the name of Murphy avenue.

SLATON URGED TO SIGN WAYWARD GIRLS BILL

Telegrams From All Parts of State Deluge Governor's Office With Petitions

Telegrams by the hundreds are pouring in on Governor Slaton requesting him to sign the bill providing a rescue home for wayward girls of the state.

Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, president of the Federated clubs of the state, officers of the various organizations of the D. A. R.'s, the U. D. C.'s, and church guilds and societies and individuals from all parts of the state have signified their intgrest in the bill by deluging the governor's office with telegrams.

Many of them he has not seen yet, as a large portion of Tuesday morning was occupied by a conference with the new state tax commissioner, John C. Hart.

The governor is very busy with the bills the legislature passed during its recent session, but has as yet announced no vetoes.

"I do not know," said the governor, "what acting I shall take on the bill providing a home for wayward girls, as I have not yet read it carefully. I shall take the bills up as rapidly as possible, however."

When he gets to the bill providing the new city charter, he won't make much haste, though, as it is so long that it will take ten men three days to write it out for his perusal.

Driver of Water Wagon Arrested As Blind Tiger

TIFTON, Ga., Aug. 19.—When the man on the water wagon gets to selling liquor as a blind tiger, the town that owns the water wagon is getting up against it in keeping in line with prohibition.

Last year a negro was arrested for selling whisky and delivering it in one of the city carts, but Henry Wade, the colored driver of the city sprinkling cart, went him one better. Wade was arrested Monday morning by Chief Thrasher for blind tigering and using the city sprinkling cart as the home for his tiger.

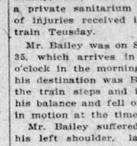
Would not give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for All Rest of Medicine in the World.

Utica, Ohio.—"I suffered everything from a female weakness after baby came. I had numb spells and was dizzy, had black spots before my eyes, my back ached and I was so weak I could hardly stand up. My face was yellow, even my fingernails were colorless and I had displacement. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I am stout, well and healthy. I can do all my own work and can walk to town and back and not get tired. I would not give your Vegetable Compound for all the rest of the medicines in the world. I tried doctor's medicines and they did me no good."—Mrs. MARY EARLEWINE, R.F.D. No.3, Utica, Ohio.



Another Case.

Nebo, Ill.—"I was bothered for ten years with female troubles and the doctors did not help me. I was so weak and nervous that I could not do my work and every month I had to spend a few days in bed. I read so many letters about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound curing female troubles that I got a bottle of it. It did me more good than anything else I ever took and now it has cured me. I feel better than I have for years and tell everybody what the Compound has done for me. I believe I would not be living to-day but for that."—Mrs. HETTIE GREENSTREET, Nebo, Illinois.

LOCAL DRUGGISTS COME OUT WITH STRONG STATEMENTS

Dodson's Liver Tone is the Best Remedy for Constipation and Shirking Liver Ever Brought to This City.

Every person who has tried Dodson's Liver Tone and knows how surely and gently it starts the liver to working and relieves billiousness will bear out the representative druggist who expressed general sentiment in this statement about Dodson's Liver Tone.

"It is a purely vegetable liquid that entirely takes the place of calomel. Odorless and pleasant to the taste that proven itself the most egotisfactory remedy for a slow-working liver that my drug business has ever known. A 75c bottle sells for fifty cents and no druggist will hesitate to give the money back to any person who tries a bottle on the strength of this statement and is not satisfied with the result."

In these days of doubtful medicines and dangerous drugs, a statement like the above is a pleasant assurance that Dodson's Liver Tone is a reliable remedy for both children and grown-ups. In buying a bottle for immediate or future use it is well to make sure you are getting the genuine Dodson's Liver Tone and not some spurious imitation that has copied Dodson's claims, but do not stand back of their guarantee. You may be certain of getting the genuine if you go to your druggist and ask for it.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 19.—Cotton futures opened steady at an advance of 9 to 11 points on good cables and a dry weather map. Private reports continued to tell of rains in Oklahoma and Texas, but the map did not show them. Very little slirt selling was done in the early trading, bears being more inclined to cover than to increase their interests because of the uncertainty over weather conditions in th western cotton region. The receipts at all ports unfavorable as expected in regard to the western belt, although favorable enough in regard to the central and eastern belts. After it was posted the market stood 14 to 15 points over yesterday's close quotations. Subsequently there were profit takers late in the morning, and at noon the market was 11 to 13 points up,sat.

Hay Cut Green Is Bitter

Both timothy and clover, if cut quite green, even if the curing has been perfect, make hay that is bitter to the taste of animals, and they do not like to eat it as they do that which is made from well ripened grass.

It does not do much near the good either, as there is a lack of strength in the feeding qualities. The reason is that the great quantity of sap in the stalks sours in the process of curing the hay, and becomes an acid instead of a sugar or a cassharine quality that makes the hay sweet.

Take timothy cut too green, no difference how well it is cured, and on examination o fthe stalks they will be found black and very brittle at all the joints.

Chew the blackened joints and the taste is bitter. Indeed the whole stalks are sloughy affected, and that is the reason why no kind of stock like that kind of hay as they do that made from mature grass.

Clover cut green is of like bad quality, although it may be beautiful in appearance. Every one knows what a difference there is in the quality of a well ripened apple or peach and specimens of these fruits pulled before full, matured and allowed to ripen apart from the trees. The same principle holds good in the making of hay.

Guilty of Dishonest Advertising

(Nashville Tennessean.)

The first conviction has just been obtained in Oregon under a new law which makes it a misdemeanor to insert false advertisements in the newspapers. There should be similar laws in every state and in some legislatures to enact such a law would be like locking the stable door after the horse has been stolen. But while no one can deny that it claims to be, but there is no doubt, so far as we are aware, the only state where such sort of legislation has been attempted in the states.

It appears that the proprietor of a dry goods store in Portland advertised "$15 all-wool dresses for $6.98." Portland has a very alert and aggressive branch of the Advertising Clubs of America, and this branch sent out a woman to ascertain if the goods and dresses were "as advertised." She bought one, submitted it to an expert in wool fabrics, and when he reported that the "all-wool" was only 50 per cent what its claims set forth, the storekeeper was arrested and prosecuted, with the result that he was fined $50.

There is a lesson in this for the advertiser as well as the purchaser. The first will learn that commodity or dress goods that are sold shall be exactly as he represents them; the purchaser will be taught to give his trade only to those who are known to meet this reasonable test. And the Oregon plan shall become in-the-wide it will mean a larger demand and confidence by the one and an increase of sales by the other. The moral is obvious: Honest advertising pays.

JOURNAL Wants invariably satisfy.

INTERESTING NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE MARKETS

Weather Reports, Crop Advices, Expert Opinions and Newspaper Comment

COTTON GOSSIP

Times-Democrat says: Showers fell in Texas and Oklahoma on Saturday, Sunday and Monday, and while general good rains are needed, the talent is now convinced that some relief has come to the drouth affected areas. Even in conjunction with the favorable reports received from Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia, Tennessee and the Carolinas caused the cotton market to ease off a bit. Oklahoma now seems to be a great deal condition than any of the cotton growing states as a result of long continued drouth. Texas coast, on the other hand, has suffered in part only and certain sections there seem to be doing very well. Local showers in any dry weather would has done some damage in the southwestern portion of the state, but the recent dry weather has put an end to the progress of such damage. On the north line the recent crop killer seems to have failed in his attempts to do much crop, premium is relatively small provisions, and for this reason the trade is now taking big crop and moderate trade figures for granted. In all of which demand for distant delivery and consequently the market is losing trading role. No general rain is in sight, but the weather forecasts indicate more temperance and showers during the next six days, from which the west may derive further relief in the near future.

New Orleans: Report here from Galveston predicts rain tonight and tomorrow. Period of during summer is being re-let owing to demand for shipments being up to expectations.

Map shows part of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, west Tennessee and Texas coast. Generally fair elsewhere. Rain in Texas and Oklahoma, precipitation southern half of Texas, none shown by reports. Temperatures and forecasts: Conditions are for pain cloudy, further showers Oklahoma, Arkansas and Tennessee. Confer generally northern and Texas. Coffer.—Kofler.

Forecast—Louisiana: Tonight and Wednesday light northerly winds on the coast.

Alabama, Mississippi and West Texas: Tonight and Wednesday fair.

East Texas: Tonight and Wednesday generally fair; light northerly winds on the coast.

Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Alabama: Fair tonight and Wednesday.

Kentucky: Generally fair tonight and Wednesday.

Tennessee and Mississippi: Generally fair tonight and Wednesday.

11 a. m. bids in New York were as follows: January, 10.96c; March, 11.08c; August, 11.66c; October, 11.25c; December, 11.20c.

10 a. m. bids in New York were: January, 11.12c; March, 11.22c; August, 11.67c; October, 11.28c; December, 11.10c.

Liverpool says: Cotton in good buyer. Shrift, Rhodan and Cone were probably the bear buyers on call. Cone is said to be buying for McFadden. There was no other feature on the map for the western belt of any consequence, and the trade is now waiting for more definite weather. The feeling today is more bullish to the absence of rain, but the bears insist, and the bull forces are advocating higher prices, chiefly on western weather, as expected, unfavorable conditions prevail, but says threefifths of the 32 stations reported rain, with good amounts in several of the Texas and Oklahoma counties.—Kofler.

Freight people report more steamer room at Galveston than there is demand for.

Greenwood, Miss.: First new bale here today from Leland on 21.

Official records show temperature average in Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas average 94, with but two stations showing 100 degrees.

STOCK GOSSIP

Dow-Jones summary: Huerta sends ultimatum to United States demanding immediate recognition of the Mexican government. Wilson's Mexican mediation plan is rejected. Washington believes clear situation. Only satisfactory assay will be given his passports, effective today. Adoption of free sugar now assured. Only two Democrats rejected the caucus with the Republicans against the clause. Four arbitrators appointed by railroads and brotherhoods of trainmen and conductors may make selection of additional arbitrators today. Rains give Kansas and Missouri much needed relief from drouth. More rain is predicted. American stock in London here, generally 2 to 4 points. Twelve industrials advanced .70; twenty active rails advanced .30.

The Mexican and foreign situation may unsettle the market temporarily, but it is generally believed that Mexican affairs will be adjusted without any serious trouble. On week spots stocks include like Union Pacific, Copper, Steel and St. Paul should be accumulated conservatively.—Cotter.

GRAIN GOSSIP

Chicago Interocean says: It looks as if a good part of the export business in wheat was of the speculative variety and that export engagements for carrying charge purposes. Superior grades of good white prices will be well in the face of adverse conditions, the market is not going in for any big break. There is much fresh buying, but at the same time the market has many friends. It is the belief of the trade that, while corn values are to remain high all season, there will be numerous breaks following bull spells. Any one that has put up in the buying furore would encourage a lot of selling.

Bartlett, Frazier & Co. say: The weather map shows local rains in the west, with temperatures being seasonable. We are inclined to look for a steady firm market today. Corn—There was exceptional strength in Wednesday and north Illinois, none in the southwest. We expect a rally today, but favor selling corn on all dips Oats—Market is acting very steady with a good undertone. We look for a steady firm market today.

Provisions.—The market shows a very good tone. We look for a gradually higher market.

Illinois corn and wheat bulletin shows rains: Delphi, Ind., .01; Lafayette, .02; Rensselaer, .02; Streator, .02; Sycamore, .57; Duluth, Minn., .52; Grand Forks, .02; Glenwood, .12; Pipestone, cloudy, .60; sprinkling at Springfield, Ills.; Bloomington, .01; Champaign, .01; Decatur, .01; Dresden, Kans., .05; McPherson, .24; Sedan, .70; Bismarck, N. D., .29; Harrisonville, .20; Marysville, .11; maximum temperatures 90 to 96 to 102, Missouri 98 to 105, Oklahoma 96 to 105, Oklahoma .30.

Omaha says: Burlington report, out today, gives corn prospects of 87 per cent, against 75 per cent. The Lincoln territory is summarized as follows: Local weather map has been the salvation of the corn crop in the Lincoln territory. North Platte territory corn in good condition generally, despite the weather. Crop opportune rains, damage running from 10 to 25 per cent.

Chicago: The total stock of contract corn in public elevators Saturday night was only 232,000 bushels, of which 187,000 bushels were 2 mixed corn, the balance being No. 2 yellow and No. 3 yellow. Glenwood, Iowa, premium on No. 2 mixed. This does not look very good for shorts in September corn.—Bicroft.

HAYWARD & CLARK COTTON LETTER

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The weather map shows a rather general rainfall over the southern half of the belt during the past twenty-four hours, but generally light, except in Texas and Oklahoma. None in the northern half or in Oklahoma. Fair weather prevailed over the west Tennessee and the Texas coast. Generally fair weather has also indicated over the entire crop belt, with probably some scattered showers in the western districts. Cooler in the northern half of the belt. Generally fair weather, with moderate temperatures, over the eastern half of the belt. Generally fair weather was feared.

Spot prices are firmer and stronger than expected and quotes spots 8 higher; sales 8,000. Cables report Russia in continent buying. Manufactured news is less favorable; sales of print cloths in third war in the Balkans seems near, as Turkey is apparently preparing for war to remove against Bulgaria. Galveston freight people report no movement of cotton over the week demand, and room engaged during the summer being wholly for July. In fact, as to the week is not up to anticipations. This is confirmed in a way by the Galveston and Houston receipts being lighter than last year, and generally today, although picking and ginning are known to be active operations over a large part of Texas. Our market opened about 10 points higher and closed quiet but steady on the advance, waiting for the weekly weather report, which, it is expected, will be unfavorable on the eastern and southern districts, reports on north Texas and Oklahoma going to the insufficient amount of rain received during the past few days from parties who are now traveling in that section to inspect the crop, and the opinion has generally settled to the anticipation of bullish September bureau, showing 4 to 6 points decline is conditional.

NEW YORK COTTON LETTER

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The detailed weather for Texas and the weekly weather report, which was construed as bullish, brought out buying, and a few points rally followed. Those who are now buying this bull market are looking friends to buy at the present level and are predicting higher prices. Covering orders are the leading buyers in this market today, and there are very few offerings. The bearish element are awaiting further developments in the western belt, and as soon as there are signs of good rains it is believed that there will be some good selling.—Anderson.

The Evening Story

The Magic Casement

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Werner.)

It was a dark day and Hannah Place had taken her piecework into the kitchen that she might both see and be warm. The kitchen window was the only one in the house that was not shuttered without, and curtained within. Hannah was making her twenty-sixth patchwork quilt. The other nineteen were folded neatly away on the shelves in one of the upstairs closets. There was no prospect of their ever being used by her.

"I shan't care what becomes of 'em after I'm dead and gone," she said.

The quilt she was piecing now was an intricate affair upon which she had worked half a year.

"There'll be other things to do presently," she thought. "I must have my bit of garden and useful stuff, and there's the housecleaning. If I don't get this quilt done in the next week or two I shall have to lay it by."

She sighed and lifted her eyes to the prospect beyond her window. It was all dreary enough to match, so there is no wonder that Hannah sighed again and lowered her eyes upon the cheerful pink calico. But at that instant came a knock at the door and Mrs. Wrenn entered.

"I was sure I'd find you in the kitchen," she said. "I do believe, Hannah Place, that you spend your whole time in the kitchen. It ain't good for you. Don't you know it ain't? How you see to sew here I can't see. It was in a house as dark as this one, Hannah."

"It wasn't the fashion to have many windows when this house was built," said Hannah, stitching away.

"It's a man-built house, that's why," declared Mrs. Wrenn. "A man's idea of a house is to have four walls and a roof, a chimney to tack 'em to and a door to go out and in by. When it comes to conveniences, they don't know the first thing about 'em. If this was my house, Hannah, the first thing I'd do would be to cut a few holes in the walls to see out by. There ain't a pleasanter room anywhere than your sitting room would be if it had a big window in that west wall. You could see clear across your premises to the creek then, and how you'd enjoy it. I should hate never to see anything but them old apple trees and that garden patch. But there, I'm boring you, Hannah."

Hannah had turned her head away and was looking out of the window. "I can't see much at that," she thought. "She's just as she is. But she means well and she's the only friendly neighbor I've had."

"But, land, I didn't come over here to discuss windows," Mrs. Wrenn said. "I came over, Hannah, to tell you that I had a letter from Lena this morning—Lena Hardy, your husband's girl."

Hannah turned quickly and her face slowly reddened. Her thin lips, released for a moment from their usual rigid line, set again harder than ever. "You needn't mention that name before me," she said.

"Now, Hannah," Mrs. Wrenn answered calmly, "think what you're saying. Lena is your husband's girl and your stepdaughter. She's lost her dad the same as you did, and I'm sure she's never done a thing to either of you was when she went against your wishes and married Evan Hardy. He's dead now. And there she is with her children—three of 'em—and just as poor as poor. She's doing washing and ironing, I heard, though she didn't mention it in the letter. She didn't mention anything. She just wrote to thank me for some jams and jellies I'd sent her over for and sent to her the other day. I always liked Lena." She rose and drew her shawl over her head. "Well, I'll tell you I'd heard from her. Come over some time, Hannah."

Hannah looked up for an answer Mrs. Wrenn went out, closing the door upon Hannah, her patchwork, and her darkness.

Hannah pushed the work from her. She was greatly disturbed. First it was the question of windows; and then Lena. Mrs. Wrenn had taken too much liberty. Yet in her heart she knew that she liked Mrs. Wrenn better than all her other neighbors because she said what she thought and was unafraid. Even now she was not angry—merely upset. Her thoughts were in a tangle. The windows and Lena—Lena and the windows! As Mrs. Wrenn presented them there seemed to be a relation between the two subjects. Lena had always loved light and air. It was at that very point that antagonism had begun between her and Hannah.

Hannah was an old maid when she married Hiram Place. It was the first chance she had ever had to get married. Romance was not all dead in her and she loved the hard, cold man who sought her. He had not built the house for her. But for no other woman who had been his wife. Still, it was quite new when Hannah went into it. She was proud to be its mistress. But there was Lena. Between her and Lena was no more sympathy than may be between a pretty seven-teen-year-old girl and a homely woman twice that age. Then Len Hardy came. Hannah had no particular objection to Len save that she didn't want Lena to marry him, not having married young herself she didn't see why Lena should. Her very opposition stimulated the love affair. In the end the pair ran away and were married. Lena sent back a plea for forgiveness. Her father forbade her entering the house again. When he died three years after he left all to Hannah.

Hannah had it all—the gloomy, great house—the mortgages, bonds, bank account—more than she knew how to spend. She shut herself up in two or three rooms and lived the life of a recluse. Gradually her acquaintances and neighbors withdrew—all save Mrs. Wrenn. She would not leave Hannah alone.

"I ought to hate her," Hannah said, fiercely. "She's a meddler. First it's this thing, then taht. She's always sticking her nose into my business."

She got up and went into the sitting room. It was very dark. There was one window and that was heavily draped. She stood looking at the setting west wall. "You could see clear across to the creek." She paused here as pondering and considering Hiram's picture, which hung in the midst of the blank space. "That would have to come down. He wouldn't like it."

Yet somehow she could imagine that window and the view. She was so very tired of looking at the back yard. It came to her that she was tired of everything in her life, even herself.

Some one knocked at the back door. Was it Mrs. Wrenn come back for a last word? No. It was a young carpenter, who said: "As I was going by on my way home to dinner, Mrs. Pace, I thought I'd slip in and see if you had any patching or fixing up you wanted done."

After a while she made a bargain with him. He was to put in the window—a big window, plate glass. After dinner the man came back to work. Hannah at first was appalled at the size of the hole he cut in the wall, but by the time the window was in place she had grown somewhat used to it. She could see the creek and the freshening field between.

"I declare, it's real pleasant," she thought. She moved her chair and her work basket in before the window. But she sewed less than she watched the feathering willows beside the creek. "It was just such a spring as this when I married Hiram," she mused. "He wasn't much of a lover, but he was all I ever had."

Fragments of her old dreams came to her and she smiled over them. Sometimes she would sit for hours idle, just gazing out over the green field. One day it almost seemed as if one whispered in her ear: "What a lovely place for children to play in!"

She started guiltily, took off her glasses and rubbed her eyes. When she looked again at the field there were indeed three children playing upon it. They seemed very happy. She watched them in half pleased astonishment.

"Well, forever more!" The deep voice startled her. There was Mrs. Wrenn, who had entered unheard. "Asleep, Hannah?"

"Why, no, Mrs. Wrenn. Whose children and those out on my field, there?"

"Children! I don't see any children. Maybe you were dreaming of Lena's children. She's got three. And real field fs where they ought to be this minute. You'd never be sorry if you saw them there, Hannah." As Hannah did not speak Mrs. Wrenn went on earnestly. "I wrote to Lena this morning. I told her to bring the children and make me a visit. I guess she must be just about played out with all that washing and ironing she's been doing. And the children ain't never had a glimpse of the country in spring. My house is big enough and to spare for 'em, Hannah, even if it hain't got fourteen rooms, with nobody in 'em, and though I ain't got no call beyond human kindness to do for her."

She stood up. She towered over little gray Hannah. And her face was stern. Hannah covered her face with her hands. "Go away, Lena—me alone," she gasped. And Mrs. Wrenn went.

As she door closed Hannah uncovered her face. She looked at Hiram's picture on the wall. The right from the great window revealed it hard and disagreeable. For the first time Hannah saw it and herself as they were.

"You may like it or not, Hiram," she said. "But she's your girl. And them children are your kin. This house is theirs more than mine. And they're welcome to a home here. I say, they're welcome to a home here." And with those words light other than that from the window illumined Hannah Place's soul.

In the end they ran away.

FIVE CANDIDATES FOR ALABAMA SENATORSHIP

Underwood, Clayton, Heflin, Abercrombie and Hobson Prominently Mentioned

(BY RALPH SMITH.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 19.—Five Alabama congressmen are "prominently mentioned" as possible candidates for the United States senate. They are Majority Leader Oscar W. Underwood, author of the tariff bill and chairman of the ways and means committee; Henry D. Clayton, of Eufaula, chairman of the judiciary committee, who was appointed by Governor O'Neil to fill Senator Johnston's unexpired term; J. Thomas Heflin, of LaFayette, chairman of the industrial arts and exposition committee; John W. Abercrombie, of Tuscaloosa, congressman-at-large; and Richmond Pearson Hobson, patient equal suffragist and hero of the Merrimac.

It is regarded a practically certain that three of these congressmen—Clayton, Heflin and Hobson—will be in the race, unless Leader Underwood takes a notion to become a candidate. In that event, it is believed that Clayton and Heflin might decide to take the race to Underwood and Hobson. The latter has been running for several months, and was preparing to fight it out with the late Senator Johnston.

WILL UNDERWOOD RUN?

Interest in Washington centers in the possible candidacy of Mr. Underwood. Reports from Alabama say that he can win with comparative ease. But will he run? That is the question. Some of his friends say that he has an ambition to "round out his public career" with a term or two in the United States senate, and that he is considering seriously the situation. Others say that it would be the height of folly for Mr. Underwood to end his career in the house at this time, even though he could have a senator's seat for the asking.

As leader of the house, Mr. Underwood is unquestionably one of the most, if not the most, influential man in the government, next to the president himself. He overshadows Speaker Clark, while neither Senator Kern, Democratic leader, nor Senator Simmons, finance committee chairman, wield nearly so much influence in legislative matters. If he gives up his position to enter the senate, then he will lose much of his prestige and influence. He will go to the foot of the list in the senate, and years will elapse before he will be anything like as important to display his talents as a leader. His strong personality would be overshadowed by other personalities quite as strong. His life study—the tariff—would be of little use to him, because it would be next to impossible for him to land a place on the tariff making committee—financial. Of course his ability would command recognition, and his sayings and doings would attract attention, but he would find older and more experienced senators leading in the debates and shaping legislation.

As leader of the house, Mr. Underwood is "more nearly in line for a presidential nomination," his friends say, "than he would be occupying an obscure place in the United States senate." And this them children are your kin. This house is theirs more than mine. And they're welcome to a home here. I say, they're welcome to a home here." And with those words light other than that from the window illumined Hannah Place's soul.

CLAYTON AND HEFLIN.

With Mr. Underwood out of the way, it is certain that Judge Clayton will be a candidate. It is almost as certain that Representative Heflin will enter the race also. Dr. Abercrombie's candidacy is problematical, but the legislature does with reference to redistricting the state. He is congressman-at-large just now. If the legislature redistricts, he will be out of a job, and will run for the senate. He has a state-wide organization, and would be a factor, it is believed.

Hobson, "the hero, the suffragist, the prohibitionist," is the man that the winner must beat, according to advices in Washington. Judge Clayton and his friends think he is the man to turn the trick. The friends of Mr. Heflin insist that he is the man. The friends of both Clayton and Heflin fear that if both run, Hobson may have an advantage that will be hard to overcome.

Heflin is a better speaker than Clayton, and his friends believe is better able to handle Hobson on the stump than any other man in Alabama. Heflin, too, is a prohibitionist, but is not regarded so extreme as Hobson, and, therefore, less objectionable to a large element of the liberals in Alabama.

want me, you couldn't harm me if you wanted to."

The two men then discussed the situation briefly. At this station Kelsey left the train, as did one of two men who were accompanying the supposed Thaw.

Kelsey immediately obtained the assistance of two friends and with an automobile they followed the train.

They learned that the stranger and his companion had left the train at Riversdale, where they were joined by the other man, who, meanwhile, had obtained an automobile, and together they crossed the line into Canada, passing through Barford to Coaticook. Kelsey and his party followed and had the man arrested near Coaticook.

Mother Awaits Son at Pennsylvania Country Home

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, mother of Harry Thaw, left New York this morning and took a train for Cresson, Pa., near Pittsburg, where she will await further word from her fugitive son Harry, who escaped from the Matteawan asylum for the criminal insane early Sunday morning.

As she entered she said she had had no word from Thaw since the letter received yesterday, in which he said all was well and promised to join her at Cresson.

Thaw Cannot Be Held But Can Be Deported

MONTREAL, Aug. 19.—After the provincial police sent an officer to Coaticook to assist local authorities with the case, the local police department here said that unless the American officials produced a warrant against Thaw charging an extraditable offense the prisoner could not be held.

However, the head of the Montreal immigration department declared Thaw could be deported as undesirable.

U. S. Authorities in Doubt As to Thaw's Extradition

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Harry K. Thaw may be extradited from Canada on a warrant charging bribery, but there is no provision in any of the Anglo-American treaties for extradition on a charge of conspiracy, except as it relates to conspiracy for mutiny on the high seas. There is no provision for extradition on the charge "fugitive from justice."

Those are the views of state department officials. In none of the treaties is there a "catch all" clause which would permit the arrest of a fugitive who got across the border just ahead of his captors. Such a provision did exist in an old treaty with Mexico.

Immigration authorities here believe Thaw could be detained and returned to the United States by the Canadian immigration authorities as an insane man or an undesirable alien. They have no definite information, however, of the provisions of the Canadian law.

Thaw's Abettors Identified; One a Former Legislator

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—There seems little doubt that the conspirators who effected Thaw's escape from Matteawan have been fully identified. All indications are that the leader was Richard J. Butler, an intimate friend of ex-Police Chief Devery and a former state legislator.

Butler's chief assistant seems to have been Roger Thompson, a New York chauffeur, described as mild-mannered fellow but a daredevil driver.

A third conspirator was Thomas Flood, a chauffeur who owns a landaulet.

Apparently Flood received Thaw at the asylum gate and took him to the foot of the hill where Thompson, with a six-horsepower touring car was waiting.

This car was said to have belonged to a Broadway saloon-keeper named Carroll.

Evidently Thompson started on the road to Danbury, but at Ridgefield, Conn., missed his way and got on the pike to Norwalk. At Wilton he and the other machine asked for directions. Meanwhile Butler headed for Long Island sound and was supposed to have separated from the company and crossed to his place at Oyster Bay, whence he returned to New York and mailed a letter from Thaw to his mother.

Fugitive Wires to Pittsburg for Money

PITTSBURG, Aug. 19.—A telegraphic request was received here today from Harry K. Thaw asking that a large sum of money be sent to him at Coaticook, Quebec.

Thaw's Mother Not Interested in Arrest

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 19.—When informed this afternoon that a man supposed to be Harry Thaw had been arrested in Canada, Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, his mother, made no reply. To another reporter who asserted he had important news concerning her son, Mrs. Thaw said:

"Well, if it is important I myself would have heard of it."

She said she had no desire to hear dispatches concerning the arrest. These had been wired before Thaw's identity fully was established.

Mrs. Thaw was en route to her summer home in Cresson.

The managers expect the election will be held in October and some of the best campaign speakers in congress will be sent into the district.

It's Easy To Keep The Hair From Turning Gray As To Keep The Scalp Clean

AND there is no reason in the world why you should hesitate to restore to your hair its lost color and vitality, if it is fading and turning gray, any more than that you should foolishly refuse to use a remedy for dandruff or any other scalp trouble.

Sickness, nervousness, impoverished blood or deficient scalp nutrition may cause premature grayness; sometimes it is hereditd. Whatever the cause, gray hair adds from 10 to 20 years to the age, and young women, even at 25 or 30, with very gray hair is passed as old.

Robinaire Hair Dye is a pure tonic restorative to bring back to faded or gray hair its own original color and lost beauty. It is not to bleach or change the original color, and should not be confused with such. It is prepared in our own laboratory from a formula we know to be beneficial, and we guarantee it to be non-injurious. It keeps the hair soft, lustrous and in its beautiful, natural color, and as it does not stain the scalp cannot be detected. Prepared for light, medium and dark brown and black hair and for sale at druggists and toilet goods departments, 75c. By parcel post, 82c.

Send us the name of your druggist if he cannot supply you, and we will send you FREE samples of the famous Robinaire Face Powder and Rose Cold Cream. Jacobs' Pharmacy Co., Atlanta, Ga.—(Advt.)

Dear Sir:—Having been a patron of your school for several years, I wish to say that it is one of the best which I have ever known, and any man, having sons to be educated, and form correct habits in their early years, cannot do better than to send them to this school.

My third boy, as you know, is now winding up his third year with you, and I do not believe that anything I could have done for any one of the three could have built them up physically and morally better than sending them to the G. M. A.

Wishing the school success in the future, I am as ever,

Yours truly, J. J. WEST.

Mr. and Mrs. Marett are at the Ansley hotel until later, when they will visit the mother of the groom and parents of the bride.

Americans in Scotland For Shooting Season

Mr. and Mrs. George Gould are among the Americans who have taken Scotch estates for the shooting season.

The two principal American hostesses of Scotland will not be entertaining there this year.

The Duchess of Roxburgh (Miss Goelet, of New York), has, since her marriage ten years ago, discharged most of her social duties with a few house parties at Floors castle in Scotland during August and September, but this year she is remaining at the pretty little place at Roehampton, which she has rented from Lady Winborne and where she is anxiously awaiting the arrival of a son and heir to the Roxburghe title and estates.

The most popular American hostess in Scotland, Mrs. Bradley Martin, will not be entertaining there this year owing to mourning for her husband. It is now thirty years since the Bradley Martins began giving their big house parties at Balmacaan in Inverneshire for August and September Scotch sports, and the annual county ball at Inverness during the meeting—as the northern season is called—has since that time become a spectacular and brilliant affair with the arrival of the Balmacaan guests.

It is difficult to tell in advance of the prospects for grouse. But the reports in general indicate that the season will be the worst in thirty years on account of the grouse disease.

But the great Scotch landlords have rented their moors for enormous sums, as there always are plenty of rich people who want to fortify their London positions by lavish hospitality and big house parties.

The rentals paid for two or three months amount to more than $2,000,000 a year. Most of the big Scotch estates belong to a dozen dukes, the Duke of Sutherland coming first, possessing almost 1,000,000 acres. The Duke of Buccleuch owns nearly 500,000, the Duke of Athol 200,000, the Duke of Montrose, head of the Graham clan, 10,000; the Duke of Roxburghe more than 60,000, and the Duke of Beaufort more than 58,000. Lord Rosebery is also a large land owner in Scotland, having 18,500 acres in Midlothian and 7,000 in Linlithgowshire.—Exchange.

CHILDREN'S PARTY

Among those in the group above are Emma Thomas O'Neil, Sarah and Callie Orme, Caroline and Isabelle Howard, Annie Lee Hobson, Elizabeth Crawford, Jennie Lynn DeValle, Jane and Eleanor Killyer, Maude Orme, Frances Traylor, Margaret Block, Cyrus and G. N. Strickler, Sam and Everett Evans, George Weyman, Spencer Callaway, William Nixon, Caleb Richmond.

What Anne Rittenhouse Says

Along with the use of garlands of roses has come about a fashion for bows. After all, they belong together in the traditions of fashion One does not place them in the more graceful epochs of dress because they have been associated with ugly gowns

Something in the very name of bows irritates designers. They instantly feel that they have to deal with stiff materials and formal shapes. The amateur is fond of bows. She uses them like charity to cover defects.

She spots them over underwear, attaches them to sleeves and drapery, and usually ends by giving the gown the look of a fancy cradle.

There are other women who use bows to accentuate angularities. They marshal them in straight rows up and down the front of a gown or sleeve and put them at precise angles upon a hat. There are few women who do not feel that they cannot handle a bow, and there are few women who can do it. It takes a master hand to manipulate ribbon or satin so that it stands out from the surface of things in the shape of o bow.

Not alone is the making of a bow an important thing, but the placement of it requires skill and a sure eye for line. So that when one says bows are in fashion one does not mean to state that every woman should use them without help or advice from one who is an artist in the work.

LARGE BOWS AT WAIST.

In order to make the waist look larger than it is, we are placing bows on girdles. They spread across the middle front or back, and while they increase the thickness of the figure, they lend a certain charm to the gown. Many of the new belts are made of metal cloth and to them are fastened fit bows of satin, tulle or silk. Probably tulle is the favorite fabric. It lends a certain airiness to the heaviness of the metal.

On a gown of pink and silver Egyptian gauze there is a belt fully six inches wide made of silver cloth which is finished directly in front with a huge butterfly bow of silver net lined with pink tulle and caught in the middle with a loop of colored beads.

The same idea is used on a black tulle gown which has a wide belt of jet and cut steel, irregular at the top and spreading below the waist. At the back of this is a flat bow of bright yellow tulle held in the middle with a string of amber beads.

The woman who is quick to catch an idea and apply it to her own wardrobe may like the idea of putting these huge tulle bows and fancy belts on a gown that needs renovating. She can do wonders with it and transform a second rate lace or net gown into something quite snappy.

If the large bow is not suitable for her figure she can make one in the size she needs. It is wise to wire it invisibly at the edges so that it will not lose its shape.

Often the wiring is covered by tiny beads or brilliants set in a composition like silver.

Bows on Sleeves.

When the skirt drapery is not caught up by roses it is caught up with bows *but these should be careless and grace*ful, not stiff and formal. The roses are really better unless one knows just how to manage a piece of ribbon.

One might suggest the placing of bows on the lining of thin blouses if it were not that this fashion has been woefully overdone. The bows on sleeves are better. This is an old fashion revived. It came out with the new theater sleeve which was made with lace points which met down the length of the arm. To these points are now attached small bows and as many as ten are used from shoulder to wrist.

Newsom-Sims

The marriage of Miss Edna Sims and Mr. Paul Newsom was an interesting event taking place at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Bettie DuBose Sims, on Forrest avenue.

The house was decorated with quantities of ferns, palms and smilax, the cool green of the foliage making an effective setting for the bridal party. The ceremony was performed by Dr. W. W. Landrum and witnessed by a number of relatives and friends.

The only attendants were Miss Mildred Sims, the young sister of the bride, as maid of honor and two attractive children, little Miss Marion Crawford and Paul Elbridge, little Miss Crawford carrying the ring in an Easter lily. Both the maid of honor and the young ring bearer wearing lingerie gowns and pink ribbons.

The bride wore a traveling suit of blue cloth with hat to match and carried a bouquet of bride roses.

An informal reception followed the service, Mrs. Sims receiving her guests wearing a gown of black lace and was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Howell Dodd, Mrs. H. H. White and Misses Lucy Willis and Julia Toombs DuBose and Mary Reber Sims, of Washington, Georgia.

After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Newsom will make their home in Washington.

Baron-Warshaw

Mrs. B. Baron announces the engagement of her daughter, Mollie, and Mr Maurice Warshaw, both of Thomasville, the date for the wedding to be announced later.

Mrs. Spratt Entertains

Mrs. W. T. Spratt entertained Saturday afternoon at bridge in compliment to whom Mrs. Ralph Giles, of Audubon, N. J., and Mrs. Carl Giles, of Oxford, Georgia.

Twenty-four guests were invited.

An "Elevator" for Airmen

(Popular Mechanics Magazine.)

Airmen are beginning to pay more attention to safety devices than was the case in the early history of aviation, and new devices for insuring the stability of aeroplanes, for protecting the airman against injury in case of accident, and for descending in safety from a crippled or unmanageable machine are being developed throughout the world.

A spectacular test of one of the new safety devices was made in California recently. A young woman jumped from an aeroplane at a height of more than a thousand feet and landed safely on earth without the slightest injury.

The apparatus she used is known as a "safety pack." It is a parachute of very thin, but strong silk fastened to a mesh made of Italian hemp and so folded into a canvas case that it opens at the slightest pull. The entire pack weighs but eleven pounds and is designed to be attached to the shoulders of the airman or his passenger, ready for instant use.

THE TRANSPARENT SLEEVE

The transparent sleeve is largely responsible for the fact that gloves are no longer in fashion. The short white glove with the long, transparent sleeve is as ugly as the long, heavy kid glove with the short, transparent sleeve; hence, no gloves. This frock shows the newest transparent sleeve for daytime wear. It is of tulle and comes from a lowered armhole of soft crepe de chine. It is loose and baggy, but is held tight to the wrist and then falls in a wide frill over the hand.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

(Copyright, 1913, by J. G. Lloyd.)

Sammy Jay had thought out a plan to get even with Chatterer the Red Squirrel for the trouble he had got Sammy and Mistah Mocker into with their neighbors of the old orchard.

"Of course, it won't do for either of us to call on any of our feathered friends in the old orchard to ask any questions. They won't listen to a word, but will pitch into us before we can say a word, just as they did before," said Sammy. "I never could understand why people are always ready to believe the bad things they hear and never listen to the good things. When people say I've done bad things which I haven't done at all, I always feel just like going out and doing them then, just out of spite. So, as I was saying, it won't do for either of us to call on our feathered neighbors in the old orchard, and yet I want to find out if Chatterer has been seen there lately."

Mistah Mocker scratched his head thoughtfully. "Johnny Chuck lives there now, doesn't he?" he asked.

Sammy's face brightened. "That's so! Why didn't I think of him before?" he exclaimed. "Now while I look around a little in the Green Forest you go call on Johnny Chuck and find out if he has seen Chatterer in the old orchard lately."

Mistah Mocker agreed, and Sammy told him just where to look for Johnny Chuck, down in the far corner of the old orchard. So off he started. Now Mistah Mocker knew that it wouldn't do to let any of the birds who live there see him. You see, all of them were his enemies now because they thought that he had helped Sammy Jay steal the eggs of Drummer the Woodpecker. Of course, he hadn't, for Sammy hadn't stolen the eggs at all. But everybody believed he had, and so there was nothing for Mistah Mocker to do but steal up to the old orchard secretly.

It made him feel very uncomfortable, very uncomfortable, indeed. "Ah feel like a sneak," he muttered to himself. "If anybody should see me dodging in and out of the trees and bushes this way they would be sure that Ah was guilty. Ah don't like it a bit, but Ah reckons there's no help for it."

At last he reached a snug hiding place in an alder tree that grew by the tumbled-down stone wall close by Johnny Chuck's home in the far corner of the old orchard. He waited and waited, and at last, when his patience was almost gone, Johnny Chuck came out to sit on his doorstep.

"Good mo'ning, Brer Chuck," said Mistah Mocker in a low voice.

"Good morning," replied Johnny, looking up in surprise. "I haven't seen you for a long time. How did you find out where I live?"

"Oh! a little bird told me," said Mistah Mocker, and then both laughed.

"Yo' sho'ly have a mighty likety place fo' a home, Brer Chuck," continued Mistah Mocker. "Have yo' many neighbors?"

"Not too many, but enough," replied Johnny Chuck. "Drummer the Woodpecker has built his home in that old apple tree, and Wheenie Bluebird has a fine family in the next one. Skimmer the Swallow makes his home up there, too. They are very fine neighbors, who mind their own business, Mistah Mocker."

Now, when Johnny mentioned Drummer the Woodpecker, Mistah Mocker had to turn his head to hide a smile, for to find out just where his home was was one of the things he had come for. "Yes," he replied, "they sho'ly are good neighbors, the very best of neighbors; but Ah should think yo' would miss your old friends of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest, Brer Chuck."

"So I would if they didn't come to see me," said Johnny. "Unc' Billy Possum, Jimmy Skunk and Peter Rabbit drop around whenever they are up this way, and lately Chatterer the Red Squirrel has made me a morning call almost every day."

"That's fine," said Mistah Mocker. "Now Ah know where yo' live I'll call mahself whenever Ah happen this way. Ah reckons Ah must be moving along now, but Ah cert'nly am coming again soon."

"Do," replied Johnny Chuck. "I'll always be glad to see you."

And with that Mistah Mocker returned to the Green Forest the same way he had come, chuckling all the way to think how easily he had found out all he wanted to know.

"Good morning, Brer Chuck," said Mistah Mocker in a low tone.

The Composer of "Faust"

Klein: "Thirty Years of Musical Life in London."

Gounod was one of the most fascinating men I have ever spoken with. His manner had a charm that was irresistible, and his kindly eyes, soft and melting as a woman's, would light up with a smile, now tender, now humorous, that fixed itself ineffaceably upon the memory. He could speak English fairly well, but preferred his own language, in which he was a brilliant conversationalist; and he could use to advantage a fund of keen, ready wit.

Crackers Trying To Pull Down Lead of the Mobile Outfit

Welchonce Is Willow King; Atlanta Won

Price Was Decidedly Wilder Than Usual, but Managed to Pull From Many Holes, Spectacular Fielding

Gilbert Price was stingy with his hits, but even at that he was in many bad holes, from which good hurling coupled with excellent fielding pulled him. Errors and bases on balls often put runners on the bags, but not until the ninth inning were any of the runners able to cross the pan.

The final count proved 7 to 2. Hitting at just the right time gave the Crackers their runs.

Harry Welchonce came through in grand style as a sticker. He batted in four of the seven tallies and scored once himself. His triple in the seventh sent two runners home, and in the eighth he doubled and two more came across.

Jacinto Calvo has an arm that is feared by all. In the ninth inning he tossed out Marcan at the plate with a perfect peg. And in the fifth Messenger hit a line drive to right which Calvo bagged after a hard run, and then made such a neat peg to the plate that McDonald was turned back to third.

In the sixth round Price got himself out of a bad hole by a neat fielding play on Ellam. The ball was one of the high-bounding kind toward first base. Gil fielded the ball with one hand and barely beat the runner to the bag.

McBride pulled a nice fielding stunt in the first round when he went into deep center and grabbed Holland's line drive. The ball at first looked good for extra bases.

In the fifth round a base on balls and a couple of errors put three Barons on the bags, with no one down, and yet the Crackers pulled out without allowing a tally. First it was a strike out, then a neat catch in deep right by Calvo, and lastly a grand catch by Wallace Smith.

Chapman was back in the game with his usual peg. In the seventh he worked a most heady play when he allowed Hardgrove's bunt to hit the ground and then tossing out Carroll at second. Had he caught the ball, Carroll would have been on first in place of the pitcher.

Wallace Smith went into deep center in the fifth inning and captured Messenger's Texas leaguer. It was the play that saved a couple of runs.

Joe Agler contributed his usual circus play in the seventh when he ran over almost to the stand and pulled in a foul sent up by Marcan. Joe got the ball while on the dead run and yet managed to hold Hardgrove on second.

Cubs Get Fine On Farm Deal

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Aug. 19.—The Chicago National league club was fined $500 by the national baseball commission for farming players to the Louisville club of the American association, and William Grayson, Jr., former president of the Louisville club, was debarred from connection with any national agreement club until he has been reinstated by the commission. The decision declares that both Grayson and President Murphy, of the Chicago club, "have been guilty of farming and have repeatedly and deliberately deceived the commission by the practice of releasing players under approved agreements and of setting the stipulated consideration by exchanging checks."

The decision relates to a claim submitted by Grayson against the Chicago club for $2,000, predicated on a side agreement by which Murphy was to pay $2,000 to Grayson if Player Cheney was retained by the Chicago club after May 1, 1912. The regular agreement dated the same day, August 1, 1912, and filed with the commission, set forth the release of Cheney and Lennox to Chicago for a consideration of $3,500 and the services of two players the following spring.

CRANDALL IS WITH GAINTS

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Otis Crandall, pitcher, whom Manager McGraw of the New York National league club, traded to the St. Louis team, was taken back last night by McGraw. St. Louis in return received a cash consideration, the amount not named, and a player, also unnamed, whose delivery will be made as soon as the pennant race is settled.

McGraw early this month gave Crandall for Larry McLean, a catcher. The exchange was said to have made several of the Giants so angry that they engaged in a fight with their manager, as Crandall had been with the local club for a number of years. Crandall was dissatisfied with his new berth.

DEATH NEAR MOTOR RIDER

Jock McNeil Falls While Trying to Ride "White Boards" at Drome

Refusing to take a dare to ride the "white boards" at the local motordrome, Jock McNeil, the Scotch motorcyclist, was Monday afternoon hurled through the air while traveling at a speed estimated at ninety miles an hour, and as the result is now at death's door. Reports from his bedside state that he is unconscious and it will be many hours before the extent of his injuries can be made.

McNeil's injuries consist of a deep hole in his skull, dislocated right shoulder, broken right leg, deep gash in right thigh, skin peeled from entire right side of face and many scratches and bruises. He also suffered internal injuries which cannot be found until he regains consciousness.

The accident to the plucky rider oc*curred Monday afternoon while he was* on a practice spin around the track. Jock went to the track to take his usual workout and for a time rode most peaceably. He had just about completed his work when a friend came to him with a dare for him to mount the "white boards." Though this is almost impossible, the boards being perpendicular with the ground, Jock refused to take the dare.

It took the Scotchman just two rounds to get up a speed of something like ninety miles an hour and then he hit the "white" and began to circle the track. For half a lap he held the "white" and then suddenly there was a crash and McNeil had lost his hold and was falling heavily down the track. In his fall he struck the track several times and as he was entangled in his powerful J. A. P. machine each time he struck the track he was cut and lacer*ated about the face and body.*

At the time of the accident McNeil was traveling at a powerful speed.

Dr. H. J. Rosenberg, track physician, and Drs. W. L. Cousins and W. L. Goldsmith are attending the injured rider, who is at the Grady hospital, but they entertain but little hope for his recovery. It will be some time, however, before they can tell just the extent of his injuries.

CHANGES FOR JUST A DAY

While Montgomery and Mobile were lying idle, the Crackers again trounced the Barons, thereby decreasing Montgomery's lead to two games.

Philadelphia slipped one over on Detroit in the ninth inning. The Naps, however, could not keep their winning streak up and succumbed to Lefty Boehling's curves.

The Phillies dropped one to Chicago, while the Giants increased their lead a game and a half by taking a doubleheader.

Won't Enter the Game If League Is Outlaw

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 19.—Hamilton Jones, counsel of the local directors of the newly-organized Dixie Baseball league, declared last night that he and other Nashville incorporators would not have anything to do with the new league if it proved to be an outlaw organization. He claims to have understood that an agreement would be reached with the Southern league before any charter was filed. Mr. Love is a wealthy lumberman of Nashville.

Walsh Goes to Youngstown

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Pitcher Ed Walsh, of the Chicago White Sox club left last night for Youngstown, Ohio, to see if his pitching days are over, or if he is to become an outfielder. Walsh is under the impression that he is suffering from a strained ligament in his throwing arm. It is his intention to see "Bonesetter" Reese, who had promised to assist the big pitcher. Walsh always has been a hard hitter and it is his intention to take the outfield if he cannot continue to pitch.

Fight Is Off; Welsh Injured

VANCOUVER, British Columbia, Aug. 19.—Willie Ritchie, world's lightweight champion, will remain in Vancouver for the next five weeks and will defend his title on two occasions.

Because of the injury sustained by Freddie Welsh, which forced him to abandon his holiday bout, Eddie Moy has been substituted. Moy, who is Welsh's sparring partner, has appeared in several bouts, making a good impression. He stopped Ollie Kirk in five rounds in New York three months ago, but since that time has taken on weight rapidly and will meet Ritchie at 135 pounds ringside. They will box fifteen rounds.

Ritchie will defend his title against Welsh on September 20, physicians *stating that Welsh will be able to re*sume training in two weeks.

Welsh Had Fight With Backwoodsman

VANCOUVER, British Columbia, Aug. 19.—Freddie Welsh's breakdown, which has caused a postponement of his lightweight battle with Champion Willie Ritchie, scheduled for Labor day, resulted from a physical argument he had with a backwoodsman a week ago, Welsh and the logger engaged in a difference of opinion over the coming bout and the 200-pound woodsman struck the lightweight. The latter retalliated, and before they were separated the pair were rolling on the pavement. In the fight Welsh was kicked in the stomach and his ankle was turned. He resumed training a day or two later, but in running on the road again sprained the ankle.

Curtis Is Released

In the major leagues the work each week is just a repetition of what was shown the week before, in the National New York and Philadelphia setting the pace while in the American the Naps and Athletics show the way with Washington and Chicago right next in line. Practically always these same clubs score more runs, make more hits and win more games, all of which keeps them right around the top in the percentage column.

During the past week the Phillies fell down a bit, winning but three of the five games while the New York Giants began a good climbing spell by winning five of six battles. Chicago and Pittsburg came right well towards the close of the week by getting away with a number of wins which allowed them to finish with a neat average. One of the greatest troubles with the work of the Pittsburg, Brooklyn and Cincinnati clubs during the work last week was the inability of these clubs to get their runners around the bags. They got on the paths all right but could not bring them home. Pittsburg having fifty-seven left on the bags while there were fifty-five Dodgers and fifty-three Reds left stranded. New York had just thirty-five left.

In the American league the Cleveland bunch outplayed the Athletics but not to any great extent and Mack had a sufficient lead to keep from being shaken from his top round. The Mackmen won two of three games while the Naps took three of five. The Cleveland bunch outplayed the league, leading all the way in their work in the five games last week. The Birmingham club made fifty-two hits against fifty for the Mackmen, scored twenty-eight runs against twenty-five, made but two errors against fourteen and having but thirty-eight runners left on the bags while there were forty-one Mackmen stranded. This seems to indicate that the Naps play better ball than Connie Mack's outfit but such is far from being true, the old consistency winning many battles for the Philadelphia tribe. The Mackmen always go good while the Naps sometimes go fine and then go all to pieces and play rotten ball.

The American league clubs fielded most excellent throughout the work of last week. Detroit and Philadelphia with fourteen errors each hurt the general average of work, but as a whole it was fair. Cleveland and Boston made just two erros each while Chicago had five and Washington seven. In the National league the Philadelphia and St. Louis clubs were the only ones to show any fielding class. The Phillies made but three erros and the Cards but nine. All the others went up in the big figures.

With this story is shown the work of the clubs during last week.

Manager Molesworth Wishes to Get Start on Right Road on Tuesday

The Barons and Crackers meet in the second game of their series on Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Today is ladies' day and quite a crowd of the fair fins are expected.

In the endeavor to cop the second, and break the jinx that the Crackers seem to hold over them, Molesworth will probably send Prough in to work for his Barons. Opposed to the big leader of the league, Smith will pit either Conzelman or Dent.

Alperman Now En Route Home

Ex-Captain Whitey Alperman left Atlanta Monday night for his home in Etna, Pa., where he will spend his time recuperating fully from his recent operation for appendicitis.

Baby Speed Demon Proves Best Winner

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Baby Speed Demon figured conspicuously in the opening of the championship regatta of the Associated Yacht clubs and Power Boat Clubs of America here by taking the cup for the twenty-foot class. The time for the six laps of two miles each was 17:51 1-5.

Thousands of persons witnessed the races, which were held in conjunction with the local Perry celebration. The water was a bit too choppy to get the best out of the boats.

The Baby Speed Demon is owned by Commodore J. Stuart Blockton, of the Atlantic Yacht club of New York, also owner of the Baby Bellance, which won the title last year.

(Re-entered in accordance with the frenzied discussion now going on upon various editorial pages as to whether regular English or slang is better in detailing reports of ball games.)

Nix on the slang; chop out the stuff;
Or feed it with the old honk-honk;
The cove who shoots this slangy guff
Is comical around the conk;
Why make the English spikel a joke
By crabbing up the conversation?
Give it a chance correctly spoke
Without some wise mutt's explanation.

Why jam it with a bunch of talk
That listens like it had the cancer,
Until somebody calls a balk
And grabs a chart to pick the answer?
I'll take mine in the simple buzz
When old Doc Webster led the batting,
He had these langsters on the fuzz
When it came down to big league chatting.

Nix on this slang; it's on the smear
And my remarks are here emp hectic—
The bloke who spills it in your ear
Has rodents housed within his attic;
Let's kick in on the Big Revive
For scholarly and classic diction;
Come on, you rummies, with the dive
And do a Brodie at this fiction.

Good, clean, racy slang is eminently apropos and correct. It's main trouble is a close resemblance to old Bill Higgers, the village stew. Bill was a good little guy when he wasn't drunk. But he always was.

"WHEN I DIPPED INTO THE FUTURE—"

August 18, 1914—"Wild joy reigned in Redland today when the rumor was confirmed that Manager Blitzer had been canned. It was the consensus of opinion that as a leader he was even worse than Ned Hanlon, Joe Kelley, John Ganzel, Clarke Griffith, Hank O'Day or Joe Tinker. The name of the new manager has not yet been announced, but selection will be made within ten days."

That wan, Dantean smile which as Bill Phelon put it, sounded "like a strong man tearing wall paper," belongs to Prof. O'Day who recalls this same date a year ago when "the Reds were soon to secure a manager able to put them up in the race."

As soon as some city is able to furnish suitable accommodations with elastic capacity the association of ex-Cincinnati managers will hold its first convention. Special rates will be made to towns seading 100 or more.

The esteemed Phillies by excellent grit and peppery baseball are holding their own; but holding one's own when eight lengths behind in the closing stretch is rarely formed from the main ingredients upon which winning bets are settled.

As we understand it all along the line J. Birmingham and Naps are to finish ten games or more back of the Athletics. We were also given to understand back in May that J. Birmingham and Naps were to blow up with a resonant detonation after July Fourth.

Mack's team is undoubtedly in the deadly throes of a slump. But there's still a query as to whether the Mackmen in a slump are likely to trimmed by any other ball club, traveling at top speed. These are raw and woolly days for the dope. Neither Naps or Phillies have blown up; Boston is out of last place; the Mackmen have quit hitting; a guy from California lost a tennis match. The only event which leaves tradition intact is the managerial situation in Redland. That, Gribraltar and the Sphinx frame the sole surviving immutability of existence. These alone are the semperternalities of a whirlpool age.

Up to Monday's high noon Griff still had his $100,000 and Navin had Ty Cobb. Nor is that all of it.

Features Of Play GOLF Of British Champions

"J. H. Taylor, the British open champion, like other great men, has always been something of a phrase maker," write Horace Hutchinson in the London Telegraph. With regard to modern conditions of the open championship he is responsible for two such phrases, and it is singular how eminently he justified them in his latest gallant win of that great title. One, which I believe he contributed to the obiter dicta of golf long ago, is that "the way to win a championship is to win it easily." He did that this year, for he had eight strokes to play about with as a credit balance. He has also illustrated his theory in another championship which he won by leading all his field on the first round and by going steadily further ahead of them with each round they played.

"It seemed that they had only to go on playing long enough for him to be out of sight of the rest altogether. And another dictum which he made quite lately, and with reference to this last championship of all, is that 'it is easier to win the championship than to qualify.' He illustrated that seeming paradox again very strikingly. If he had only stricken the ball once more before putting it into the last hole in the preliminary rounds at Hoylake, he would not have been starter for the actual championship at all.

"I suppose we may take it that this splendid win of Taylor's fifth championship was achieved chiefly by virtue of his wonderful power of controlling the ball in a cross wind, and of driving low to bore into a wind; above all, perhaps, by his faculty of playing his approach shots, heavily cut, yet with a low trajectory. I remember very well the first time I ever played a match against Taylor, and I think it was the first match, except against his mates in the village club at Northam, that he ever did play. The Royal North Devon club played the village club. I was immensely struck, even then, by Taylor's stroke as something that we had not seen before. The ball went away so low tat it had the look of being half-topped, and it was a surprise to see how it held its way through the air and the distance of its carry.

"Of course, Taylor—he was scarcely more than a boy—was nothing like the player that he is now, and if I had played my best I ought to have beaten him. But I did not, and he beat me, after a close match. Another thing that struck me, besides his long, low carry, was that at one point, near the end of the match, I laid him a stymy. He had the shot for the hole—2 for the half—and was 1 up at the time. Ninety-nine men out of 100 would have putted round the other ball for a half. Not so Taylor. With his iron—It was before the age of mashies—he played for a loft and nearly, but not quite, holed his ball.

"He did hole the putt back, but had to work to do it. I remember saying that he would not have played for that loft if he had had a little more experience. A little more experience of Taylor, however, showed that he had such a power of stopping the ball off a loft that he could safely play for a loft, even in such circumstances, and be safe not to run himself out of holing. It is true that was with the 'gutty' ball, which would stop more quickly, but even so—"

Once Played for Expenses; Now Drawing $20,000 Yearly

SAN FRANCISCO, August 19.—It is never known to fail that just as soon as a man attains a prominent position in public life, people start to rake his past. They're not contented until they get something on him, either. You'll always find someone who says, "So and so? Why, I remember when he didn't have a shirt to his back," etc.

Well, John McGraw, manager of the Giants, is no exception to the rule. They say he is getting $20,000 a season for managing the Giants of New York. If he is getting that sum he didn't always get it. In fact, we have proof down here that once he used to play professional ball for nothing.

An old contract was unearthed here a few days ago, signed by McGraw and five other players who were members of the Ocala Giants in 1891. The document, which is in the possession of George K. Robinson, of Ocala, who was manager of the Ocala Giants at that time, was found among some old papers. It is signed by McGraw, George Kurz, J. Connor, C. F. Thorp, Frank Stratton and Ed. Mars. It reads baseball players and members of the Ocala Giants agree to play with the Ocala club until further notified for board, shaving, washing expenses. Also a cigar once a week."

YOUTH BADLY NEEDED TO WIN ANY PENNANTS

Memphis Owner Out to Get Affiliation With Majors and Young Material for the Race Next Season

Will President Frank P. Coleman sell his fifty-four shares of stock in the Memphis Baseball association? Surest thing you know—if anyone comes across with his price. But up until 10 o'clock Saturday morning nothing resembling a check for $40,000 had been seen anywhere around baseball headquarters, and from the way Mr. Coleman talked, one got the idea that he was not the least bit surprised at its absence.

Fory thousand, it is understood, is the price which Mr. Coleman has intimated would interest him, and which might so excite him that he'd hustle up to the bank and get his shares and indorse them right over.

Mr. Coleman said today that he has not given anyone an option on his stock, and repeated his oft made assertion that he was not seeking a purchaser, but that he was willing to sell for his price. In every statement Mr. Coleman always gets in that line about his price but also manages to elude all questions as to what that particular price might be.

The president, secretary and all-round big noise of the Turtles seems to be a good deal more interested in the prospects for 1914 tam than he is about selling his stock. At any rate he says he is, and he ought to know. For one thing he has arrived at the conclusion that the Turtles need a big and liberal injection of new blood. To this end he is now preparing a list of young and promising players in various bush leagues whom he will endeavor to snare in a few weeks via the draft route.

Then, too, Mr. Coleman is planning a trip this fall to several major league cities and before he gets back he hopes to have an agreement xed ufip whereby the Turtles will get first call on some major league team's cast-offs. There is nothing definite about what team this connection will be made with, but it might not be a bad guess that the Turtles will become a farm for the Browns.

While there are seven clubs in the American league that annually make a better showing that the Hedges outfit, the fact remains that it's a far cry from the Southern to the American and that many a player who is not quite good enough for even a tail-end club in the younger major organization would do a lot of good work for one of Judge Kavanaugh's teams Proof of this is to be found in Montgomery. Many of the Dobbers, who have been up in the race all season, were obtained through the Browns.

Inasmuch as there has been a split between the Montgomery management and President Hedges over the Kutina-Bagby-Suedcor deal there seems to be a chance for anothr Southern club slipping in and taking Montgomery's plac as first farm for Mons. Hedges.

Even an affiliation with the Browns would be a great benefit to the Turtles for right now the local club is the only Dixie team that can't boast of a so-called standing-in with some major league team and thus is the only Southern club that can't get help at any and all times in the way of new players.

President Coleman says this season's race has convinced him of two things. One is that a working agreement with a major club is almost a necessity and the other is that a team must have youth and speed to cut much of a figure in baseball doings in this neck of the woods. —Memphis News-Scimitar.

GOLFING FOR THE SENATORS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Golf has forced the more weighty problems of statesmanship temporarily out of the minds of senators. Humors that leading and boastful golfers of the house were crowing of their prowess on the Chevy Chase and Columbia club links, led golfing senators today to perfect the senate golf association which will soon be "ready for all comers." Senator Saulsbury has been the active figure in bringing together the golfing enthusiasts, including many of the leading men of both parties. Here is the roster of the officers and the directors of the new association, as given out by Senator Saulsbury today:

Honorary president, Vice President Marshall; honorary secretary, Senator Gallinger.

President, Senator O'Gorman; vice president, Senator Cummins; treasurer, Senator Lippitt; secretary, Senator Hitchcock.

Executive committee, Senators Pittman, Bristow, Townsend, Walsh and Ransdell.

Manager, Senator Saulsbury; captain of team, Senator Hollis.

Archery Is Tried

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 19.—Archery, sport of ancient days, brought many men and women from various parts of the country to Soldiers' field today to try their skill at the annual tournament o fthe National Archery association of the United States. George Bryant, of Melrose, Mass., will defend the national championship title for men.

Boston-Monticello

BOSTON, Ga., Aug. 19.—The local ball team here leaves tomorrow for Monticello, Fla., to play a game of ball in the afternoon with the home team there. Monticello's team is said to be a strong one, while Boston's boasts of many victories and few defeats. The contest will be a lively one, from all opinions.

Every Player Wants Travel

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Apparently globe trotting is to become a popular off season pastime with the baseball players. The Giants and White Sox are to take a long jaunt, and now comes word from the Pacific coast that another team is to go abroad after the season is closed. Word received here from Frisco states that Mikeal Fisher, the former Pacific coast magnate, is to round up a bunch of stars and take them to Australia, where exhibition games will be played. Fisher, it is said, has secured several prominent players in the American and National leagues who have agreed to go along. He already has sent his advance agent to the Antipodes to arrange games in all the leading cities in Australia and New Zealand.

Fisher, it is stated, has a promise from Walter Johnson that the latter, if it is possible, will make the tour. Duffy Lewis and Jimmy Hooper, of the Boston Red Sox, also are said to be signed up, and there is some talk that Hal Chase, Jack Bliss, Graney, James and Whaling will be included in the list. According to the early plans the team will sail either the last week in October or the first week in November.

Fisher intends to keep his tossers over in the land of the kangaroo for about three months. Much depends upon the success which his agent meets with on his booking tour. At the present time the outlook is very bright, for the Australian people declare that they want baseball.

The game has been thriving there for several years, and they are hungry for some high class ball. For this reason Fisher believes that the trip will be a financial as well as a sporting success.

Australia has not seen any big league baseball since 1888, when A. G. Spalding headed his famous all-stars on their trip around the world. They played several games in Ausiralia and New Zealand, and the natives took to the game, despite the fact that they had scarcely heard of it up to that time.

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

Some Timely Notes on Alfalfa

YOU should begin to place your orders for lime, fertilizers, seed, and inoculin during the months of August and early September. Do not put this off until the last minute, as many things can prevent the prompt delivery of either of these important things when you are ready to plant.

In middle and north Georgia it is better to get your alfalfa planted during the month of September, or early October. Of course it will do well later even into November if the seasons are favorable, and the weather is mild, but it makes a big difference even one or two weeks. It is best to get it in early and start it good before freezing weather comes. Sometimes one week's difference in sowing will make a difference of a ton or ton and half per acre at the first cutting.

It is important that this work be done early and at the right season in south Georgia and Florida. The months of October and November are really the better time to plant, if the season should be very dry or very hot early in the fall in these localities, so that a perfect stand can be had. If peas have been planted on the ground and the land not plowed but simply harrowed, sufficient moisture will usually stay in the soil even during the dry season to give a perfect stand and a good start. Remember that a solid firm seed bed well filled with moisture is one of the secrets in securing a perfect stand of quick growing alfalfa. It will not thrive, and in nine cases out of ten, you will make a failure if planted on deep plowed land where plowed immediately before sowing. Therefore, the cutaway harrow is a suitable implement to use in preparing your fine seed bed for this wonderful plant.

In old alfalfa on which a perfect stand has not been secured, or that crabgrass or weeds have injured it will be better to thoroughly prepare, reline, refertilize and resow a field of this kind rather than take chances on trying to reseed it in spots. There is something peculiar about this plant, as a rule it never does well by trying to reseed the weak spots unless it has been thoroughly prepared.

If inoculated peas have not been grown on the land during this summer, you should by all means sow broadcast just ahead of planting the seed from 300 to 500 pounds of dry dirt secured from some alfalfa field. This makes it doubly sure of a perfect stand and a bountiful yield the first season. It is the little details that make alfalfa growing a success in all parts of the country, and the man who will carry out all of them to the letter will never fail. It is easy to do when you once learn how.

Alfalfa that has been planted early in September and has attained a growth of, say knee high by early fall, will stand some grazing, or to be clipped in November, and it will really benefit it rather than allow it to be wasted by the frost. Of course judgment should be used in this respect. Nothing will give you earlier grazing or earlier green food for live stock and fowls the following spring, than alfalfa planted early in the fall or early summer. No one can afford to miss planting at least a small patch this season.

Many fields that have been sowed broadcast in peas this year, even in the corn field, will make an ideal spot for the successful growing of this wonderful plant. If the corn is all cut and the stalks removed from the field and peavines thoroughly harrowed into the soil, by properly liming and fertilizing, fields of this kind will be better planted in alfalfa this winter than either in oats or any other crop that can be put on the land.

It is so easily done and makes such splendid growth during the entire winter, that millions of acres in Georgia should be planted this fall, even if something else has to be neglected. You cannot afford to delay this matter longer. Peas or beans of any kind planted in August will make considerable growth and keep the ground shaded during August and September, easily on fall land. This will make an ideal place for the planting of alfalfa in October and November. It is not essential for the peas to mature, but the main thing is to keep the ground covered long enough to secure sufficient moisture to give the alfalfa plant a good start before the freezing weather in winter.

It will make poor land rich quicker than most anything you can put on it, especially if fertilized heavy with any good commercial fertilizer, or even acid phosphate or Tennessee phosphate. There is one good thing about alfalfa being fertilized, you can sow broadcast over the plants while they are growing, and it is astonishing how quick the plants will utilize it and give an abundant yield of hay back to you. Even if broadcasted and harrowed in, wonderful results will be quickly seen.

The saving of labor from tending and planting over every year, and a crop every six weeks is a big item connected with the growing of alfalfa. Always something to feed every day in the year, even though it has to be pastured to secure this feed. This can be done if absolutely essential provided it is not thus used during wet weather. With plenty alfalfa on every farm, there will never be any hungry horses, cows, chickens and hogs. It is not like corn and cotton or oats, a crop that has to be planted every year. When a good stand is once secured it is there forever, provided it is taken care of, and you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you will be independent of the merchant or western feed growers. There will be no hungry animals on your place just so long as you have alfalfa growing.

It will make the land of the south readily sell for $100 to $300 per acre. It is astonishing what this plant will do for Georgia lands. It will show the Georgia farmer the way to prosperity and independence.

Yours very truly,

QUESTIONS ASKED AND ANSWERED.

QUESTION.

Beauford, S. C.

Please answer this in The Journal:

My chickens all have the pip, even the young ones three months old. Please give a remedy to cure them, without piping them: also how to prevent it. They never have been sick a day, only they are very poor and don't eat much.

Thanking you in advance, I remain,

MRS. E. C. S.

ANSWER.

There is no such thing as pip in chickens. All chickens have a hard substance on the end of their tongue and nature has provided this to protect the tongue when they pick up their feed. Your chickens being poor and not having an appetite is probably caused from either lice or mites sapping the life out of them. They should be dipped in a solution of Bee Dee, Chloro or Nox-i-cide, all advertised in Journal, to get rid of these. The chicken houses and they sleep should also be sprayed thoroughly with this mixture or painted inside with Arasco Spray or creosote. This will kill every insect. You will find when they are rid of the insects they will begin to eat and pick up in flesh. Feed them well on whole corn and good quality of scratch feed.

IF OUR customers living on the north and south side, place their orders before 9 o'clock, and the cars in Inman Park and West End before 2 o'clock, they will be delivered the same day the orders are given. We are trying to give the very best service possible and if our customers will bear in mind the hours that our deliveries leave the store, it will insure prompt service.

IT IS absolutely necessary for chickens to have green food during the winter. This can easily be supplied if you will plant out small patch of rye and rape, they both grow very rapidly and will furnish an abundance of green food all the winter. Now is the time to plant.

THIS is the moulting season and that means that the hens should be fed a good tonic. Pratt's Poultry Regulator and Conkey's Laying Tonic insures a quick and complete moult and that means plenty of eggs during the fall and winter when they bring the high prices. 25c, 50c and $1.00 packages.

AVOID giving your chickens scratch feed with too much corn in it at this season. Use Red Comb Scratch, the percentage of corn in very small but it has just the kinds of grain that they need now. $2.25 per 100 pounds.

DON'T overlook giving charcoal, it helps to keep down indigestion and it is essential that the chickens have it.

A building permit has been granted the Druid Hills Golf club to erect a clubhouse on the golf course at Druid Hills. The building will cost $18,000.

The building, which is designed by Edward Dougherty, the architect, will cover a space 60x200, and will be of stucco finish with slate roof and large verandas, carrying out the clubhouse effect.

This will be part of the extensive golf course and country club which will be formally opened shortly.

OTHER BUILDING NOTES.

There was a fair assortment of building permits Tuesday, these covering houses to cost $5,500, $1,590, $2,000 and $1,350.
